SENATE REPEAL BILL APPROVED

Today

At Death, All Dwindles.
One Who Thought Earnestly.
Russia Saves Electricity.
What Money Shall We Use?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CALVIN COOLIDGE was buried, with hail falling on his coffin, as it was lowered into the grave. The church was packed. Only members of the family and a few close friends stood in the storm beside the open grave.

With death, everything shrinks, as far as this world is concerned—a few friends, at the last, look on your face, and go as far as the grave with you. The rest of the way, you go alone.

IS THERE any moment of wondering, while you are on your way, any doubting and hoping, as in this life? There, in the grave, you lie and all your possessions have dwindled down to one small coffin, and the clothes that the undertaker has put upon you.

Not a cheerful subject, but one to think of occasionally, between talks on the depression, and not much more gloomy than some of those talks. It is the same for all, the price of the coffin makes no important difference, solid bronze, with silver handles, or plain wood, for the pauper.

ONE MAN who thought earnestly, and felt deeply, as he sat in the small church at the funeral ceremonies, was the President of the United States. Russell Owen, writing as a good reporter, describes him thus:

"A man whose face was lined with weariness, whose eyes were shadowed with grief, walked into the red brick Congregational Church, here today, to say farewell to his friend, Calvin Coolidge. President Hoover looked neither to one side nor to the other. His gaze was fixed upon the flower-banked coffin, as he moved slowly down the right aisle."

OUR THOUGHTS are our own, the only things that outsiders cannot control or criticize. What did President Hoover think of, looking at Calvin Coolidge's last appearance on earth? Both lived in the White House, but what different lives. For Coolidge, everything had been prosperity, contentment, applause.

The billions poured out in war, were producing their temporary crop of excessive prosperity and temporarily successful gambling.

All was applause and gratitude.

PRESIDENT HOOVER entered upon the scene, and suddenly the lights were turned out.

You can imagine some, but not all of the things that President Hoover thought, as he sat there, looking upon one who had escaped, forever, the uncertainties of politics and human gratitude.

PRIVATE AND public ownership of public utilities, take different views of the consumer. Private power companies in America do all they can to increase consumption, developing and advertising many electrical devices to lighten housework, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, electric irons, etc.

The Russian government, which owns electricity and everything else, issues an order cutting down, by fifty per cent, the use of electric current in Russian households.

Russia's government needs power for industry. Here, to the horror of the technocrats, we produce enough and too much for both. Perhaps our system, while imperfect, is better, on the whole.

IN WASHINGTON the Farmers' National Relief Conference has demanded immediate recognition of Soviet Russia and immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus. The farmers will probably not get either IMMEDIATELY.

But although Russia's ideas are not ours, it is reasonable to suppose that Russia will be recognized, before long. This country cannot continue forever a foolish policy of dictating to another nation what kind of government it shall have.

Some that really worry about Russia's failure to pay what she borrowed are supposed to worry because Russia treats religions harshly.

Why not let the Ruler of the Universe attend to that? He certainly has the power and His justice, His judgment may be trusted.

FRANK O'HEARN, of Toronto, has a new currency idea. He would stabilize prices of wheat and silver and use that as the basis of a new coinage, with gold fitting in somewhere. He has the silver-using nations principally in mind.

Something is going to be done about money. The gold supply is so small that it amounts to little, with practically all of it owned by the United States and France. We have the gold, but our people lack the money.

OUR NEWBORN technocracy experts say gold values are too changeable. Our money should be connected directly with industry and use of the unit of electric power, in place of the gold unit, is suggested.

If that were tried, which will not happen, the world would see some REALLY amazing changes in value.

An improved machine, with greater production power, would make the electric unit one hundred times as valuable to its owners as the same unit in another machine. A unit of power that can be used to drag a heavy freight train, or send a radio

COMMITTEE VOTES 10-4 FOR DRY CHANGE

Issue Sent to Floor Puts Problem Up to Legislatures

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The Blaine resolution, calling for immediate repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment while protecting dry states, was favorably reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee today.

The resolution provided for ratification by Legislatures within seven years. It would repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, place a federal ban on importation of intoxicating liquors into dry states and authorize Congress to enact legislation prohibiting a return of the saloon.

There was considerable discussion over the method of ratification but the Legislature plan was adopted finally because it would be far less expensive than ratification by special state conventions. The two major party platforms called for the convention system but the committee decided against that method because of the expense.

FIRST ADVERSE VOTE

It was the first time since prohibition was written into the Constitution that any committee of the Senate favorably reported a measure attacking it. In the past, every wet measure has been defeated in the committee.

The Judiciary Committee, which recommended repeal, was composed of virtually the same senators who only two years ago approved the Jones "5 and 10" law, drastically increasing penalties for liquor law violations.

The vote was 10 to 4, with three absent.

The vote was: Ayes—Blaine, Hastings, Hebert and Austin (Republicans), Ashurst, Walsh (Mon-

Garbo Engagement Rumor Ridiculed

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 8.—(Universal.)—Friends of Greta Garbo and Max Gumpel, one of Stockholm's leading building engineers, today termed "ridiculous" reports published in London that they are contemplating marriage.

Gumpel, they pointed out, is a married man and has several children.

He is about 45 years old and an old acquaintance of the film star.

Can't Sing Like Bing, Radio Man Ends Life

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Disappointed over a lack of fan mail and his inability "to sing like Bing Crosby," Wilmer S. Jessup, 18-year-old radio entertainer, shot and killed himself today. After a performance last night Jessup told a friend:

"I'm afraid I can never sing like Bing Crosby."

Lloyd George Kept At Home by Chill

CRICCIETH, Wales, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—David Lloyd George, wartime Premier of Great Britain, was suffering from a chill at his home today. He was running a temperature.

STIMSON VISITS ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—In the dining room of his country home at Krum Elbow, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt today discussed the international situation with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson for several hours.

It was generally understood the whole field of international subjects might come in for discussion, including the far eastern situation, foreign trade problems and the question of United States recognition of Soviet Russia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—President Hoover never gave Premier Laval any intimation the United States would agree to reconsider the French debt settlement, Secretaries of State Stimson and of the Treasury Mills declared today in letters to Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania. He had the letters read to the Senate.

A few days ago Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, declared something occurred during Laval's conferences with President Hoover last year that led the French people to believe the French debt would be reduced if German reparations were forgiven. He gave no authority for his declaration.

Hospital Attendant Tried for Murder

Edward Hennigen, 42, attendant at St. Francis Hospital, was placed on trial in Criminal Court today, charged with the murder of David M. Linton. Linton was a mental patient in the hospital when, he said in a deathbed statement, Hennigen beat him in a hospital ward. Hennigen declared Lenton injured himself.

Friend Hints Coolidge Kept Illness Secret

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Universal Service.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 9.—Ex-President Calvin Coolidge is believed to have suffered a serious attack in the night before his death, which he hid from the members of his household.

The story of the light in the Coolidge homestead, so rare after midnight, and of a figure alone at the window of the ex-President's dressing room, where he later succumbed, was told by Bert Leddy, a neighbor. He said:

"Mrs. Leddy and I were retiring when I saw a light in the Coolidge home at 2 a. m.

"The light was in his dressing room. There was a figure in the rockingchair, at the window. I believe it was Mr. Coolidge. The figure arose, there was a shadow, and then the house was in darkness."

It was known Mr. Coolidge had had recurring heart attacks which he had dismissed as "only indigestion."

WOMAN NEAR DEATH IN PLUNGE

Falls 130 Feet From Boulevard; Suicide Note Found

A brunette woman, described as attractive and 35, was in Mercy Hospital today in a critical condition after she either leaped or was hurled from a retaining wall along the Boulevard of the Allies to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks, 130 feet below.

The woman hurtled through space 30 feet and rolled the remaining distance to a ditch, where she was found unconscious some time later by a work train crew. At her side lay an opened purse, its contents—a Bible, 40 cents in change, a compact and lipstick—strewn about.

On a scrap of paper believed to have been the flyleaf of the Bible was written:

"I am sorry I inhaled gas."

The note was signed:

"Ann McClelland, 2300 block."

A shoe was missing, police said. Described as 5 feet 7 inches tall, and weighing 110 pounds, she wore a brown coat trimmed in black fur, a blue dress, light colored hose and a black shoe.

She wore a wedding ring.

Police said they believed the woman climbed to the top of the retaining wall near the 1900 block of the boulevard and leaped.

Homicide Detective William R. Harris who was notified of the discovery by Lieut. of Police J. T. Cook, of the railroad police, ordered the woman taken to Mercy Hospital where it was said her injuries had not been determined. Her condition, however, was believed to be critical.

OPEN NEW FIGHT ON EINSTEIN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Prof. Albert Einstein was today completing his third "curvature of space" journey from Berlin to Pasadena, being due to land here from the steamer Oakland direct from Bremen.

"German-American relations" combines with mathematical equations in his thoughts on this visit, financed by the Oberlaender trust of the Carl Schurz Foundation of Philadelphia, for the purpose of propagating good will toward Germany.

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—A new effort to bar the entrance of Prof. Albert Einstein when his ship docks at Los Angeles this afternoon was launched by Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, of the Woman Patriotic Corporation.

At a meeting of the Margaret Brent Civic Guild, Mrs. Gray said she has asked the California immigration officials to refuse to recognize the visa granted Dr. Einstein by barring him under the alien exclusion act.

Pittsburgh Youth Found Unconscious

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 9.—A boy, 17, believed to be from Pittsburgh, was unconscious in Central Hospital today, six hours after he had been found, in the West Brownsville parking house yards. Numerous bruises on the body indicated he had been beaten. In the boy's pocket was a note bearing the name "Ted Capper, 6330 Station street, Pittsburgh."

BANDMASTER BLAMED BY WIDOW

Slain Husband Erred At Pajama Party, Woman Says

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9. — Mrs. Frances Schildhauer, beautiful widow of the murdered Edwin Schildhauer, spoke from retirement today in an attempt to clear herself of all suspicion in his death and to charge that he—not she—was the real philanderer of the family.

Among other things, she declared that her husband was the one who erred at the "pajama party" which has figured prominently in the investigation of the high school bandmaster's killing.

Sought since Thursday when she went into hiding rather than appear at the inquest, the widow sent word through her attorneys that she will tell a revealing story of her married life. In the statement given by her attorneys James N. Burke and George M. Crane, Mrs. Schildhauer denied all knowledge of the bandmaster's murder.

'WILL ADMIT AFFAIRS'

The statement, as given to Police Capt. John Stege, said:

"She will admit her affairs and open to the authorities her entire life since as a senior in high school she fell in love with Capt. Schildhauer.

"She will reveal that their home became a free love nest where married couples shared husbands and wives indiscriminately with others in the circle. If she was unfaithful, so were her husband and all the others.

"If Capt. Stege can find a solution to the murder in this situation, Mrs. Schildhauer will give him every assistance.

"Though soon to become a mother, although shaken physically by her experiences in this investigation, she will tell everything that may aid in clearing up the crime."

FEARED FEDERAL ACTION

Carl Bradberry, former deputy sheriff held in connection with the case, has admitted an illicit affair with the comely widow, including a four-day trip to Memphis, Tenn., where they stayed as man and wife.

Mrs. Schildhauer, her attorneys explained, had been in hiding because she feared action by federal authorities following Bradberry's disclosure of their trip to Memphis last October.

Surrendering Today

MRS. FRANCES SCHILDHAUER . . . HER PROMISE: TO TELL ALL

Mrs. Schildhauer, expected to surrender again today to Chicago police in the long investigation into the death ride on which her husband, high school bandmaster, was mysteriously taken several weeks ago. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

30 HURT IN IRISH VOTE RIOTS

DUBLIN, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Rioting developed at three political meetings yesterday as former President Cosgrave, opposing the De Valera government, began his campaign for the general election on January 24.

Thirty persons were injured in Dublin in a disturbance which gave the police considerable difficulty. Gen. Richard Mulcahy was hooted off the platform and the crowd threatened Mrs. Collins O'Driscoll, sister of the late Michael Collins, when she tried to speak.

Speakers who defied the crowd were heckled without mercy as De Valera adherents shouted and sang.

Wins '1,000-to-1' Death Bet and Quits Hospital

CHARLEROI, Pa., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Steve Nandor, 25, the patient who couldn't live "more than a few minutes," was back home today, well on the road to recovery after nearly two months in the hospital.

Steve was taken to Charleroi-Monessen Hospital Armistice Day with a splintered skull and damaged brain, received in an automobile crash.

He couldn't live, doctors said. Physicians decided to operate—it was a "thousand to one chance." Nandor cheated death again.

UTILITY PROFITS HELD TO 7 PCT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today ruled that state utility commissions can segregate the city units of a chain utility system in fixing rates.

The decision upheld the action of the Indiana Public Service Commission and the Federal District Court lowering rates to be charged in Martinsville, Ind., by the Wabash Valley Electric Company.

The high court also ruled that 7 per cent is a fair return for public utilities. In the case before it, the court was asked to hold anything less than 8 per cent confiscatory.

Pennsylvania Wins Dorrance Tax Suit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today denied the state of New Jersey permission to file an original suit against Pennsylvania to enjoin that state from attempting to collect its inheritance tax on the estate of the late John T. Dorrance, "soup king," from property located in New Jersey.

SENATORS TO DECIDE COURSE

Fate of Inquiry to Be Settled at Meeting

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—Whether the Senate Utilities Committee intends to fold up in the face of court attacks, or to push for a real investigation into the utility situation in Pennsylvania, probably will be decided at a meeting of the revised committee this week.

Since the committee reported to the Senate last week, and Senators Thaddeus Krause, John J. McClure and Charles H. Ealy were named to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of former Senators William S. Rial, William H. Earnest and Charles H. Clippinger, there has been no meeting.

A resolution has been prepared by Attorney O. K. Eaton, counsel of the committee, and officials of the Legislative Reference Bureau designed to meet all attacks so far raised in the courts, and to appropriate $90,000 for the purpose of an investigation, but it has not been approved by the committee.

WORK AT STANDSTILL

If this resolution is not introduced, the committee is at a standstill due to a decision by the Dauphin County courts that the $100,000 appropriation made at the special session last summer was illegal.

That would mean the committee would decay, so far as a continuance of its inquiry is concerned, with no effort made to question Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby and former Commissioner James S. Benn, both of whom obtained temporary injunctions preventing an examination of their private papers and financial transactions during the time each was on the commission.

Eaton's desire to question Commissioners P. S. Stahlnecker and Clyde L. King, the latter the commission chairman, also would be abandoned.

As to the work of the committee, there would remain only the report already submitted, which admits frustration in an effort to run down the story of holding companies in their control of utility operations in Pennsylvania. Bills have been prepared, based on this report, dealing with holding companies, but admittedly the committee lacks much conclusive information of this subject.

EATON QUITS CAPITAL

Eaton left Harrisburg for Pittsburgh last week, apparently feeling that there was nothing more for him to do until the committee acts.

Senators McClure and Salus are rivals for chairmanships of the committee, left vacant by the retirement of Rial. Salus, on the committee since its formation, claims priority in consideration, but he is not in the good graces of the organization, which prefers McClure, upon whom it feels it can rely.

Refusal to Take Bath Lands 'Boy' in Home

Victoria Myhalsky, 15, of Morgantown, W. Va., balked at taking a bath here today and landed in the Juvenile Detention Home.

Here's why.

Dressed in boys clothing, Victoria applied at the Helping Hand shortly after midnight for shelter. Duly registered, she was passed into the hands of other attendants who ordered her to disrobe, police said. Alarmed, she exclaimed:

"Oh, no, you mustn't."

She then disclosed that she wasn't as she appeared.

Police were called.

She explained to police she was en route to her home from a visit with a sister in Detroit.

DEMOCRATS BADLY SPLIT ON INCOME TAX BOOST

PASSAGE HELD UNLIKELY AT THIS SESSION

Rainey, Floor Leader, Heads Opposition; Road Aid to End

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Despite all the talk of balancing the budget at this session of Congress by drastic federal economies and jacking up tax rates on lower and intermediate incomes, it became increasingly unlikely today that anything of the sort can be accomplished.

Deny it as they will and do, the fact is that the income tax increases proposed in the now famous conference between President-elect Roosevelt and Democratic congressional leaders has split the Democrats into two warring factions.

DODGING BLAME

Everybody disclaims parentage of the income tax proposals. Gov. Roosevelt has denied he suggested them, and so has nearly everybody else who sat in the conference. The increases "were proposed," but the conferees become hazy in response to questions as to just who did the proposing. Apparently the proposals just developed out of the air.

Speaker Garner, Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, and Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, all declare their willingness to push the income tax program "if necessary."

There is, however, an undercurrent of opposition in the rank and file so strong that it now appears certain no such program as raising the normal rates from 6 to 8 and from 8 to 12 per cent on incomes in the $2,000-$8,000 class can possibly be put through.

RAINEY OPPOSED

At the head of this opposition is none other than Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic floor leader, who participated in the Roosevelt conference. He said:

"The people just won't stand for more taxes. If we impose them we will invite revolution."

"I don't think there will be a general tax bill this session."

ROAD AID ENDED

Democratic House leaders have decided to block new appropriations for federal highway aid to states, Representative Rainey announced today.

A bill authorizing $100,000,000 federal highway aid for each of the next two years is pending in the House, following passage of a $125,000,000 authorization by the Senate.

In a stinging letter to 14 governors who telegraphed demands for further federal highway aid, Rainey challenged the governors to show Congress "how we are going to get the money to pay for it."

Man Caught in Door Strangled to Death

Strangulation by means of a door was determined by homicide detectives today as causing the death of Max Phillips, 72, who had been living alone at 1957 Straubs lane, Troy Hill, since his wife died six months ago.

Phillips' body was found early today hanging through a broken glass panel in the side door to his house, where he had attempted to climb in, according to the police. He was discovered by his nephew, Earl Moses, 310 Twenty-eighth streeet, McKeesport, who said the aged man had visited his relatives last Saturday and returned home late that night.

Penna. Race Flier Escapes in Mishap

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Harry Jones, of Easton, Pa., pilot, here for the air races, escaped injury and his amphibian plane was only slightly damaged today when he nosed over in shallow water in Biscayne Bay after attemping a water landing without retracting the wheels of his ship. The plane was recovered.

tana), King, Dill, Bratton and Neely (Democrats).

No—Chairman Norris, Robinson (Indiana), Schueyler (Republicans) and Black (Democrat).

Absent—Borah and Schall (Republicans) and Stephens (Democrat).

Borah left the session just before the vote was taken on eliminating the ban against saloons. He told newspapermen outside a final vote would not be reached today. He was mistaken.

Robinson missed the first vote, but arrived at the session in time for the final two ballots. He is expected to join with Borah in leading the fight against submission of the resolution.

PROVISIONS LISTED

The resolution, after reciting that the amendment shall be valid "when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states," declared:

Article XX.

"The eighteenth article of amendment of the Constitution of the United States is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 1—The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitutinu is hereby repealed.

"Section 2—The transportation or importation into any state, territory or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

"Section 3—Congress shall have concurrent power to regulate or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the premises where sold.

"Section 4—This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of the several states within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the states by the Congress."

Woman, Circus Air Performer, Ends Life

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Miss Helen Marshell, 28, a circus aerialist, was found in a hotel room here yesterday with a bullet wound in her forehead. A pistol lay beside her. Police said they found in her room a letter addressed to Mike Seaman, London, O. She had been working lately as an entertainer in St. Louis night clubs.

CITY PENSIONER STAYS ON JOB

William E. Shore, city pensioner, still has his county job.

Because he has continued to draw his pension while on the county payroll as an engineer, Shore was dismissed by unanimous action of the County Commissioners Saturday.

But it was learned today, a few hours later Commissioner C. C. McGovern ordered Maj. William T. Rees, the chief clerk, to ignore the resolution.

No explanation has been offered.

Dies in 'Flophouse' With $7,100 Banked

CHICAGO, Jan. 9. — (AP.)—Jacob Germani, 65, believed by police to have made his living by begging, was found dead, presumably of heart disease, in a "flophouse."

Bank books found in his clothing showed he had $4,600 on deposit in one Chicago bank and $2,500 in another.

Bill to Cut Postal Charges Introduced

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Representative Cable (Rep.), of Ohio, today introduced a bill to reduce the first class postage rate from 3 to 2 cents. It would become effective July 1.

SIX-HOUR BASIS FOR POLICE

McKeesport's police department will be placed on a six-hour day basis as a result of the curtailed 1933 city budget scheduled to be passed by Council late this afternoon. Chief John J. Whalen, two lieutenants and one special traffic inspector will work full time, with the remainder of the force taking the shorter day. Mayor George Lysle, in announcing the decision, said:

"To stagger the men would mean that we would have about 27 uniformed men to protect the public. By putting the men on a six-hour basis we would give the public the protection of about 38 uniformed men."

Bold Landing Saves 2 in Crippled Plane

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—A daring and skillful feat of flying enabled Lieut. R. M. Tiria to ground his Navy biplane safely here today after it was feared that he and his mechanic were doomed to crash because of a broken landing gear.

Lieut. Tiria accomplished the dangerous and highly difficult feat of bringing the plane to earth without landing gear by "sliding it on the fuselage."

Boys Burn Bomb, Explosion Blinds 1

DETROIT, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Ten-year-old Peter Korth, Jr., may be blind for life because his companions set fire to what police believe may have been the contents of a black powder bomb.

Edward Stoinski, 11, and Lawrence Dysarczyk, 11, told the police they found a beer bottle "with some powder in it" in an alley and set fire to the contents "just to see what would happen."

R. F. C. POLICIES DEFENDED BY POMERENE

Chairman Miller Offers 'Kent Plan' to Speed U. S. Industry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, defended its relief loan policy today in testimony before the Senate committee holding hearings on the $500,000,000 La Follette-Costigan direct federal relief bill.

Closely questioned by senators in the light of heavy criticism of the R. F. C. by previous witnesses, Pomerene told how a substantial loan was made to Illinois upon information that new state taxes for relief were not possible just before the election because downstate members of the Legislature would not consent to a new tax burden at that time.

He said nearly half of the board's $300,000,000 relief fund has been loaned to 36 states and two territories.

Pomerene would not say whether he regarded the $300,000,000 as a sufficient sum.

NEED MAY LESSEN

If the winter is not a severe one and if industrial conditions improve, he pointed out, the need for federal relief will be lessened.

Pomerene asserted that when state and local authorities are not doing their duty and suffering results, the corporation had adopted "the rule of reason" in administering the law so as to relieve destitution. Pomerence asserted:

"When a human being is in distress, I am not for asking the why and wherefore."

At the same time, he said, care must be taken lest local charity cease its efforts when public funds become available.

RECOVERY PLAN

A plan designed to make industry begin functioning on a normal basis immediately with the government agreeing to reimburse it for any losses incurred, was advanced by C. A. Miller, president of the Reconstruction Corporation.

Referring to this as the "Kent plan" and saying it has been proposed by a noted economist, Miller told the Senators he thought it comes the nearest to a solution of the unemployment problem.

He said he did not want to be understood as committing other officials of the corporation to this plan and expressed the view that he might be regarded as a "Socialist" for indorsing it.

Lodge Loses $2,000 In Fraud, Man Held

Henry A. Menke, of Suismon street, was arrested today, charged with embezzling $2,000 in bonds from the Hope Lodge, Knights of Pythias, West Diamond street.

In an information sworn to before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, Ernest Trumick accused Menke of embezzling the bonds by writing the name of Joseph Moore, an officer of the lodge.

Italy Ships Arms To Hungarian Forces

VIENNA, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Socialist newspapers today carried a report that 40 freight cars loaded with rifles and machine guns had arrived at the Hirtenberg arms and munitions factory from Italy and had been shipped to Hungary.

An official communique said the weapons were old Austrian war material which had been brought there to be repaired.

She wouldn't sign a a complaint for the police. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

FRIEND LINKED IN GEM HOLDUP

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Detective Chief Joe Taylor today said a Hollywood man-about-town is suspected in the Betty Compson $37,500 jewel robbery of last week and predicted that if and when an arrest is made, it will astound the film colony.

The actress refused Friday to sign a robbery complaint, expressing fear of reprisal and saying she had been given to understand the jewels would be returned under certain terms. Taylor said:

"The man under suspicion can't get away. We know who he is and can bring him in any time that seems best. When we do act I believe we will solve at least three similar holdups."

He referred to the $37,500 jewel robbery at the home of Zeppo Marx, a $30,000 robbery at Helene Costello's home, and the holdup of Mae West, in which $16,000 in gems was reported taken.

Taylor said the Compson case suspect has been there several years and is a friend of a score of movie celebrities.

4 Taxi Men Slain In Fight Over Girls

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 9.—(AP.) — Four taxi drivers were shot to death last night in a dispute which police quoted Elvira Munoz as saying started over two girls.

The shooting took the lives of Ramon Garcia, 24; Martin Ramirez, 26; Dan Villareal, 27, and Arturo Hernandez, 27.

DAVIS LOTTERY TRIAL DELAYED

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The second trial of United States Senator James J. Davis on charges of violating federal lottery laws in connection with charitable enterprises of the Loyal Order of Moose was called today and postponed until February 13.

Senator Davis was tried alone at his first trial, which was ended by a mistrial, but now three co-defendants are to be tried with him. They are Theodore G. Miller, Bernard C. McGuire and Raymond Walsh.

Postponement was taken today because of the crowded condition of the Federal Court docket.

The lottery trial of the Western Union Telegraph Company, M. J. Rivise, an employe of the company, McGuire and Walsh, on similar charges in connection with enterprises of the Mystic Shrine, was also called today and was postponed until February 20.

'Lame Duck' Hoover's Power Post Choice

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—President Hoover today appointed Representative Samuel S. Arentz (Rep.), of Nevada, to be a member of the Federal Power Commission. Arentz is a "lame duck," having been defeated last November for re-election.

Wayland W. Magee, of Nebraska, was re-appointed to the Federal Reserve Board.

JAPANESE TALK PEACE, MASS MORE TROOPS

Tokio Professes Hope Of Conflict's End as War Clouds Deepen

TOKIO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Despite war clouds rolling up over the Jehol-Manchurian border north of Shanhaikwan, the Tokio government continued to profess hope today that the conflict would be localized and that at least major operations would be postponed until spring, when it admitted the Japanese army intends to "clean up" Jehol.

The General Staff dispatched Maj.-Gen. Nijiro Umezu from Tokio to Tientsin today to investigate the Sino-Japanese clash at Shanhaikwan, the strategic Chinese border city about 150 miles north of Tientsin. It was announced he would investigate the military situation and attempt a localized settlement.

CHANG WILL ARBITRATE

Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, military ruler of North China was reported today to have intimated his readiness to negotiate an armistice between Japanese and Chinese forces at Shanhaikwan.

The Rengo agency and other Japanese news dispatches from Tientsin, China, reported the marshal's apparent readiness and said Japanese expected the parleys to be opened shortly.

Japanese military leaders, however, were closely watching movements of Marshal Chang's troops south of Shanhaikwan and in Eastern Jehol Province.

JAPS DROP BOMBS

Chinchow dispatches said a Japanese air squadron dropped bombs on Chinese troops at Peichangyingtze, province of Jehol, 60 miles north of Shanhaikwan. They were identified as Marshal Chang's 16th and 19th brigades and were reported headed for the Manchurian Railway, apparently to cut the Japanese troops which have occupied Shanhaikwan.

Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto, Japan's supreme representative in Manchuria, was reported to have sent one cavalry regiment to Chinhsi, near the Jehol border, in preparation for eventualities and another cavalry brigade, fresh from the recent offensive in Manchuli, was reported to have arrived at Chinchow and taken on supplies after which it proceeded toward Chinhsi and Shanhaikwan.

Nanking Appoints Minister to U. S.

NANKING, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The national government today announced the appointment of Alfred Sze as Chinese minister to Washington.

Harvard Man Given Hearing in Fraud

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Dr. Joao Frederico Normano, visiting lecturer at Harvard University, held here in connection with a $750,000 swindle in Germany today was remanded to jail without bail after a hearing in which it was averred that he is in this country illegally.

The German government alleged that Dr. Normano in reality is Isaak Lewin, former Berlin banker, who with an accomplice, forged and issued bills of exchange worth 5,000,000 reichmarks.

Australian Flier Overdue in Italy

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Forty-eight hours had passed since the Australian aviator, Bert Hinkler, started from Feltham Airdrome with sufficient fuel for a 24-hour flight, but early today nothing had been heard from him.

Hinkler left the airdrome in Middlesex, England, early Saturday on a solo flight to Australia. He was to have made his first stop at Brindisi, but there has been no news of him from that point.

Chevrolet President Patient in Clinic

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—William S. Knudsen, of Detroit, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, was a patient at Cleveland Clinic today.

Dr. William E. Lower, staff surgeon, said Knudsen's illness was not critical, but he did not reveal its nature.

message around the world, seven times in a second, hardly sounds like "money."

ANDREW WILSON, counsel for the national conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, assures Congress that "beer is a poison, when taken into the human system, and harmful to the community."

That will surprise many, including the ghost of Thomas Jefferson. He recommended an English brewer to the Legislature of Virginia, because he believed that beer would cure the American people of whisky, that in his day ruined half the people and killed many.

Missing Girls, College Men on Honeymoon

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—While parents and police today were engaged in a frantic search for two college students and two local girls, word was received that they had eloped and were married in Hallowell, Me., last Thursday.

The newlyweds, it was stated, are now honeymooning in Canada.

According to word from the Maine town, the couples were married by a justice of peace at the so-called Maine "Gretna Green." They are:

John Macklin, Syracuse University student and son of Paul Macklin, steel magnate; Dwight L. Pierce, Harvard student and son of a Worcester bank official; Marie L. Dubois, daughter of a well-known real estate man, and Evelyn L. Becker, worker in the city welfare department.

MRS. COOLIDGE 'CARRIES ON' AMID CALM OF 'THE BEECHES'

FUTURE PLANS UNDECIDED BY WIDOW

Trooper Guards Home From Curious Onlookers

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The old air of peace and quiet that marked the simple everyday life of Calvin Coolidge's "The Beeches" returned today as his widow "carried on."

Inside the house, Grace Goodhue Coolidge went about the duties necessary to the routine of the estate.

Outside, a lone state trooper paced back and forth beneath the whispering beech trees to shoo away the curious.

NORMALCY RETURNS

Northampton's main street, which echoed Saturday to the shuffling feet of thousands bent on paying tribute to the former president was again the bustling thoroughfare of a small Western Massachusetts community.

Mrs. Coolidge appeared tired as she went about her "chores." Otherwise, she was her usual thoughtful and kindly self. Her son, John, and his wife remained at "The Beeches."

Mrs. Coolidge was uncertain concerning the future. She may make a brief trip to Plymouth, Vt., to visit her husband's grave. After that there was talk of her visiting her son's home in Connecticut. Or she might take a sea voyage.

ATTENDS CHURCH

She attended church services as usual yesterday at the Edwards Congregational Church, where Saturday she heard the funeral rites for her husband. Mrs. Coolidge was driven to the church in the family automobile and she returned immediately to her home after the service.

The Rev. Albert J. Penner, the youthful pastor of the church, who conducted the funeral service, occupied the pulpit. Choosing as his theme "Our Limitations—Or the Beginning of Religion," he spoke on a text chosen from the second verse of the Sixty-first Psalm:

"From the end of the earth will I cry unto Thee, when my heart is overwhelmed: lead me to the rock that is higher than I."

Mrs. Coolidge occupied the pew which she and her husband have long held in the church. During the funeral service Saturday she sat in the first pew with her son, and his wife and President and Mrs. Hoover.

Plymouth Neighbors Hold Coolidge Rites

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The home folks, to whom he came back in death, paid final tribute to Calvin Coolidge yesterday.

They gathered in the neat white Union church across the street from the Coolidge family homestead and conducted memorial services—a funeral service, simple and impressive. It was, in ritual, the same service as that at which a nation Saturday mourned his passing.

It was the idea of Clarence Blanchard, who played with Calvin Coolidge as a boy. Mrs. Lena Rogers, who is in charge of the church, made the arrangements. From the telephone exchange in Bridgewater a call was sent out—the general summons, five short rings and a long one—and those on the rural lines answered.

Before the pulpit stood a wreath from the "neighbors" of Calvin Coolidge. In its center was a picture of the former President.

After the service the wreath was carried in a procession to the cemetery, where a brief service was held. The wreath was laid upon the grave by Calvin Coolidge Rogers, the first child born in Plymouth after Mr. Coolidge was sworn into the office as President by his father in the old homestead across from the church early in the morning after President Harding's death.

Bride Killed as Plane Falls, Mathewson Hurt

MRS. CHRISTY MATHEWSON, JR. . . DEAD IN HUSBAND'S CRASH

Mrs. Mathewson, the former Miss Margaret Philips and a bride of only two weeks since her Shanghai wedding, killed at Shanghai in a plane crash in which her young husband, a pilot and son of the famed ball player, was seriously injured. They fell into a river bank.

MEMORIAL HERE FOR COOLIDGE

A brief memorial in honor of the late Calvin Coolidge was read at the close of last night's service in Shadyside Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr. The congregation sang "Lead Kindly Light," the former President's favorite hymn.

Speaking of the "Underworld" in his sermon, Dr. Kerr said it exists in every city in the world. It cannot be charged to prohibition or any single cause, he said, adding:

"The roots of the underworld do not lie in any kind of legislation. They are rooted in the evil hearts of evil men who traffic in hard liquor, opium, children's milk, steel, or oil, or coal or in the bodies or souls of men."

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Estimates of the value of the estate left by Calvin Coolidge today were set by friends at approximately $250,000.

This estimate included the $40,000 Coolidge home here, "The Beeches," its historic trophies of the Coolidge administration, the Coolidge homestead with farmhouse and acres of woodland and pastures in Plymouth, Vt., and the investments of the late President.

The figures quoted by the Coolidge family friends were only estimates, and if Mr. Coolidge left a will none of his intimate friends knows of it.

Flier Not Told of Wife's Death In Shanghai Crash

SHANGHAI, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Kept in ignorance of the tragic death of his bride of a fortnight, Christy Mathewson, Jr., son of the late "Big Six" of baseball fame, battled for his life in Shanghai County Hospital today.

In his brief periods of consciousness, Mathewson asked about his wife, who was killed when the Chinese government plane which he was piloting in his capacity as instructor in China's aviation school crashed in the Whangpoo River, off Lunghua.

With both arms and his left leg broken and suffering from numerous bruises and lacerations, Mathewson remained in a critical condition.

Hospital authorities believed he would recover, but decided against telling him that his bride had met her death within a few seconds after they had taken off on what was to have been her first airplane ride. The plane was owned by T. V. Soong, finance minister in the Nationalist Government, and was a modern Sikorsky amphibian.

Thirty seconds after the takeoff, the crowd of friends who had gathered to bid the Mathewsons farewell were appalled to see the giant plane apparently get out of control. It faltered and dived, striking the surface of the Whangpoo with terrific impact and then overturned.

The couple were married here on Christmas Eve. Mrs. Mathewson journeyed to China from Philadelphia for the ceremony because Christy's duties made it impossible for him to return to the United States.

WEALTH FADES, ALFONSO QUITS CROWN QUEST

Calls Off Fight to Regain Throne, Lives As Country Squire

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—With his once colossal fortune shrunk to approximately $500,000, former King Alfonso of Spain has resigned himself completely to the life of a modest country squire, temporarily abandoning all hope of once more achieving—great wealth and power by seizure of his departed throne. He has ordered Spanish monarchists to desist from all activities aimed at a coup d'etat.

A visit to the exiled monarch's quarters in a hotel in Fontainebleau disclosed today that Alfonso is less than a millionaire, a restless, somewhat disillusioned exmonarch, who is vainly attempting to find in golf and sedentary occupations an outlet for his once world-renowned "zest for living."

WEALTH LEFT BEHIND

Alfonso left Spain on that historic day when revolution unseated his dynasty with nothing else to his name. He had hoped that Queen Ena would bring enough along with her into exile to make their days happy and without financial worries. But although the queen was accorded permission to remove anything she wanted from the royal palace. Virtually all her possessions, even to her personal jewels and furs, were in storage, and she had neither the time nor the opportunity to retrieve them.

Now the Queen sits at Fontainebleau, spending her time in reading light novels and leading a generally mid-Victorian existence with her daughters at her side.

Alfonso is a prey to restlessness, a victim of enforced lack of activity which ill befits his ebullient temperament and disposition.

EAGER TO VISIT U. S.

He is keenly anxious to visit the United States—has spoken of it scores of times. But a legacy from his ruling days has placed him in an embarrassing position.

At the time of Queen Marie of Rumania's visit to the United States, Alfonso virtually forbade her sister, Princess Beatrice, the wife of his cousin, Don Alfonso, from accompanying her. He insisted that a junket such as Queen Marie planned was not in keeping with the dignity of sovereignty, and as a result, Princess Beatrice changed her plans.

Now Alfonso's order has boomeranged, dooming him to spend his days hunting and golfing in the French countryside and paying occasional visits to his royal relatives in various parts of Europe.

Reds in Spain Repulsed In Attack on Troops

MADRID, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Anarchical Syndicalists were defeated in a pitched battle with police today after they attacked the Carachanchel barracks in the hope of killing the officers and converting the troops.

The attackers were driven off, one was wounded and several were captured.

Reports from Barcelona said the city was in control of armed forces after a Syndicalist outbreak in which two officers and three radicals were killed. Shooting broke out in the center of the city, it was reported, and spread rapidly.

Two were killed in the town of Tarrassa, where Communists attacked authorities.

42 Seized in Raid On Marathon Dance

YORK, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Twenty state troopers under Sergt. Joseph Merrifield and Deputy Sheriff E. R. Jacoby early yesterday closed a marathon dance at the Pirate's Den, a roadhouse near New Cumberland, and arrested promoter and 42 dancers on charges of violating the state Sunday observance laws.

Officers said they had difficulty in awakening some of the fatigued dancers. The marathon has been operating since December 28.

2 MORE FRENCH SHIPS DAMAGED

PARIS, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Two more French ocean passenger ships were reported damaged today, one by fire, as preparations were made to drydock the burned Atlantique at Cherbourg.

An investigation into the mysterious fire which broke out on the Atlantique last Wednesday and which took lives of 18 members of its crew already was under way. An inspection awaited drydocking of the ruined 41,000-ton liner.

The 23,000-ton trans-Atlantic liner France was damaged yesterday by a fire at Le Havre, where she had been docked for the past few months. Firemen and a skeleton crew put it out. Officials said it apparently was caused by a short circuit.

The French passenger ship Angkor, in the Mediterannean and Far East service, was reported held up today at Saigon as the result of the breaking of a propeller blade. Marseilles steamship officials denied a rumor that the accident was the result of sabotage.

Nationalist newspapers have insisted the burning of the Atlantique was a criminal act.

Woman Ends Life After Mystery Call

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Miss Georgia Oliver, 30, a stenographer, shot and killed herself in her apartment last night, police said, a few minutes after talking to a person in New Orleans, La., on the telephone. Preliminary investigation failed to reveal the reason for her act.

Weather Conditions.

There was a rapid change in barometric pressure since Saturday. The low that was centered over British Columbia Saturday morning was centered over Minnesota yesterday and this morning it is over Eastern Ontario and another low appears in the Far Northwest. There is a center of low pressure over Western North Carolina this morning, moving northeastward from the Gulf. It is causing generous rainfall over most of the states east of the Mississippi. The plateau high remains stationary, attended by clear skies west of the Mississippi. There was a change to colder weather over the plains states since yesterday, but there is no zero weather except in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

JOAN FLASHES BIG DIAMOND

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Joan Blondell, movie actress, has come back to the city of her birth for her honeymoon with George Barnes, cameraman.

A huge solitaire sparkled on the bride's finger yesterday as she received reporters. She said:

"Six point five three. Sweet, isn't it?"

Decoded, the numerals were construed to mean that the diamond weighs more than six and a half carats.

The couple was married secretly last week at Phoenix, Ariz., she in a red wig and he in smoked glasses.

FOURTH BULLET IN DEATH CASE

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Discovery of a fourth bullet in the strange fatal shooting of John Andrew Brooks, 25, at the Dunbar home of his estranged wife's parents New Years Day, today led to a reopening of the investigation into the case.

The man's death had been considered solved after a coroner's jury held Mrs. Minnie Wroe, 60, Brooks' mother-in-law, responsible for the killing and exonerated Elizabeth Brooks, 21, his wife, despite her attempts to shield her mother and assume the blame herself.

Previously, Mrs. Brooks admitted firing one shot and Mrs. Wroe two bullets during a quarrel which followed when Brooks was said to have forced his way into the Wroe home while drunk. Brooks died from a bullet wound in the heart.

Mrs. Wroe was jailed three days after Brooks' death.

S. A. KENDALL, CONGRESS VET, ENDS LIFE

Somerset County Man Grieved Over Death Of Wife, Son

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—For months Representative Samuel Austin Kendall, of Pennsylvania, grieved over the death of his wife. He tried to carry on, but the loss was too great. So yesterday he killed himself.

He was found dead in a big leather chair in his office in the House Office Building—a bullet through his head and a new pistol in his hand.

A verdict of suicide was issued after a note was found at the home of the 73-year-old Republican, who served the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania District.

NOTE OF SORROW

The note, addressed to his children, said:

"My work on earth is completed. The sudden death of your dear mother was the most severe shock of my whole life and I have been unable to throw off my grief.

"Every day has added to my sorrow and I can no longer bear my suffering which I have kept from you.

"Mother has been calling me to join her and little Van in Heaven and I can no longer resist the call and am going to join them. Goodbye, Father."

Little Van was a 4-year-old son, Grant Van Nest, who died in 1913. Kendall and his wife, the former Miss Minnie Edith Wiley, of Liscomb, Iowa, had been married nearly half a century at the time of her death last August 22.

Congress adjourned soon after convening today, suspending the session in honor of Kendall and Congressman R. R. Butler, of Oregon.

Kendall was born on a farm in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, November 1, 1859, later making his home at Myersdale. He served 14 years in the House. He was defeated for re-election in November, but a son, Samuel A. Kendall, Jr., said the defeat had not depressed his father.

THREE CHILDREN SURVIVE

Besides Mrs. Grace M. Angus, with whom he made his home, and Kendall, Jr., another son, John Wiley Kendall, survives. They all live here. The funeral will be at Myersdale Wednesday.

The Pennsylvanian was a popular member among the postal employes throughout the country. He was instrumental in getting through Congress, as a high ranking member of the postoffice committee, legislation benefiting postal workers. Frequently he was banqueted by different postal employes' organizations.

Rival Pays Tribute To Man He Defeated

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Representative-elect J. Buell Snyder (Dem.), paid tribute to the late Samuel A. Kendall (Rep.), in a statement asserting the veteran legislator "gave his best to his district and nation."

Snyder, a second cousin of Kendall, said he would attend the funeral services at Meyersdale Wednesday.

FILM DIRECTOR WEDS NO. 4

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Four hours after Eddie Sutherland, movie director, flew away from United Airport, Burbank, Cal., yesterday he was back again from another state with his fourth wife.

She was Audrey Henderson, of Hollywood. Friends said she is not an actress.

They flew to Yuma, Ariz., for a hasty wedding ceremony and returned almost immediately in a plane piloted by J. B. Alexander, who became Sutherland's friend during the making of a recent air picture.

The couple was accompanied by Harry Akst, song writer, and Lonnie D'Orsay, former New York stage director. Sutherland is a nephew of Thomas Meighan.

His other three matrimonial ventures ended in divorce court. First it was Marjorie Daw, then Louise Brooks and finally Ethel Kenyon, all actresses. The latter married Charles Butterworth, New York actor, two weeks ago.

Man Killed, 6 Hurt In Runaway Trolley

SCRANTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A runaway street car careening down a steep hill and toppling over on a curve ended its flight by smashing into a church, killing one passenger and injuring six, late Saturday night.

Company officials said a passing truck hooked and snapped the air brake line, automatically releasing the car's brakes.

Taxi Driver Held In Golfer's Death

GARY, Ind., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A taxi driver, Walter J. Smith, was held for manslaughter today as the result of the death of Glenn Warren Gregg, professional golfer, killed in an argument over cab fare. Smith said:

"He assaulted me, and I hit back."

Gregg fell, breaking his neck.

BLAST KILLING WOMAN PROBED

LEONARDTOWN, Md., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—State, Baltimore and local authorities pressed their efforts today to determine the cause of the explosion which resulted in the death Saturday of Miss Ida Kirk, 76, near Chaptico, Md.

Funeral services were conducted at Christ Episcopal Church, Chaptico, Md., with the Rev. J. T. Gibson, husband of Miss Kirk's companion on the fatal ride, officiating.

Police were running down every possible clue which they figured may aid them in concluding whether a bomb had been planted in Miss Kirk's automobile or the cause of the explosion was from defective mechanism in the automobile. Experts summoned to Leonardtown leaned toward the belief the explosion resulted from the use of dynamite.

Ex-Grid Star Held As Church Vandal

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Accused of desecrating St. Peter's Cathedral here, Joseph Shaner, 20, a former gridiron star, today was held in $1,000 bail. Police reported they captured Shaner in the sanctuary overturning altars, and tearing drapes and priests' robes.

Lindner had his injuries dressed at Allegheny General Hospital and was ordered to report to Police Surgeon Daniel Sable for further treatment today.

MYSTERY MAN IN FAY KILLING

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A "mystery man" was in police custody today as a witness against Edward Maloney, giant night club doorman, charged with shooting to death Larry Fay, a kingpin of Broadway rackets.

Police, refusing to say anything except that he is a "businessman," expected to ask a judge to commit him today until Maloney's trial. Newspapers said he went with Maloney to the Casa Blanca night club January 1 and that he was waiting outside when Fay was shot inside.

The man apparently was a victim of circumstances, police indicated, and had no part in the alleged crime.

Vet Group to Hold Benefit Card Party

A benefit card party and supper well be held tomorrow night by the newly appointed relief committee of the Second Division Association, A. E. F., at the Foodcraft Shop, 319 Fifth avenue. The relief committee included Mrs. Anna K. Diller, L. W. Stevenson, J. L. Sykes, Thomas Morrison, Dr. William H. Leffler and John J. Riley. A reunion of branches is being planned for March 18.

Armed 'Buyers' Rob Auto Salesman

Police today were looking for the two young gunmen who, posing as prospective buyers, robbed O. A. Flotzinger, an owner of the Bingler Company, while he was demonstrating an automobile to them. They took his money and a watch.

'PEN' GUARDED BY 'MOUNTIES'

DORCHESTER, N. B., Jan. 9.—(INS.)—With 60 Royal Canadian Mounted Police on guard, the Dorchester maritime penitentiary was quiet today following a short, fierce outburst of rioting in which one guard and five prisoners were wounded.

The outbreak was quelled by prison guards with revolvers before the mounted troopers, hastily summoned from outlying provincial stations, arrived at the prison.

Although authorities at the penitentiary maintained strict silence it was learned the flareup was part of a long-planned general riot, in which the convicts planned to engineer a wholesale escape. The plot was tipped off to a guard by a friendly convict.

FAMED PIANIST BURIED SIMPLY

ROME, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Vladimir de Pachmann, 85-year-old pianist, whose magic fingers charmed presidents, kings, princes and hundreds of thousands of "just people," was buried yesterday more simply than the ordinary workman who sat in the gallery to hear him play.

This was in accordance with his own wishes, since he said, a few days before he died:

"I have given all my money to help poor musicians, and I don't want an expensive funeral."

A hearse with only three wreaths, followed by an automobile bearing his two sons and his impresario, carried the body to Campo Verano Cemetery without a preliminary ceremony.

There a Capuchin monk read the last prayers. The coffin was opened, disclosing the pianist in full dress attire with a white tie which he always wore while playing at concerts.

De Pachmann died Friday after a neighbor, Father Augusto Arientie, had administered extreme unction. He had suffered in recent years from a kidney infection. Doctors said he would live longer if they could operate, but this the pianist refused to permit.

HUTTON DENIES DIVORCE QUEST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—"As war as I know, Mr. Hutton is not planning any such action."

That was the statement today of Attorney Willedd Andrews in denying a report that David Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, evangelist of Angelus Temple, planned to obtain a divorce.

Mrs. Hutton has secured a passport and will leave soon on a six-month tour of Temple missions in European and other countries. She said:

"I need a long rest."

Hutton said:

"Someone must stay home to manage things, and I'm going to do that. Any report of a divorce is absurd."

Heart Attack Fatal To Bavarian Prince

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Prince Alfons, of Bavaria, died of a heart attack after he had returned home from church yesterday. He was 71 years old. He was the grandson of the Bavarian King Ludwig I, and an uncle of the former Crown Prince Rupprecht.

Surviving are his widow, the Princess Luise of Orleans, and a son and daughter.

StomachFormula Wins Fame

Astonishing Experience Reported. Relieves Stomach Ulcers Due to Acidity

The decidedly different stomach formula, Toma Tablets, created in great laboratories, is bringing results to thousands. People marvel at the way they work. A prominent attorney says, "My father is almost miraculously a well man today after having suffered from ulcers caused by acidity for more than 20 years, and spending a small fortune. His recovery is entirely due to Toma Tablets." A railroad official, relieved, like thousands, tells all his friends. No wonder, then, the use of Toma has spread so amazingly!

Toma Tablets are specially designed for stomach ulcers, indigestion, gastritis, sourness, gas pains, dyspepsia, headaches, heartburn, belching, bad breath, lack of pep, constipation or other disorders induced by hyperacidity. They quickly neutralize trouble-causing acids, soothe inflamed stomach membrane, stop nausea, promote normal appetite. No rigid diet is required.

Don't be tortured any longer. Investigate Toma. Send for free booklet "Your Stomach and You" today.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

My Girl Friday Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: This item is most interesting, I think . . . The dashing beauty on the back covers of the mags lately (that ciggie ad) was originally photographed for Vogue, whose editress thought it was too masculine and so she dumped the picture . . . It was picked up by the agency handling the exploitation for the ciggies Downey and Wons made more famous and is now making a sensation all over the country. Young girls are dressing to look just like her and the mannish hat is fast becoming a fad and probably will top the Empress Eugenie chapeau . . . And if you notice the ad carefully, you will note what probably will be another fad among the girls—wearing wedding rings on the wrong hand . . . The milliners, needless to add, are thrilled and happier than ever . . . Among the things the papers neglected to say in their comments on the passing of Belle Moskowitz was that she gave Billie Dove her start in the magic lanterns. A long, long time ago, Mrs. M. thought Billie looked promising and gave her a chance in an advertising film which was seen by a movie magnut, who signed her. . . .

You might inform the readers that persons who recently have taken ether should not have permanent waves. The wave won't always stay put . . . A lad in the South, who does a column, has written a book, "Pardon My Plagiarisms," and it is all about U. S. A. columnists . . . Helen Hayes is to be co-starred with Jean Harlow in a touching something called "Sex Appeal" . . . Iz Elinson just phoned . . . Said that he sees that Paramount is suing Dietrich for delaying production . . . And he supposes they'll now be calling her Marlene (LAGS) Dietrich . . . Also that Miss 1933 has been here but a week and he learns that she had to pawn her safety pin! . . . Your old pal, Willard Keefe, who inspired your weekly letters in Life a few years ago, and is now in H'wood doing plenty pretty, has a Phillipino chauffeur and a veddy British brown tweed suit . . . Outside of that he is normal.

Rudy Valinsky has just finished a 16mm movie of his Maine lodge, complete with subtitles by his famous brother, Bill Vallee . . . Sam Berman, the caricaturist, will start sketching the Algonk habitues (and their sons) . . . One of the more famous jewel stores on 5th Ave. let out 30 men on New Years Eve and is operating on a skeleton force . . . The owner of one of the most prominent laundries and his squaw are plotting to wash their dirty linen in the open instead of his laundry . . . Jimmy Walker, I hear, is finally leading that private life he talked about. He now goes about with a four and five-day beard on his face . . . Throw an orchid at Jack Price for his excellent book, "How to Be a News Photographer." . . . Very interesting . . . One of my chums in Hollywood writes me that she knew Malin was going to make good there in his night club on the night of the opening, when he indifferently looked over the celebrities in the assemblage, and niftied: "Contrary to the usual custom in places like this, I'm not going to introduce anybody. You all know who you are—so why should I tell you?"

As a result of your mentioning that Arnold Johnson purchased paintings from young and obscure artists, and then permitted the artists to exhibit them in his own home for other buyers, Johnson has been deluged with embryo Rembrandts. A lot of them have genuine talent and Johnson wonders if you know of anyone who might be interested . . . Art Arthur, the Eagle's new columnist, is doing splendidly, but he's had his first ache because Variety said that he might lost the job when his predecessor returns from the Coast. It isn't true, and it would be swell if you so announced . . . There has been a controversy in one reader's house and they want you to settle it. What is the singular form of "dice?" . . . As if you didn't have other problems, huh? . . . Wild rumors about the fate of Roxy persist . . . He may not return to the job . . . Waiters' Union maintain that the picketing going on in front of certain speaks isn't over vengeful and exiled owners of the spots . . . The Union says the strike was called to stop the gag of waiters never getting wages. And must depend on tips.

Joe and Leo's have a new trick. They throw cocktail parties and there is no tariff for cocktails. Merely at $1.50 admission fee . . . This is on Fridays only at certain hours . . . Jack Eigen phoned and pointed out that Crime Does Pay! . . . To the movie maestros who made "Little Caesar," "Fugitive," "Public Enemy" and so forth . . . Elsie Bartlett has shelved the stage and husbands to grow oranges and grapefruit in Florida . . . Say! What's the lowdown on the Larry Fay Murder? . . . If any, I mean. Max Steuer as defense attorney at no fee has the editorial rooms thinking all sorts of things.

Tony Wons, on the air the other morn, asked me what had happened to all the financial geniuses since the Big Crash. He got a letter from an ex-advertising mogul, who said a great many of them started turkey ranches out West. Their flocks ranged from two to eight thousand. As a result, the market was flooded with turkeys and the price fell from 50 to 19 cents a pound. So they are going broke all over again! . . . At least $50,000 worth of satisfaction on the French debt is ours . . . A famous perfume firm in Paris spent that much advertising in American mags and due to a delay of some sort, not a drop of the stuff is obtainable in this country—hurray! . . . Playchoice, which selects the best show every month for its subscribers, should pick the play version of "Maedchen" even though Krimsky, who presented the movie, is the head of Playchoice . . . One of the reporters whose luck turned sour, and who has been mistaken for you often in the night places, is now a doorman for one of them.

Webster, in trying to hand you a credit line in the Trib Thursday, credited you with a gag that you panned "Take a Chance" for using—it is so whiskery . . . Nomatter, his stuff is grand . . . The theater ticket agency in the Grand Central Terminal still displays a poster showing Lora Foster somewhat undraped. Miss Foster quit the stage for good five years ago when she married Jack McGowan . . . No chance of your going to Miami Beach . . . Remote wire charges would cost $4,000—so how've y'been? . . . Your first week brought almost 20,000 sample requests, by the way—happy? . . . Nothing else exciting. Walter, 'cept that Harold Seton, who has a famous collection of over 10,000 old theatrical photos, says he doesn't know just how old Fannie Ward is—but that he once saw a picture of Fannie holding a baby on her lap—and the baby was Marie Dressler!

Mary to Hire Three Male Leads

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.

In the face of an acute shortage of film heroes, Mary Pickford proposes to solve her own future problems and to make a good business investment by signing three well-known leading men to long-term contracts.

The three she has in mind are Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Charlie Farrell and Johnny Mack Brown.

Like all of Mary's plans, this deal has been brought to a halt by the death of Jack Pickford, but she will go on with it as soon as she returns to her studio problems.

It is not only Mary who has experienced difficulty along these lines. Just a few weeks ago, RKO was trying frantically to find a suitable vis-a-vis for Constance Bennett. And readers of this column will recall the endless juggling before Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer finally was able to borrow Gary Cooper for the Joan Crawford picture. Hollywood is really crying for handsome young men—but the hitch is they must have established followings.

Joan Crawford

Mary figures that Buddy Rogers, Charlie Farrell and Johnny Mack Brown fulfill this qualification. She believes she could easily keep them busy at other studios when not using them in her own pictures.

The star's current film, "Secrets" is completed. Bravely hiding her grief, she returned to work last Wednesday and made the last scene of the picture at 3 o'clock Thursday morning.

Pending the arrival of Jack's body she will devote little time to film activities.

* * *

Wouldn't I like to stand in Jack Gilbert's shoes. Friday was the day his contract called for him to receive a check for $250,000. It's the last instalment, but even so . . . Tragic about the suffocation of Barry Connors, playwright and screen scenarist. He was one of the best-liked writers in Hollywood and he and Philip Klein were the most prolific team at the Fox studio. Just before Connor's death, they had received their new assignment, the adaptation of the Broadway play, "I Loved You Wednesday."

John Gilbert

Bob (Cupie) Smith, star guard on this year's Colgate team, is the latest football star to knock at the studio gates. Within a few hours after his arrival in Hollywood he received a bid for a screen test at Fox . . . Kay Francis, who is becoming one of our busiest commuters, plans to fly to New York as soon as she finishes her current picture. Object, to see Ken McKenna, of course.

* * *

One of the few stars who prefers hotel life to a home, Ricardo Cortez has decided to furnish his suite in the Beverly Wilshire with chairs, tables, etc., of his own choosing . . . Unknown to them, patrons of a certain gas station at Laguna Beach often have their cars serviced by Slim Summerville. Slim's best pal is the owner of the station and he often helps out at night.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, Pittsburgh favorites, return to the Nixon tonight. With them will be a foremost writing man of the stage, Noel Coward, and they will all be acting in his new comedy, "Design for Living." Cleveland had the honor of the premiere performance last week, but we have the privilege of seeing the new play prior to its New York opening. All Forest City critics agreed, after the opening performance, that it appears to have the qualities to make a hit, as all of Mr. Coward's plays have been.

* * *

Next week the Nixon will go movie. The attraction will be "The Sign of the Cross," big spectacular production based on the prosecution of Christians by the Emperor Nero. The leading roles are played by Fredric March, Claudette Colbert, Elissa Landi, Charles Laughton, Ian Keith and Harry Beresford. It is a Cecil B. DeMille production based on the stage play.

Goona-Goona In Davis

By MANUEL M. GREENWALD

The sudden attention to the island Bali, where Utopian bliss is said to reign supreme, brings to the Davis and Regent another primitive screen drama in "Goona-Goona," which means, in the native, "love-powder."

It is a delightfully enchanting piece centered around a simple narrative of triangle love among two natives and a prince. The whole thing is excellently photographed and performed with disarming sincerity, but there are stretches of pure travelogue entwined in the story, and there are obviously certain passages deleted.

Nevertheless, "Goona-Goona" is pleasantly diverting, and met with approbation of capacity audiences that greeted it Saturday. The women are beautiful on this unbelievable Bali, where life and death move in sweet, uninterrupted progress.

Broadways of the World
All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

GEORGE THE FIFTH HOTEL, PARIS, FRANCE.—Well, here we go for a dive into the middle of the far-famed Parisian night life. As I stated in my last article, the size of the crowds in all these places is absolutely amazing. I don't know how they're making out along money lines, but I do know that they draw plenty of patronage. And surely that's a mental satisfaction, if nothing else.

I trust you don't mind me harping upon the number of people who hit the night spots in this city. There's a definite reason for it. You see, I've been studying night club conditions in New York for plenty of years. I've seen night clubs and big speakeasies on Broadway make from $15,000 to $20,000 weekly under the prohibition act. And I've seen the depression come along and exact a deadly toll.

Thus by the time I left Broadway for this extended trip things in the night club line were as bad as they could possibly be. Outside of the Cotton Club, which cannot be considered a Broadway night club for the simple reason that it is situated in Harlem, there was but one other cabaret in New York that was doing any real business.

So I leave New York and its sickly night life and I begin my travels. I strike Italy, which harbors little night life, and I proceed to North Africa, which offers even less. Suddenly I hit Paris—and wow! Even in its palmiest days Broadway never offered the joints that flourish in this city.

Don't be misled. I am not referring to undercover places. I am speaking of advertised cabarets that depend strictly upon drawing a large number of customers in order to make the places pay. And don't you imagine for one moment that there is any cafe in Paris that can give me a kick, no matter what they show me.

No, my kick arrives in seeing the crowds that these joints draw. And there's another kick, too. In every spot I enter I am immediately taken for a sucker.

And now for some of the spots. First of all—"Bricktop's." One of the better places. On the night I was there, three-quarters of the guests were dressed in evening attire.

A fairly good colored band plus Mabel and Louis to entertain you. No use telling you about Mabel and Louis; all Mabels and Louis in these clubs are pretty much the same. Both colored, Louis slaps himself, leaps into the air and mutters "hot cha," while Mabel walks around and sings the latest songs as she thinks the composers intended them to be sung. Mabel is often mistaken.

An unusual character in this joint is a photographer who marches from table to table with his camera. If he is permitted to do so, he will make a picture of a man and woman at a table—at the small cost of $5 a shot.

Yet the mug seems to do fairly well. Every once in so often some dope on a champagne jag consents to a picture with an arm around his girlie.

The Sphinx. A night club designed essentially for those who expect to find a spot exactly like this in Paris. It's quite a large cafe and the decorations are well done. There are about 30 hostesses, all of them nude from the waist up.

The music consists of some phonograph records that are shot through a loud speaker and have a sad effect on the ear drums. It's impossible to sit in the Sphinx more than 15 minutes without calling for a check and hitting the air. I defy any one to stand the place much longer.

It's interesting to sit near the door and watch the so-called respectable folks as they enter from the street and get their first glimpse of the nude hostesses. For example, while I was there, a middle-aged and—presumably—highly respectable American couple entered the place.

The couple sat down at a table only a few feet from mine. As the hostesses danced past, I heard mamma talking.

"Awful," she kept saying. "Terrible! To think that such places are allowed to exist! I can hardly believe my eyes!"

Within 10 minutes, they were on the way out. Her chin in the air, mamma walked ahead with a firm tread, looking neither to the right nor the left. And papa was acting along similar lines. He was dying for one last look, but he felt it became him to be quite blase.

Does such an experience hurt these people? I think not. Mama will spend the next day in writing to Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Abbot, and telling them how terrible it all was. When she gets back to America, she will deliver a special lecture on France before the Ladies' Aid Society—"girls under 18 not to be admitted."

And papa,? Well, you can imagine him with the boys in the office when he gets back.

THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Neglect Is Cause of Oily Skin

"Pityriasis" is the name given to the most common of all skin disorders. With it is an oily, crusted or scaly condition of the skin. This results from a disturbance in the glands of the skin.

Dr. Copeland

When the disease is confined to the scalp it produces that familiar trouble known as "dandruff." The doctors call it "seborrheic dermatitis." Dandruff may be of the dry-scaly, or the moist-greasy variety. It is frequently associated with loss of hair and possibly pronounced baldness. Some of the authorities regard baldness as the effect of an infection of the hair follicles, made possible by neglected dandruff.

An annoying form of pityriasis has excessive oiliness of the skin. The forehead, cheeks and nose are the parts usually affected. The skin follicles or openings are widened and there may be an enlargement of the superficial blood vessels. In this condition the face always looks unclean, because particles of dust adhere to the skin.

The cause has never been positively determined but, as I said, pityriasis is believed to be due to some glandular disturbance. It is more common in women than in men, and in dark complexioned individuals rather than blondes.

Lack of proper food or use of food deficient in protective vitamins, is a cause that must not be overlooked. Persons who lead sedentary lives, with little exercise, fresh air and sunlight, are prone to it. Those who are susceptible to infections frequently suffer from this annoying skin disorder. Pityriasis is particularly common in sufferers from constipation and other digestive disturbances.

I am confident that many cases of pityriasis can be traced to the neglect of personal hygiene. The skin, particularly of the face and hands, is daily exposed to dirt and germs. It should be thoroughly washed at least twice a day with an abundance of luke warm water and soap. Negligence of this simple precaution leads to skin irritation and actual disease.

Please remember that the texture of the skin differs in individuals. Some skins demand frequent cleansing, while others thrive on little care. The skin that is oily will hold more particles of dust and on this account requires more thorough cleansing.

I am often asked what is the best soap to use for the skin. A soap that is pure, mild and without irritating ingredients is the soap of choice. Pure castile soap is beneficial for sensitive skins. Avoid soaps that are highly perfumed and irritating to the skin.

It must be kept in mind that skin disorders may resemble one another in appearance, but differ in cause and treatment. There are several forms of dermatitis or inflammation of the skin. Each has its peculiar needs as to treatment.

May I warn you against the unwise use of salves and patent medicines. Let your doctor examine and prescribe for you.

Answers to Health Queries

A. M. K. Q.—What causes the palms of the hands to blister and peel off?

2—What do you advise for pimples?

3—What should a girl 18, 5 feet 6½ inches tall weigh?

A.—This may be due to eczema. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

2—Diet and elimination are important in the correction of this disorder. Eat sparingly of starchy and sweet foods, as candy, cake and pastries.

3—She should weigh about 126 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

Household Hints

To loosen a glass stopper in a bottle, put one or two drops of sweet oil around the stopper and place it a little distance from the fire. When the bottle is quite warm strike the stopper with a stick with a cloth wrapped around it, first on one side and then on the other. This will loosen even the most obstinate stopper.

The box of a carpet sweeper should be frequently opened over dampened newspaper, the dirt emptied and hair and lint cleaned from the brushes with a button-hook, coarse comb or old scissors. The mechanism should be kept properly oiled.

To remove a fresh grease spot on a rug, cover the spot with blotting paper, then press with a hot flatiron. Cover the spot with magnesia, let it remain for 24 hours, then brush off.

Pickled cabbage will remain crisp if a small piece of washing soda the size of a nut is added with the spice to the vinegar.

After knitting a sweater lay it out flat, place a damp cloth on top of it, and press flat with a hot iron.

When peeling apples for tarts, rub your fingers with the peel before washing them, and it will remove all stain.

Be Careful in Dealing With Men Who Have Moods

He's a grand lad—but he "has moods."

So now, after popping the question 67 different times, until Mary finally said "yes," he's telling her he's changed his mind, and "doesn't want to be serious!"

So what's a poor gal to think—and do?

What would you do, sissy, if he were camping on your trail?

Would you "go on as we were," as he wants Mary to do? Or would you hand him his hat and tell him to close the door—going out?

Dear Elsie:

I have quite a problem on my mind, and I would like you to help me with some of your good common sense, if you will.

Six months ago I met John, and began to go out with him now and then. At that time we were only going to be friends, nothing more. But it wasn't long till we fell in love, and John asked me to marry him.

After he proposed and proposed to me, I took him dead seriously and said "yes," and began to plan for the future. Then the queer part started. He is really a fine fellow, but he has "moods." He gets into "thinking spells," and will stay in them for days. And now I don't know what in the world is the matter, but at times he won't see me, even, for a week at a time.

IS PUZZLED

Of course, when that happened first I was worried. I called him up to find out what was wrong. I thought he might be sick. When I phoned he wasn't in. But the next day I received a letter from him, saying that he "didn't want to be serious," but that he expected to go on just as we had been, before he asked me to marry him.

Now I have tried to be everything that he admired in a woman—clean, sweet and understanding—but this certainly has me puzzled. I don't know what to think.

What do you suppose was wrong? We never quarreled, and my folks treated him like one of the family. I just can't understand it at all. I forgave him the first time this happened, but it has happened several times now, and I don't know what to do.

What is your advice? What is wrong? Why does he act this way? MARY.

MUST WATCH STEP

What is wrong?

I suspect several things are, sissy. First, it is quite likely that you've bored him, trying too hard to be the "kind of girl he admires." Quite likely he fell in love with you because you were yourself—a new and exciting adventure. And when you tried so hard to please him, you lost your color and individuality—and he lost most of his interest in you.

On the other hand, his moody spells are something else again. And something not so good. So watch your step, honey. It may be that the fault is not yours at all. He may be too wishy-washy to make up his mind, too changeable to depend on, too much absorbed in himself and his own jitters to make any woman happy. Or he may be just plain afraid of responsibility.

So I'd do plenty of thinking before I took him seriously. Use your head. Size him up. Decide, now, whether he is really worth hanging on to. If you think he is—if you think you can stand his moods, and still love him—then give him a break, but don't give him all your time unless he is willing to make up his mind definitely what he wants.

Go out with other friends. Give him a little competition. Make him work to win your admiration—and cut him out if he sulks.

That will hurt, of course. But it won't hurt half so much as running along at loose ends, as you are now, and coming to a real smash later.

Fay King Cautions Against Unwisely Spending Too Little

By FAY KING

Today I would say a word to those who quite innocently are doing much harm during the depression.

They are the ones who in good times may have spent too much money foolishly, but now they are just as foolishly spending too little.

They can still afford to spend, but have swung to the other extreme out of sympathy for those who cannot. They feel guilty to buy and enjoy what they can still afford, in the face of those in need.

From being foolishly extravagant, they have become foolishly economical. They forget how many jobs and salaries are dependent upon their patronage.

Charity can never take the place of work. Spend what you can where you can. Spending pays salaries and insures employment.

Sam Brixton Walks Into the "Chief's" Trap

I caught my breath sharply as Sam Brixton hastily arrogated to himself the task of writing the "stalling" note to the kidnapers. I am sure that everyone else in the room, save Sam himself and Helena, had realized that my father's ostentatious drawing of pen and paper to himself had been a sort of trap.

"How's this?" Sam said at last, lifting his head and holding the paper near his eyes as he read:

"We have been working all day to get together the staggering sum you have named, but no matter what happens it is an impossibility to raise it in so short a time. You evidently are mistaken in us. We none of us are rich, and you must know what the present state of usually good securities is. We are making every effort to do as you demand, and have some money ready. Please let us know what is the lowest sum you will take. In the meantime we are going on, straining every nerve to raise every cent we can. It will ruin us, but we will do it. Can't you have a little pity?"

He handed the paper over to my father.

"You've signed it," my father commented.

"Yes," Mr. Brixton answered, a bit confusedly. "I thought it would be better if we all signed; give 'em an idea we were keeping faith with 'em, don't you think?"

"Oh, assuredly!" my father said quickly. "That is, if you parents sign. They probable don't know the rest of us are on earth."

AGREE WITH BRIXTON

"Don't you ever believe they don't," Mr. Brixton retorted, but added quickly, "there's nothing gets past babies like those."

"Do you want me to sign it, Sam?" Helena quavered. "It seems as if I were signing my baby's death warrant when you are quibbling over money like that."

"We're not quibbling, darling," her big husband told her, and his eyes, to my fancy, were suddenly tortured as he looked at her. "If necessary, we'll accept Mr. Veritzen's offer; but if we accept their terms right off the reel, they're apt to think we're easy, and demand more before they let the girls go. Don't you all think so?" He turned to the rest of us.

"Absolutely!" "You're right, old man." "That's the ticket!" My father, Dicky and Harry spoke almost at once, and Sam Brixton nodded satisfiedly.

"You see, darling?' he adjured his wife. "They all agree with me that this is the best thing to do. Lillian thinks so, too, I am sure; don't you, Lil?"

PARENTS SIGN NOTE

But Lillian would not look at him. I saw a sudden, faint tremor pass over her face like a shadow, then she spoke, slowly but emphatically.

"It is the only wise thing to do, Helena," she said. "I am sure of that. Sign it, dear, right after your husband, and then Harry and I will sign."

"All right," Helena quavered. "I'll sign it." But her fingers trembled so that she had to stop several times before she had completed her signature.

"You next, Lillian," she said childishly, and Lillian affixed her signature to the letter with a firm hand and passed it to her husband. When he had signed it, he handed it to Dicky.

"That's your job now, old boy," he said. "Have you got the directions?"

"Copy of Marion's letter in my pocket," Dicky returned. "Circle that little plateau three times, and dip twice, to let them know I'm the right party. Then drop this inside a pasteboard box. Then I'll beat it, for it's a cinch that nobody'll come out into the open until I'm miles away from there; but of course somebody will be watching from the woods nearby."

"Why nearby?" Sam Brixton demanded quickly. "They wouldn't take a risk of putting their heads in a trap. They'll be watching that airplane from as far away as they can get, and they won't come after that box until it is dark, I'll bet five to one on that."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Appropriate Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young married couple have recently moved into their new home and within a week or so expect to have a housewarming party. My wife claims that a gift for the house should be given the hostess at this party. I claim that this would be bad taste. Am I right? H.

Such a well-meant and thoughtful gift certainly couldn't be considered bad taste, for it couldn't help meaning our good and friendly wishes for the happiness of the new home. Such a gift isn't necessary, but I don't see how a charming something - for - the-new-home could be misinterpreted by this couple. If your wife wants to have you both make this generous and friendly gesture, I think that you should agree to do it. Your wife probably remembers similar gifts made to your home, when it was new, gifts that made her happy.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

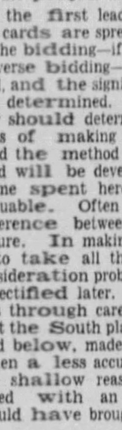
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Planning Your Campaign

I have often stressed the major importance of making a plan of the play of the hand as soon as the first lead is made and the cards are spread on the table. The bidding—if there has been adverse bidding—should be reviewed, and the significance of the lead determined. Then the Declarer should determine the prospects of making the contract and the method by which the hand will be developed. A little time spent here can be very valuable. Often it means the difference between success and failure. In making a plan, failure to take all the factors into consideration probably cannot be rectified later.

It was through careful planning that the South player, with the hand below, made his contract when a less accurate plan or more shallow reasoning, if confronted with an unusual play, would have brought about defeat.

The North and South hands were:



South—Dealer.

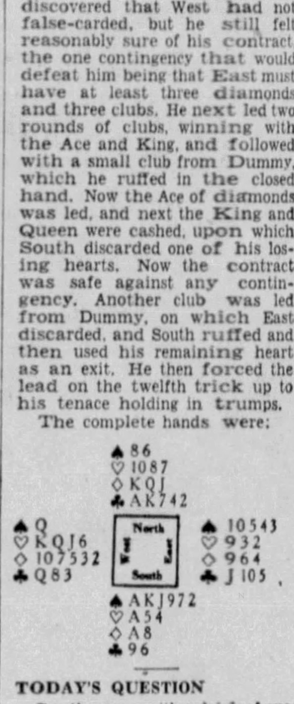
North and South vulnerable.

The eventful contract was six spades, East and West never entering the bidding:

West's opening lead was the heart King, and South, when the Dummy went down, could see that his contract quite probably depended upon a successful finesse in the spade suit, as he had one heart loser unless the clubs could be established without the loss of a trick in trumps and his remaining heart discarded on a long club. South, therefore, won the first trick with the Ace of hearts, and led the spade Ace, upon which West played the Queen, thereby probably marking East with a holding of four trumps to the Ten originally.

One manner of play now would have been to enter the Dummy, lead the remaining spade and finesse, but the player who held this hand thought he could see a better chance with another line of play, and, after careful thought, laid down the spade King. As anticipated, he discovered that West had not false-carded, but he still felt reasonably sure of his contract, the one contingency that would defeat him being that East must have at least three diamonds and three clubs. He next led two rounds of clubs, winning with the Ace and King, and followed with a small club from Dummy, which he ruffed in the closed hand. Now the Ace of diamonds was led, and next the King and Queen were cashed, upon which South discarded one of his losing hearts. Now the contract was safe against any contingency. Another club was led from Dummy, on which East discarded, and South ruffed and then used his remaining heart as an exit. He then forced the lead on the twelfth trick up to his tenace holding in trumps.

The complete hands were:



TODAY'S QUESTION

South opens with a bid of one club, and North responds with a bid of one spade. What should South now bid with the following hand, with no intervening bid?

♠ J 8 ♡ A 5 ◇ Q ♣ A Q J 10 8 7 6 5

Answer: Four clubs. This Jump Rebid is not Forcing. However, it is the strongest kind of an invitation to North to make some further bid if holding but slight values in addition to those shown by the initial one spade response.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

A pleasant pill is the pillbox silhouette for hats. A smart new model is a pillbox mounted on a bandeau to give height to the back. It is of black astrakan and the bandeau is trimmed with gardenias.

There is no rival to the charm of black and white. A glorious evening wrap, a full-length coat, has a bodice of white velvet, while the skirt portion is of black velvet. It has a lavish collar and swirl cuffs of silver fox.

Go away for a cruise and choose clothes that can be worn during the following spring and summer. A most useful coat that should yield long service is a white model in rabbit's hair and wool in a ribbed weave. It has a white fox collar. The same model is being made in gray or light beige with fox collar dyed to tone.

PARK MURDERS LINKED IN QUIZ

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Similarity of the slaying of Rose McCloskey, 19-year-old unemployed salesgirl and the serious injury of her escort to the unsolved killing of a young couple in Williston Park, Nassau County, N. Y., was investigated today as police sought a solution of Philadelphia's latest murder mystery.

Rose was found with her head crushed and her throat cut in Fairmount Park last Friday morning. Several hours earlier, Dennis Boyle, 30, was discovered wandering along the street a few blocks away.

Since then, he has lain in a hospital alternately conscious and unconscious, able to give police little help in their inquiry, and unaware of the girl's death.

Police disclosed that a number of young couples have been attacked in the park recently and said that more than 40 detectives are seeking two young men, alleged members of a group which frequents a spot near the death scene. The two have been reported missing since the night of the attack.

CITY'S SAFETY LEAD GROWS

Pittsburgh's lead in the national traffic safety contest continued through November with a greater percentage reduction in accidents from 1931 than any other large American city, a report of the National Safety Council to the city Bureau of Traffic Planning reveals.

The reduction was 31.2 per cent, or 112 traffic fatalities for the first 11 months of 1932 as compared with 156 in the corresponding period of 1931.

While leading in accident reduction, Pittsburgh ranked ninth in accident rate per 100,000 population with a rate of 18.9. Milwaukee led in this respect with a rate of 13.2 per 100,000 population unit.

Pope Presides Over Canonization Session

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Pope Pius presided at the reading of a final decree of canonization yesterday for the Blessed Andre Fournet, founder of the Daughters of the Order of the Cross, and a decree of beatification of the Venerable Maria Pelletier, founder of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, which has many chapters in the United States.

OBITUARY

Funeral services for Miss Violet Elaine Troilo, 20, who died Saturday at her home, 822 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, will be held at the home at 8 a. m. tomorrow, with services at 9 a. m. in the St. Bernard's Church, Mt. Lebanon. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery. Miss Troilo attended the French School, of New York, and was a member of St. Bernard's Church. She leaves her mother, Mrs. Carrie Troilo; three brothers, Nicholas G., of the Troilo Theatrical Enterprises, and Leonard R., leader of Len Leslie's band, both of New York, and Dr. Cam Troilo, and three sisters, Miss Mary Avis Troilo, Mrs. Virgil Caputo and Mrs. Vincent Marino, all of Pittsburgh.

Ralph Dow Waid.

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 9.—Ralph Dow Waid, 44, a civil engineer with the T. W. Phillips Gas Company, died yesterday in his home, 415 North Washington street. He leaves his widow, Kathryn Dickson Connelly Waid; a daughter, Ann Patterson Waid; his mother, a brother and three sisters, who reside in Oil City. Mr. Waid had long been attached to the Phillips Company. He attended Allegheny College at Meadville, was an ex-service man and a member of the United States Army Officers' Reserve Corps. He spent his early boyhood in Oil City. Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be in Butler Cemetery.

William J. Langenheim.

William John Langenheim, former Pittsburgher, died Saturday at his home in Ventnor, N. J. He was the son of Gustav Langenheim, and had been associated with his father in the wholesale grocery firm of Langenheim & Shepard. Besides his widow he leaves a son, Hay Langenheim, of Los Angeles; two sisters, Flora E. and Gertrude A. Langenheim, and a brother, A. H. Langenheim, of Pittsburgh.

Cipher 39 Difficult, 4 Hours Allowed

CIPHER NO. 39

By S. C. ZIONTS

SWI VELRF KEFOT SU ZRISGOP SWIV VWASJ ET ZLARRAIMV.

Here is a tip that may help on this cipher. Take a look at an English book. Tomorrow a further tip will be published.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor

Original Cipher No. 39 is handed to us by S. C. Zionts, of 608 Law and Finance Building. It's a tough one. Don't get gray haired on account of it. If you do it within four hours you are lucky.

"Bogie" mastered it after a lot of hair-pulling, taking just three and one-half hours.

The originator of this cipher says:

"I believe it to be both novel and simple and am curious to see what the results will be."

The Cipher Editor believes you will get quite a bit of enjoyment out of this cipher. Now go to work.

Now for Cipher No. 38. That was easy. Looking at the table chart printed today should solve your difficulties if you had any.

E. X. Schoppert, of Hastings, Pa., and E. E. Baker, of Coraopolis, who sent in original ciphers should send in others with different messages. Their first were out of season, before the Cipher Editor could use them. But their good wishes were nice.

Garfield's Grandson To Wed on Thursday

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Miss Margaret Maxwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Maxwell, of Glen Cove, Long Island, will be married Thursday afternoon to James A. Garfield, son of James R. Garfield, of Mentor, O., and grandson of the late President, James A. Garfield.

The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Howard F. Whitney, at 660 Park avenue, New York City.

Cricket Game Stirs Fatal Bombay Riot

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A bounding cricket ball which struck a Pathan pedestrian led to serious rioting in the Sluma area here yesterday. Two Moslems and one Hindu were killed and 26 persons were hurt.

The trouble began when the Pathan was struck by the ball from a child's bat. He began to threaten the playing children. A Hindu watchman challenged him and words developed into blows.

'MATS' TO KEEP JOBLESS WARM

If Father Cox was not resourceful he could not be successful in the big job he has on hand in caring for the needy and the jobless who flock to him by the thousands for aid.

Just now he is putting into practice an experiment that bids fair to meet with success. It will be recalled that when he was a lad he was a newsboy and that he paid all of his expenses at the Duquesne University by selling newspapers. This job brought him into contact with the newspaper offices. Now, although the public is not familiar with the operation, Father Cox knew that every Sun-Telegraph page is moulded in the stereotype rooms through the "mat" process.

These moulds are made of clay and wood pulp, baked at a high temperature, and form a heavy sheet of stock—each the size of a newspaper page.

Saturday the [illegible] thought came to Father Cox that these "mats," after having served their usefulness in the production of the Sun-Telegraph could be employed as an interlining for buildings, and he has taken a load of them to be used on the interior of the shacks at Shantytown and Coxtown. In a way they will take the place of plaster board. Father Cox also will distribute these "mats" to families in homes that are far from cold-proof. It is an experiment, but he is sure that it is going to work out successfully.

In the meantime the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph drive for subscriptions is meeting with gratifying success. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page brings a liberal cash commission to his unemployment relief fund.

"Chesterfields taste Better"

WE HAVE been telling the public for a good many years that Chesterfields taste better. They satisfy!

That wouldn't mean a thing if smokers found out that it wasn't so. Nobody can fool the people very long.

But a great many smokers have smoked Chesterfields for a long time, and they know that they taste right. And so they say to their friends, "If you want a cigarette that really tastes better, try Chesterfields!"

Chesterfields taste better because they are made of mild tobaccos that have been aged for two years. And there is just enough Turkish in them ...but not too much.

We are sure that you, too, will enjoy their Mildness and Better Taste.

TARKINGTON -:- 'Maud, Cousin Bill;' Fu Manchu -:- DRAMA ON AIR

Oldfield Tells Auto Race Thrills

A new series of "Maud and Cousin Bill" dramatic sketches by Booth Tarkington, distinguished novelist and one of the first outstanding authors to write specially for the microphone, has its premiere over an extensive NBC network with KDKA as the Pittsburgh outlet tonight at 6 o'clock. The programs will be heard daily except Saturday and Sunday at the same hour. The sketches will deal with the adventures of two small-town children typified in Tarkington's books and stories.

Mr. Tarkington

Barney Oldfield, famous old-time automobile racer, comes to the air via NBC-KDKA tonight at 7:30 to give the first of three reminiscent talks as guest speaker on the Five Star Theater program. Oldfield also will be featured on the broadcasts Wednesday and Friday. The mad comedy of Groucho and Chico Marx, in Hollywood working on their forthcoming motion picture, "Cracked Ice," is also on the program tonight.

Program Pointers

Another of the Parent Education programs is offered on WCAE at 6. Entitled "Why Is Nancy Shy?" the feature includes a talk by Dr. George H. Mohr, director of the Child Guidance Center, and a dramatization by Mrs. Saul Lavine, Miss Margaret Lavine and Herbert Spencer.

Ed Sprague's account of the Duquesne University-Washington University basketball game is put on the air from the Duquesne gymnasium by WWSW at 8:15.

Jimmy Murray, former newspaper sports reporter, opens a new series of daily broadcasts on KQV at 8 p. m. . . . Immediately following Murray's chat, another new feature, Jack Hilfinger's Trio, has its debut.

Ennio Bolognini, celebrated Argentine 'cellist, appears as guest soloist with Morgan L. Eastman's orchestra at 10 on WCAE.

"Gopak," by Moussorgsky; "Thru the Years," from Youmans' musical production of the same name, and "Eri Tu," from "The Masked Ball," by Verdi, are highlights of Lawrence Tibbett's WCAE-at-8:30 offering.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Superstitions . . . Loretta Poynton, heard as Jane in Thurston's programs, has only one—she always wears a hammered silver good luck bracelet given her by an old Indian just before her first NBC audition . . . And with Friday the thirteenth just a few days away, Groucho Marx threatens to stay in seclusion; Graham McNamee is looking for a rabbit's foot; Paul Whiteman, who doesn't like crowded elevators, will climb stairs; May Singhi Breen is having her husband, Peter de Rose, who worries when he spills salt, send her the biggest bunch of flowers he can find; Annette Hanshaw plans to wear her lucky dress; the Pickens sisters are going to throw salt over their shoulders, and John S. Young will be shaved only by a veteran barber.

Miss Poynton

On the other hand, Nellie Revell is going to walk under a ladder, raise an umbrella in her home, toss her hat on the bed and stone a mirror. She'll even kick a black cat if she has a chance. And Lewis H. Titterton will invite the worst by staging a mirror-smashing, fate-defying broadcast over NBC-WEAF at 7 p. m. Friday.

About the disappearance of Gracie Allen's brother . . . Apparently the scheme has fallen through, so-o-o-o-o: It seems that it was all a stunt plotted by the agency that employs Rudy Vallee, Eddie Cantor and Gracie. Gracie was to have butted into Vallee's program—which she did, and then last night she was to have repeated the performance during Cantor's hour . . . but NBC ruled that it would not help a rival act in a build-up scheme and the script was changed when Gracie appeared with Rudy and with Cantor . . . and if you noticed that Gracie was faded off the air for a few minutes Thursday night, the reason was that Vallee picked up the original and overruled script, greeted Gracie and asked about her brother. Both were faded out by the control man.

Globe-Trotter On Air 4 Times

Going on the air from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, relays the latest news to WCAE and WJAS listeners four times daily—at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

The Sun-Telegraph Family, a special program for the children produced under the direction of Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum, is listed on WCAE at 4:45.

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Remember the story of the sinking of the Tuscania? The U-boat captain told one version which was altered somewhat by our Police Lieut. Ed Kirby, a survivor of the disaster. The lieutenant's explanation has been borne out by R. P. Taggart, of the Homewood American Legion who, with Irvin Cobb, was a passenger on the Baltic, 300 yards ahead of the Tuscania when she was hit. It was 5:45 and still daylight even if the other version does make a better story, Taggart avers.

Peggy Jane Kearns is studying Japan at school and the class has popped this fast one in our direction. Who owns Manchuria? That's what the Manchurians want to know, too. Japan says that it is an independent state, now called Manchukuo, ruled over by Henry Pu-Yi, who, authorities declare, is merely a Japanese puppet. The Chinese claim it as theirs. Now I'll ask you one. Who owns Manchuria?

Did you know that last year James S. Crawford, Mayor of Duquesne and Councilman E. H. Fey served the city at a dollar a year salary in order to ease the budget?

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Maytair —With— Patricia Pitt

Now that the season is over, society women will find time for the opening of the Pittsburgh Morning Lecture Series. They'll go to the urban room of the William Penn Thursday morning to hear about that much-discussed world figure, Hitler.

Dr. Emil Lengyel, born in Budapest, and a journalist and author, and a lawyer, too, by the way, will give his impression of the man.

You'll notice that the series is to be held in the urban room this year—quite in keeping with the growing informality of all events these last few months.

Of course some of our social leaders are serving as patronesses for the lecture series. The list includes such sought-after patronesses as Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, Mrs. George B. Berger, Jr., Mrs. J. H. Vaughan Blaxter, Mrs. James B. Drew, Mrs. Howard Heinz, Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, Mrs. Frank A. Leovy, Mrs. James H. Lockhart, Mrs. Thomas M. Marshall III, and Mrs. Bennett Oliver.

Giving Support

Others are Mrs. John C. Oliver, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Mrs. James Hay Reed, Mrs. J. Hanson Rose, Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. Homer D. Williams, Mrs. William P. Witherow and Mrs. Edward A. Woods.

* * *

Paying a visit to Atlantic City, and stopping at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall are Miss Sarah M. Bennett, of the Ruskin, and Dr. C. K. Murray and family, of North Homewood avenue.

* * *

Word has reached us that the junior George Harton Singers spent the holidays at Palm Springs, Cal. They were joined by Mr. Singer's sister, Mrs. R. H. Semple.

Visit In West

Others who've stopped at Desert Inn, Palm Springs, include Miss Irene McKinney, who, with Mrs. Robert L. Spencer, of Wynnewood, motored to the Pacific coast.

* * *

The Vassar Alumnae will meet Thursday at 3 o'clock in the Twentieth Century Club with Mrs. Charles Dahlinger and Miss Eleanor Kelly as hostesses and Miss Grace R. Kelly at the tea table.

And the guest of honor will be the executive secretary of the Associate Alumnae, Miss Mildred H. McAfee, who'll be the house guest of Miss Eleanor Grier.

Aides at the tea will be Mrs. David Jackman, Mrs. Walter N. Lissfelt, Mrs. Oliver J. Keller, Mrs. Robert T. Rhodes, Mrs. S. Brainard West, Miss Helen Jackson, Miss Eleanor Grier, Mrs. Carl I. Collins, Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy, Mrs. Charles T. Siebert and Mrs. Arthur Little.

SQUARE NECKLINE IS FEATURE OF THE NEW SPRING FASHIONS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 9. — There is much talk, in Paris fashion circles, of the new square neckline. It is forecasted as one of the big fashion features for spring. It is scheduled to appear in all types of clothes, from active sports garments to formal evening gowns. Many of the newest evening gowns seen in Paris recently show this new neckline—especially at the back.

* * *

THE STYLE is said to have originated (in its 1933 version) with the bathing suit. Women who wore square-backed bathing suits at the Riviera last summer found that they stayed in place, and gave a smart, tailored trim look to the figure. When they turned to square-back evening clothes, they found them to have an added virtue—a new medium for wearing jewels. Immense clips may be worn at the corners or along the base of a square back decolletage with startling effect.

* * *

MOLYNEUX WAS one of the first to revive the uses of the square neckline. He put it into his midseason show in a good many ways—accenting its reappearance in every way possible.

* * *

FOR EXAMPLE, there is the big flat incrusted bow that is the trimming of the majority of his new dresses. In the black street dress in today's sketch it furnishes the only decoration—along with matching bows put into the sleeves just above the wrists.

* * *

BOTH DRESS and matching jacket are of black djalap—the woolen fabric which seems to have little hairs along its surface. Black astrakan makes the sleeves and collar of the jacket.

While FLU is around Be Doubly Careful of COUGHS

At this time you MUST take all possible precautions! Even if you get only a slight cough, don't fiddle around with it! Don't wait until it has clamped itself into your bronchial tubes. But DRIVE the cough out of your system—CLEAN it out so that it won't come back.

Make-shift remedies may give you temporary relief by "deadening" throat nerves. But the cough only "plays dead." Doctors say that a prescription which really KILLS the cough, calls for three actions.

Smith Brothers Cough Syrup gives you this "Triple Action." Gives it quickly. Gives it safely. It (1) Clears the Air Passages. . . That stone-on-your-chest feeling leaves you. The rawness in the bronchial tubes is relieved. (2) Loosens Phlegm. . . You get rid of the germ-laden, choking, dangerous phlegm. (3) Is Mildly Laxative. . . Helps you to cleanse your bowels.

You can trust this cough syrup—trust it implicitly. It is not made by Mr. X.Y.Z.—some unknown patent medicine manufacturer. It is made by Smith Brothers—since 1847 America's cough relief experts.

Perfect for Children's Coughs!

Smith Brothers Triple Action Cough Syrup is the approved remedy for children's coughs—because it contains NO NARCOTICS. It can't upset the stomach. It can't nauseate. In fact, children love the taste. . .

Coughs often come in the middle of the night. Be prepared. Get a bottle today. And don't accept anything "just as good." Insist on Smith Brothers Triple Action Cough Syrup.

Studies Outline To Be Given At P. T. A.

Teachers will outline their subjects on Thursday at the meeting of the Taylor Allderdice Parent-Teacher Association. The program will be by Miss Helen Bigge, vocalist, with Mrs. Adriaan Freni accompanying, and the Marionette Club under the direction of Miss Marion Sutch. Dr. C. S. Cuden, president of the association, will present the National Honor Society emblems.

On Thursday evening the January meeting of the Wilkinsburg Senior High School unit will be held with D. R. Dohner speaking on "The Educational Value of Art."

Emily Shadle and Laura Reiter, two high school students, will play several xylophone duets.

Norman L. Park, director of safety for the Pittsburgh Motor Club, will give an illustrated talk on "The Art of Safe Driving" before the Samuel Hamilton Parent-Teacher Association tomorrow afternoon. A motion picture will be shown in addition to slides picturing mistakes which lead to motor accidents.

Colloquium Entertained By Mrs. Ralph L. Smith

Mrs. Ralph L. Smith is entertaining the Colloquium Club at her home in Wellesley avenue this afternoon. The theme of the afternoon's study is Mexico, with "Former Civilizatons" as Mrs. Clara B. McCombs' topic: "The Spanish in Mexico" being discussed by Mrs. Harry Thompson and "Peasant Arts and Handicrafts," by Mrs. John McKibben.

Mrs. Rosstead Hostess To Bellevue Outlook

The Bellevue Outlook Club is being entertained this afternoon by Mrs. O. B. Rosstead, of North Fremont avenue. With "Famous Women" as the general topic, roll call is answered by quotations from famous women and Mrs. J. W. King has short biographies.

"MOIST THROAT" FOUND SECRET OF COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drugstores, 60¢.

Knoxville Library Club To Hear Ann Macpherson

Miss Ann Macpherson, librarian at South Side Carnegie Library, will be guest speaker this evening for the Women's Library Club of Knoxville in the Knoxville Junior High School auditorium. Miss Macpherson's topic is "So I Went to England." A piano ensemble has been arranged by Miss Stella R. Phillips and Miss Naomi Marxen. Mrs. C. B. Crutchfield will review current events and Miss Millie DuVall has the customary book review.

A benefit card party is scheduled by the club for January 26 in King's School auditorium.

'Wonderland of Science' Subject for Tourists

"The Wonderland of Science" is the topic announced for today's meeting of the Tourists in the Congress of Clubs. As a sub-topic "Exploration by Airplane Photography" is given. Mrs. A. A. MacLachlan has "Peru;" Mrs. E. J. Cullen is talking of the Isle of Man, where she once lived, and Mrs. J. W. Fecker has been assigned "Through the Looking Glass" as her subject.

Birth Control Law Group Head to Address Club

Dr. Albert Van Dusen, chairman of the national committee on federal legislation for birth control, will speak on "Eugenics and Euthenics" when he addresses the South Hills College Club tomorrow evening in the Dormont New Century Club. Christine Miller Lucas will add soprano solos to the program.

"Such a Headache I could Scream"

"When I woke up in the morning I would have such a headache I could scream. My back ached, too, periodically, and I felt miserable and tired out. I had heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound since I was a little child, so I decided to try it. I feel stronger now, not so tired, and the headaches are better."

MRS. W. A. THOMSON

SCHOOL BOARD SCORES REALTORS IN TAX ROW

POLITICS

Pinchot Deal for Senate Post Seen

—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—Because of the kaleidoscopic play of politics which will run through this session of the Legislature there will be some strange stories written out of Harrisburg involving the speculative future of some more or less eminent Pennsylvanians.

Mr. Shields

But none will be stranger, or apparently farther from political logic than the story printed in the East last week that, should Senator James J. Davis lose his seat in the United States Senate, Gov. Pinchot will appoint Public Service Commissioner P. S. Stahlnecker to the vacancy, with a view to having Stahlnecker and himself run for the two senatorial seats that thus would be in the gift of the voters in 1934.

It just doesn't make sense in a state even as politically chaotic as Pennsylvania is today, probably to be more so in 1934 when the state-wide primary is held for the United States Senate, Governorship, Congress and the Legislature.

Evidently this story became blindly interwoven with the other report that the Governor, should an appointment be within his power, would name some Senator who would agree to serve only for two years, stepping aside for the Governor when his own candidacy is launched two years hence—as it most surely will be unless there is a change in the situation with the passage of months.

* * *

Would Use Place As Trading Material

The Governor may make such an appointment. But if he does, if he limits the term of the appointee, it will be with a view to using the place as trading material in a bargain with the organization to insure him either the remainder of the Davis term, four years from 1934, or the term of Senator Reed, which would extend two years longer.

The Eastern story said that Pinchot and Stahlnecker would run with Justice John W. Kephart, of the Supreme Court, who would be a candidate for Governor. This arrangement delivered to the Governor body and breeches Gen. W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at the moment the chief force behind the undoubted ambition of Justice Kephart to be Governor.

It is not so easy as that.

Gen. Atterbury is a shrewd trader, for one thing. He would realize for another, that in return for getting to the Senate, for either four or six years, the Governor would be willing not only to put the governorship in the pot, but the other Senatorial seat as well. Pinchot would be in the position, if invited to trade at all, of not being able to demand a Senate seat for himself and an associate.

Additionally, the Governor and Gen. Atterbury are bitterest enemies. That barrier might be broken, political expediency having cured many hatreds and sundered many friendships. But I am told that Gen. Atterbury no longer is the tremendous power in Philadelphia politics he was once.

* * *

Would Be Setback For Western Area

And what of the West? What would the industrial empire west of the mountains, which now boasts both United States Senators, say of the bargain? True, Justice Kephart geographically might be credited to the West, a native of Cambria County, but if he should ever reach the executive chair at Harrisburg it will be through the political force of the East, and not the West.

Furthermore, why should the Governor name Stahlnecker? What has the Public Service Commissioner, former secretary to the Governor, to exchange for such preference? What political strength could he add except such as already is the portion of Mr. Pinchot?

The answer to that is none, because the lives of the two men for years have run in exact parallel. If such an appointment falls to the Governor he will select some man who can contribute items which not now are possessed by the Governor's inner circle, to which Stahlnecker belongs.

Of course, this whole discussion may be blown out the window by eventual fact that there will be no vacancy for the Governor to fill. If Senator Davis is tried and acquitted of the lottery charges facing him in Federal Court, there is small belief that the Senate will take up the question of his right to his seat. He will have been given a clean bill of health by a co-equal branch of the government, the judiciary.

The Democrats will not have the spur of close political control, for their majority in the Senate will be safe, no matter who is Senator from Pennsylvania. Moreover, some of the hard-boiled regulars among the Democrats would be quite as well satisfied with Davis as with a Pinchot appointee.

And, as final suggestion, if Senator Davis comes through scathless, then he may have much to say about the deals in 1934, particularly as to who shall be Governor. It should not be forgotten that the Senator, justifiedly or not, is probably the best individual vote-getter in Pennsylvania—and he might want to be Governor himself.

Reunion Tomorrow For Turn Verein

A reunion for members of the Lincoln Turn Verein of Pittsburgh and for their wives and friends will be held in the Kleman Hotel, East Liberty, tomorrow evening. A banquet at 7:30 will be followed by dancing and entertainment. Albert Kaelm, W. Schneider and L. Weber comprise the committee.

CAFE OPERATOR FACES BLAST INQUIRY

Explosion, Fire Cause Damage to Produce District Building

A produce district restaurant operator faces additional questioning in connection with the fire and explosion that resulted in $3,000 damage to a three-story brick building at 1801 Penn avenue, early today.

City Detective Michael Tortorelli arrested Meril Michelucci, 34, of 1201 McLaughlin Run road, Bridgeville, proprietor of Meril's soda grill in the burned building, after the reported discovery of gasoline-soaked rags and a gasoline container in the building.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg today released Michelucci on $2,000 bail for further hearing, following his arraignment, at which Tortorelli testified concerning the rags and gasoline container.

The restaurant had been closed since Saturday midnight. It occupied the first floor. The two upper floors were vacant. Police said A. Plitman, of 5531 Hays street, was the owner.

The force of the explosion blew out show windows in the restaurant, hurling glass to the middle of Penn avenue.

Fire Capt. George Andrews was cut on the right hand by glass, but continued on duty.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Jan. 9. To Mrs. Coolidge:

Mrs. Coolidge, your husband's head rests today not alone on his Vermont soil, but pillowed on the sincere tributes of the millions he had served. Every writer has written of the amazing hold he had on his countrymen, and they attributed it to various causes. Now that he is beyond the receipt of more honor, what about the "amazing hold" you have on our people.

Will Rogers

Naturally you aided your husband's career, all wives do that. But what made you so beloved by the people? Over night you were swept into the highest position that can be held by an American woman. Other "first ladies" had had perhaps greater advantages, training, background, and social distinction. But you showed that which teachers, travel, and social association can't compete with, something that was born in you, a native dignity, a sincerity, a modest graciousness that endears you to all.

Calvin Coolidge left a great lesson to our government in "common sense." Yours is just as great lesson to your sex, in a homely loveliness, and above all a consideration for the feelings of others, which constitutes a "real" lady, be she pauper or queen.

Yours, WILL.

'BUY AMERICAN' PLAN AIDED BY BOROUGHS

Dormont, Avalon Join In Drive to Bring Back Prosperity

Dormont and Avalon have joined the "Buy American" forces to aid the fight to reopen American factories and crush unemployment.

Councils of both communities unanimously approved the campaign, being sponsored by the Hearst newspapers, manufacturers, labor unions, patriotic organizations and many others.

Councilman Charles B. Phillis presented a resolution to the Dormont group, urging that every resident of the borough pledge to buy American-made goods. In Avalon, Councilman Robert Beitel presented a similar resolution, with President P. L. Jarrett presiding.

INDORSED BY VETS

Likewise, Greater Pittsburgh Chapter, No. 8, of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, indorsed the plan, Commander Norman A. Robinson declared, adding:

"We believe the plan will return men to work, which makes us vitally interested in it. The veterans will hold their state convention January 21 and 22 in the Fort Pitt Hotel, when they plan further action on the campaign."

Further "Buy American" activities are planned during the week by various community groups. Members of the Business Men's Association of the East North Side will hold a "Buy American" meeting Wednesday noon in St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, East street; New Kensington's Kiwanis Club meets Thursday noon, and has invited all the manufacturers of the district to attend.

In Tarentum Thursday night, the Tarentum Taxpayers' Co-operative League will hold a "Buy-American" and tax-reduction rally.

BACKED IN NEW YORK

Joining the long list of individuals, organizations and communities already spurring on the "Buy-American" campaign from coast to coast, the City of New York's principal executive body, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, has gone on record unanimously for the campaign.

Heading the board, Mayor John Patrick O'Brien and every other member, voted on a resolution which declared that a return to normal American prosperity was being retarded by the floods of cheap foreign-made goods . . . that American workers are being deprived of their rightful wages, and that it is apparent the condition can be corrected if the principle of buying American-made goods is adopted.

KIN CLAIM TWO DEAD HERE

Two bodies have been saved from paupers' graves, although funeral services were held for them at the county morgue Saturday and preparations were complete for their cremation, it became known today with receipt of a telegram and telephone call resulting from many weeks of investigation by morgue attaches.

The heretofore unclaimed bodies were those of William Connelly, 38, of Shantytown, and R. Shank, for whom no address was on the records.

The telegram was received yesterday from Mrs. Mary Connelly, of Boston, identifying one of the men as her husband. Almost at the same time, Greensburg police telephoned the Coroner's office to delay Shank's burial because his brother, Modestias Shank, will arrange for a funeral.

County Awards Park Aide $6,000 Damages

Langfitt Amount Is Highest for 58 Claimants

Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt received $6,000 in property damages, the highest award received by any of 58 owners along extension No. 2 of the Babcock boulevard reconstruction project, according to the records of the Board of Viewers.

Although Langfitt's property was actually increased in area to the extent of 1,414 square feet, he contended in a hearing before the viewers in January, 1931, that he was damaged $8,000 by reason of blasting and interrupted drainage.

The damage awards which the viewers have been making in general have been made the subject of an attack by County Commissioners, who have instructed the County Solicitor to prepare legislation for submission at Harrisburg which would take the power away from the Board of Viewers and place it in the hands of committees of citizens.

Langfitt was represented before the viewers by Attorney Harold M. Irons. Witnesses were produced who said that the roof was damaged by falling rocks, the plastering cracked throughout the house and the chimneys and foundation walls weakened.

It was testified that after a fire about three years ago, the house had been put in first-class condition.

Sewer lines from the house were cut by the construction and cost $845 to replace, it was testified. More drainage would be required, it was stated, to carry away water from the lawn, said to be flooded after every rain.

Nat Canter, testifying for the county, placed the damages to the Langfitt home at $5,350. The final award of the viewers was $6,000. Owners of either side of the Langfitt property received $3,500 each.

CLOSED BANKS' ASSETS LESS

Uncollected assets—represented in part by uncollected stock assessments—in two closed downtown banks were considerably reduced, according to statements issued today by C. O. Thomas, receiver for the Bank of Pittsburgh and the Duquesne National Bank. The statements covered periods ending December 31, 1932.

Total assets accounted for in the Duquesne National statement amount to $8,529,561.93. Total cash collected from assets and stock assessments is shown as $1,197,637.98. Total losses charged off were placed at $15,554.14. Uncollected assets include $444,400 of stock assessments, being part of the $500,000 levied on shareholders November 30 by the Comptroller of Currency.

Total assets accounted for in the Bank of Pittsburgh statement amount to $61,533,164.88. Total cash collected from assets and stock assessments is $35,589,150.92. Total losses charged off total $1,577,518.25. Uncollected assets amounting to $20,836,467.32 include $636,275.82 of uncollected stock assessments.

Takes Longer to Make Laws Than to Forget Them

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Let's look at how the government of the people moves its wonders to perform down in the district of Gallumpia.

The Democrats vote against the Republicans. The Republicans reciprocate with real Oriental courtesy.

Senator Borah votes against them both. On the baked Idaho theory that nothing can be good if you didn't thing of it first.

The committee on nobody's business indorses a bill. The House yeighs or neighs. The Senate yesses or nose. The President okays or kayos.

All of which requires a year for a minute's relief. When the bill becomes a law we forget what it is all about. Yet, Mr. Volstead would have it that a lapse of memory is illegal.

There is no law against a man holding his own memory in his lapse.

CRASH OF PLANE INJURES TWO

Forced by engine trouble to make an emergency landing in a field near Forest Hills, a pilot and his passenger were injured when their plane struck a rut and overturned late yesterday.

The pilot, Harry Fogle, 28, of Wilkinsburg, suffered a fractured nose. The passenger, whose name police did not learn, was stunned.

Police said the motor of the plane, which had taken off from the Wilkinsburg airport, apparently went dead as the plane circled above Forest Hills. Selecting a cleared field on a hilltop near Ridge avenue and Braddock road, the pilot made an emergency landing. As the plane taxied across the field it struck a rut and overturned, pinning both occupants beneath it, police said.

The men crawled from the plane and Fogle was taken to a physician's office for treatment. The landing gear and wings were torn from the ship and the propeller cracked in the crash, according to witnesses.

McKeesport Woman Killed on Auto Trip

LEWISTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The body of Mrs. Joseph Wozniak, 39, of McKeesport, mother of five, killed in a motor crash, was taken to her home yesterday.

She was in an automobile which rolled over several times and struck a fence Saturday night. Andrew Lasota, 28, of McKeesport, the driver, may die of a fractured skull and other injuries, doctors said. They were returning from New York, where they visited Mrs. Wozniak's two daughters.

NO CONFIDENCE IN PROBERS, SAYS LETTER

Experts Accept Posts For Educational Survey Here

The Board of Public Education today made what it says it hopes will be the final declaration in the controversy between it and the community research bureau of the Real Estate Board, in a stinging letter addressed to R. L. McKallip. The letter is an answer to one written by the research bureau last Wednesday, attacking the school board.

Simultaneously with publication of the letter the school heads announced that 24 of the 25 members of the Citizen Committee on Business and Financial Procedure to weigh business and financial questions concerning the school system have accepted their appointments.

EXPERTS TO MAKE STUDY

The Board also announced the acceptance of a committee of nationally-recognized experts in the education field to consider the educational problems in Pittsburgh. This committee includes Dr. George D. Strayer, Columbia University; Dr. Charles H. Judd, dean of the School of Education, Chicago University; Dr. John W. Withers, dean of the School of Education, New York University, and Dr. Herbert S. Weet, superintendent of schools in Rochester, N. Y.

The school board's letter reads in part:

"We have said that we have lost confidence in some of the members of your bureau. We first came to this regretable conclusion when, after pointing out to you an error of $600,000 in your estimate of our receipts for next year, you came back to us two evenings later with a prepared typewritten budget in which an item of $600,000 was included twice.

PROCEDURE ASSAILED

"We were very much discouraged, too, when you and the executive secretary of your bureau, in the presence of various members of the board, urged that somehow or in some way we should effect some slight reduction in the millage so as to strengthen your hands when you approached the City Council and the County Commissioners."

JOINT ENGINEER MEET SET

H. P. Charlesworth, president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and vice president of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, will address a joint meeting of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania and the Electrical Engineers tomorrow night in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

H. P. Charlesworth

"New Frontiers Through Research" is the subject of Mr. Charlesworth's address, pertaining to the expansion of telephone service between continents. He will describe the network of wire and radio channels involved.

An especially interesting phase of the discussion will be the explanation of how secrecy is obtained in radio channels.

Preceding the meeting a buffet supper will be served to the members and guests, followed by sound pictures concerning cable manufacture and laying.

Members of the Institute of Radio Engineers, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Club and student branches from the Universities of Pittsburgh, West Virginia and Carnegie Institute of Technology have been invited.

NEW $90,000 CHURCH LOCATION SPLITS CONGREGATION

'Rebels' Begin Work On Own Edifice In Greenfield

Because the members of St. John's Greek Catholic Church, Forward avenue and Saline street, could not agree on the location of their new $90,000 structure, the dissenting members of the congregation are planning to build their own church.

The Rev. Stephen Kozak in discussing the breach in his church group said today:

"I have sent a petition to church officials asking them to prevent building a new church. The church law does not allow the organization of another congregation unless conditions justify."

Nevertheless 100 families, who broke away from the mother church, have started the excavation on their church property in Greenfield avenue. It has been named St. Mary's Greek Catholic Church and will be built at a cost of $25,000. All the work is to be done by the members so as to cut expenses. Matey Yalch, 592 Greenfield avenue, president of the new congregation said:

"We did not think it worth while to invest $90,000 for a church on Forward avenue so we broke away. It is a poor location and too far away for the people coming from Hazelwood, Bates street and Soho."

Yalch explained they are now holding mass in Guthrie Hall, Greenfield avenue, until the new church is built. He added:

"We started without a red penny, but we are bound to have our own church."

Fear of Gun Results In Wound for Wife

Mrs. Loretta Riffle, 23, of 100 North St. Clair street, was in serious condition in the Pittsburgh Hospital today, indirectly because she was afraid of a revolver.

While removing the gun from her pillow yesterday to "put it out of the way" in the pantry, she accidentally pulled the trigger, sending a bullet into her stomach, according to police.

Her husband, William, was questioned by police, but was released when Mrs. Riffle told them she was alone at the time of the accident and was taking the revolver from her bed because she was afraid it would discharge.

PRINCESS REPORTED OUSTED FROM FRANCE FOR POLITICS

POLE DECLARES NATION WORKS FOR PEACE

Leader Here Defends Homeland on Debts, Denies Militarism

Denial that Poland is a militaristic, undemocratic nation with imperialistic designs was made today by F. B. Starzynski as spokesman for the Central Council of Polish Organizations in Pittsburgh, referring to an editorial in the Sun-Telegraph on December 21 on the debt default.

Explaining the reason Poland defaulted, Starzynski said:

"You may possibly know that Poland finds it increasingly more difficult to make her annual interest and debt payments as the world-wide depression continues. When Poland signed the present debt amortization agreement with the United States in 1924, she failed to anticipate the present calamitous depression.

RITS INTEREST RATE

"Poland's debts to the United States are exclusively for the purchase of foods, clothes and medical supplies which Poland needed immediately after the war to preserve the rest of her population from starvation, pestilence and disease. In this debt are included the high salaries of the large corps of American workers and other huge administrative charges incurred by America in the relief work in Poland. For this debt Poland is paying a rate of interest which is from three to five times higher than that paid by most of the other foreign debtors of the United States.

"In spite of the depression, Poland has maintained herself on the gold standard and by supreme sacrifices has been able to stabilize her currency. A payment of Poland's share of the war debts at this time would have seriously affected Poland's financial structure and would actually be suicidal. For these reasons, Poland requested Washington to reconsider her debt agreement with the view of revising her interest rate and yearly payments.

PEACE TREATIES

"In this editorial you state that Poland is militaristic, militant, that a sword-rattling Poland is conducive to German uneasiness, and that a sword-rattling French-supported Poland is a constant warning to the Russian Bear. Your reference to German uneasiness inspired by Poland is really ridiculous in view of the fact that the German military machine and Germany's greater natural and man power resources are inproportionately greater and more powerful than Poland's. Your accusation that Poland is militant is false, since Poland has successfully negotiated non-aggression treaties with all her neighbors and has for some time been trying to negotiate a similar treaty with Germany.

BACK DISARMAMENT

"Poland is actively sponsoring every attempt aimed to disarm the world and has even propagated a concept of 'moral disarmament' which is gaining more prestige daily. Only one who has not the slightest conception of political events or who has been away from civilization can claim that 'a sword-rattling French-supported Poland is a constant warning to the Russian Bear.' You well know that only recently F[illegible] and Poland have signed a b[illegible]eral non-aggression treaty wh[illegible] calls for submission of all difficulties to a board of arbitrators. You also know that since that time Russia and Poland have opened up far-reaching business relations.

"You must know that France for some time has been trying to draw similar treaties with Russia. And, in spite of all these facts, your editorial prefers to maliciously refer to Poland as a militant, sword-rattling threat to world peace."

BUY U. S., GLASS SHOW SLOGAN

"Buy American" is the slogan of the annual trade showing of the Associated Glass and Pottery Manufacturers which opened today with headquarters in the Fort Pitt Hotel with buyers from many parts of the country in attendance.

Depleted stocks of retail establishments are expected to stimulate buying, according to C. H. West, associated president. Orders for delivery within three or four months are expected to total a quarter million dollars.

"Buy American" electric signs greet the buyers in the lobby, while throughout the display rooms of the country's largest manufacturers in glassware, chinaware and pottery placards continue to herald the suggestion. Enthusiastic support to the campaign, originated by William Randolph Hearst, is being given by all the manufacturers.

Within a half hour after opening of the show, which is not available to the public, buyers registered from the largest establishments in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Detroit, Norfolk and other cities. The show, annually held here, marks the largest buying period in the industry.

Youngstown Society Girl Killed in Crash

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 9.—Miss Jane Andrews, 23, society girl and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Andrews, was killed early yesterday returning from a dance at an airport night club, when the automobile of Allan Corey swerved off the road and struck a pole. She died in Corey's arms on the way to a hospital.

Miss Betty Bunn, another society girl, was killed recently in a similar accident while returning home for Christmas from Western Reserve University.

Now 'Prince Mike' Has Impersonator And Is He Angry!

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—"Prince Mike" is incensed. Somebody is impersonating him.

Harry F. Gerguson, former pants presser who has got himself great gobs of publicity by posing as "Prince Michael Romanoff," learns with indignation that an impostor passed himself off as "Prince Michael" at a Broadway party. He said:

"Of course, I'm flattered, but I resent the imposition."

Train Hits Jobless Man Hunting Coal

Jobless, Charles Koss, 37, of 608 Second avenue, Homestead, sought coal to warm his family along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near the West Braddock bridge. He failed to notice an approaching train. It hit him, fracturing his right leg. Koss was taken to Homestead Hospital.

Gunmen Hold Up East Liberty Store

A few minutes after M. A. Baker, manager, opened the A. & P. store at 424 Collins avenue today, two gunmen entered. While one kept Baker covered, the other took $50 from a cash register. They fled in an automobile, in which they had left a companion.

Grocery and Linen Shower for Babies

State Labor Group To Map Program

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Delegates to the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor gathered today to outline a legislative program.

Unemployment relief is one of the major subjects and others include workmen's compensation, the old age pension amendment, unemployment insurance, the "yellow dog contract," minimum wages for women and minors and laws relating to payment of prevailing rates of wages on public work.

HINT STEPHANIE SOUGHT AID OF ROTHERMERE

PARIS, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The newspaper Quotidien published today an unconfirmed rumor that the Hungarian Princess Stephanie of Hohenlohe-Waldenburg-Schillingsfuert has been expelled from France for mixing in international affairs.

The newspaper said rumors from Biarritz declared she was an intimate friend of Lord Rothermere, the British publisher, and that she had been promised money if she succeded in obtaining publication of anti-Polish articles in Lord Rothermere's newspaper.

The Quotidien recalled the recent rumor that the 36-year-old princess had been arrested and expelled from France on a charge of espionage, which was officially denied.

ROTHERMERE FRIENDLY

Lord Rothermere frequently has shown a friendly interest in affairs of Hungary since the World War and was considered a leading champion in the movement to free Hungary of war responsibility and to bring it relief from treaty impositions.

Princess Stephanie, nee Richter, was born in Vienna and married Prince Francis of Hohenlohe-Waldenburg-Schillingsfuerst in London in 1914. They have one son and were divorced in Budapest in 1920. She has been living in late years in France.

The house of Hohenlohe was founded in the twelfth century and is one of the leading noble families of Europe.

RUMORS NOT CONFIRMED

BIARRITZ, France, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Rumors that Princess Stephanie of Hohenlohe-Waldenburg-Schillingsfuerst lived here or had been expelled could not be confirmed today.

It was learned that a Polish man, whose name was unknown, had been expelled.

Man Found Dead In South Side Home

SUNDAY MOVIE AIDS PARISH

Grocers in the East Liberty district are today putting in rush orders for canned and package goods, stocks of which were depleted Saturday by the 10,000 people who attended the benefit Sunday show at the Sheridan Square Theater. This benefit was for the poor of Sacred Heart parish and food only was accepted as a ticket for admission.

The theater was crowded from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until late at night, the show running continuously. Manager J. O. Hooley personally took charge of all details and the Rev. Father E. Lawrence O'Connell of Sacred Heart Church, with the members of the Emerson Club of his parish, handled the donations. The Rev. Father Thomas F. Coakley, pastor of Sacred Heart, was also present.

It is estimated that there were no less than 15,000 packages of food donated for the poor through this benefit. The Warner Brothers' management donated the theater and the program, and all the employes, including the motion picture operators and the stage hands, gave their services free. The greater part of the advance publicity appeared in the Sun-Telegraph.

PLANE AND BODY FOUND IN SEA

NAHANT, Mass., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The airplane in which two Harvard students crashed into the ocean off here December 29 has been located and the body of one, Donald Mackay Frost, Jr., of Boston, taken from the wreckage. The body of Edward Mallinckrodt, III, of St. Louis, could not be found.

The search for the plane had been carried on at the instigation of Mallinckrodt's father, wealthy chemical manufacturer.

A highly sensitized instrument operated by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey located the plane on the ocean's floor. A diver descended and took Frost's body from the forward cockpit. Aviators aiding in the search believe Mallinckrodt, riding in the rear cockpit of the open plane, had been thrown out.

The students were on a pleasure flight during the Christmas holidays when the accident happened.

MUSIC

Pittsburgh Symphony Society and Elisabeth Oppenheim
Syria Mosque

PROGRAM

Prelude to "Lohengrin" ..... Wagner
Symphony No. 7 ..... Beethoven
Symphonic Variations for Piano and Orchestra ..... Cesar Franck
Capriccio Italien ..... Tschaikowsky

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society, Antonio Modarelli conducting, gave us last night in Syria Mosque one of its best concerts. The program was economically chosen and with taste, the contribution from the soloist was consistent, and the audience responded as it should to such fine effort on the part of all the players.

Mr. Lissfelt

Modarelli has a grand task, and it is the making of this young man. It is easy to recall his first work and to compare it with last night's conducting. His beat is stronger, his achievements in balancing tone and creating climax is surer and more elastic, and even when he chooses to brighten the tempo as he did in the slow movement of the Beethoven Symphony, he makes us believe him. The nice rhythms in the scherzo we shall want to remember, the improved tone in his strings in that most difficult of all preludes, the opening measures to "Lohengrin," and decidedly the spontaneous playing of the Tschaikowsky "Capriccio."

Elisabeth Oppenheim is a forward looking young lady with considerable charm and the vision to give us, at least, something not so trite in the way of piano and orchestra. The "Symphonic Variations" of Cesar Franck are not profound music, though exceedingly fluent melodically and in pattern.

They afford the player excellent opportuinty for delicate nuance, tender tone effects, and sparklingly joyous passage work. Miss Oppenheim achieves these with much ease, and were she more of a Walkyrie then we should feel that the force of her playing were commensurate with Franck's lofty soul. She was cordially applauded and responded with DeFalla's "Andalousie."

J. FRED LISSFELT.

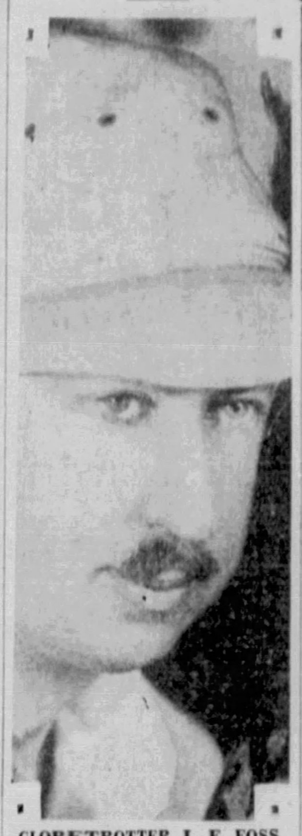
OLD SORES

Wouldn't you be glad to learn how the pain and itching of old Sores, Ulcers and Itching Rashes can be stopped and the Sores healed in a few days? An amazing ointment is now doing these very things, and here's an instance:

"For 7 years I suffered untold agony with a Varicose Ulcer on my ankle. The first application of PETERSON'S OINTMENT took all pain away. In 4 weeks the ulcer healed up completely. I simply cannot say too much for your ointment."—Mrs. Fred R. Voight, 115 Telford St., Newark, N. J.

No wonder over 500,000 people to date have used PETERSON'S OINTMENT to make their skin gloriously smooth, healthy and free from Sores. You can do the same for only 35c at any drug store in America.

Camera Man Relates Trip to 'Husband's Eden'



GLOBETROTTER J. E. FOSS

Film Depicting Life On Bali Island Wins Praise

The Island of Bali is one of enchantment and the "home of the world's most beautiful native women," in the opinion of J. E. Foss, globe trotting camera man, of 501 Market street. Commenting on the motion picture, "Goona Goona," depicting the natives' life, current in the Davis Theater, he said:

"It is an authentic production of the life and mythology of Bali. It is a tour of the island minus the heat and mosquitoes."

Four years ago Foss returned from Bali after filming many native scenes. He made friends among the Balise people and recognized them in the film "Goona Goona."

Bali is the only place in the Orient, in Foss' words, where a girl baby is welcome, because there each man has three wives, and the wives do all the work while the husbands amuse themselves with cock fights.

There the rice fields are free from snakes and birds. All the natives have to do is to plant and harvest their crops in quick succession, because there are no seasons, according to Foss.

Bali is unique among the South Sea Islands; its inhabitants have never been exploited. As Foss puts it:

"It is an island without a flaw—and without a missionary."

But it is a poor place for a movie director, he explains, because time means nothing to these people. If they start a dance scene, they very likely will keep it up all day long.

MOTHER FINDS BABY AFIRE

Ten-weeks-old Adelbert Michael Smor, Jr., is dead today, burned to death by means of the electric vapor lamp through which it was hoped his health would be restored. The flames enveloped the child before the eyes of his mother, Mrs. Harietta Smor, at their home, 134 South Twenty-third street, yesterday.

A sheet was set on fire by the lamp under the crib on the second floor of the house, while the mother and the Rev. Michael Staurovsky, pastor of St. John the Baptist Greek Catholic Church, were eating dinner on the first floor.

Mrs. Smor was unaware of her child's plight until she opened the door and saw the flames. She was prevented from running into the fire by Father Staurovsky, who picked up the baby and wrapped him in a blanket. The mother next saw her baby dead.

While the tragedy was enacted, the father was at work in a Whitaker drug store.

MERGER LINKS STORE HERE

A national merger involving the F. and W. Grand Five, Ten and Twenty-five Cent Stores, Inc., and the Metropolitan Chain Stores, Inc., was revealed here today with word that the H. L. Green Chain Stores, Inc., has purchased assets of 105 stores of the two chains, including three stores in the Pittsburgh district.

Stores in this district include that at 306 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, one in New Kensington and one in McKeesport—all former members of the Grand chain.

No change in personnel or name of the various units is under consideration, officials pointed out. The Green chain, with headquarters in New York, is understood to have purchased the units from trustees in bankruptcy at unusually low prices.

Five-Cent Drinks Get Him Term In Jail

Pasquale Cuccaro believed in a small profit.

Pasquale admitted in Federal Court today that he sold whisky for five cents a drink—admitted, in fact, that he had sold two drinks to prohibition agents. He was sentenced to one month in jail. He operated at 353 Fifth street, Rankin, he said.

Pasquale did not explain which brand he handled.

Church Rally Ends Temperance Program

A temperance program sponsored by the National Reform Association ended with a rally of North Side churches in the First Christian Church, Arch street, last night. Speakers were Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, and Cameron Ralston, of Chicago, field director of the association. The sermon was preached by the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Church.

MINISTER FALLS DEAD IN CHURCH

The Rev. Paul Fasca, 48, of New Kensington, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Slovak Church, Madison and Ridge avenues, East Pittsburgh, fell dead while conducting services at the church yesterday, according to a Coroner's report.

He leaves his widow, Helen Fasca; a son, Paul, and two daughters, Blanche and Lillian Fasca.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday. Burial will be in Union Cemetery, New Kensington.

Hospital Fund Cuts Would Hit Jobless

The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania yesterday issued a statement sponsored by hospital board members and civic leaders, declaring that any state relief program tending to make a second attempt to lower appropriations to hospitals will saddle additional hardships on the unemployed.

In the last six months free work of hospitals has increased amazingly, it was said, and indications are that it will rise higher this winter.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

OFFICE SUPPLY SALES SHOW GAIN

If a marked increase in the buying of office equipment and supplies by Pittsburgh businessmen at the beginning of the new year may be considered a criterion of an anticipated pick-up in business activity, prospects for 1933 are very bright, according to W. K. Morris, general manager of the McCloy Company, 642 Liberty avenue. He said:

"Sales of office equipment and supplies on January 3, 4 and 5 exceeded the sales of any individual days during the entire past year. This indicates to me that a general feeling of optimism must prevail among Pittsburgh businessmen. With the advent of the new year, they are not quitting. They are going right ahead, anticipating better business for 1933. They are not waiting passively for better times to come. They are actively preparing for increased business activity during the coming year."

McCloy's own picture looks brighter today than it has in several years, Mr. Morris said. The 80 per cent increase in cash sales since June, 1932, which was reported in the Sun-Telegraph on October 24, following an announcement that the commercial stationery department of the William G. Johnston Company had been transferred to and the inventory acquired by the McCloy Company, has grown to more than 100 per cent today, he continued.

In line with this progressive policy McCloy's belief has been justified by the doubling of sales in the last six months. A new department has been added during the past week. A complete service of 350 weekly and monthly, local, national and foreign magazine publications has been installed. Besides these magazines, covering every phase of financial, fiction, motion picture, theatrical, mechanical, political and general interest, all New York and other daily out-of-town newspapers are now available at McCloy's.

In addition, a new circulation library makes 300 of the latest fiction books accessible to McCloy customers at all times. Seventy-five per cent of all requests for new books will be filled within 24 hours' notice, Mr. Morris said.

COPPER PRICES HOLD FIRM

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Dullness in copper was more pronounced in the past week as the recent limited domestic buying interest was withdrawn, influenced by declines in European quotations and reduced buying from that source. Producers, however, continued to hold firmly to asking prices based on 5 cents for electrolytic for first quarter delivery in the Connecticut valley. Announcement by the principal foreign producer that it would not increase output at the current low level of prices was said to have created hope that other interests would adopt similar policies.

Sharp declines in tin during the first half of the week in sympathy with London uncovered more active interest from domestic consumers who purchased substantial quantities for both prompt and forward needs. This buying tapered off on subsequent rallies, but the market displayed a firm undertone as offerings from dealers and importers were restricted, owing to limited supplies in this country.

Buying of lead expanded to include most divisions of the consuming trade with the exception of cable makers. Quoted prices remained unchanged.

Zinc remained quiet and nominal, unchanged. A steadier undertone was reported in antimony.

Sulphur Consumption Down in November

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Sugar consumption in the United States during November, 1932, totaled 376,220 tons, as against 395,163 in November, 1931, a decrease of 4.79 per cent, according to B. W. Dyer. Distribution of sugar in the United States for the first 11 months of 1932 amounted to 5,274,557 long tons, raw sugar value, a decrease of 178,608 tons, or 3.28 per cent, compared with the corresponding period of 1931.

Preliminary estimate of United States consumption for the entire year of 1932 is 5,673,557 tons, compared with 5,873,658 tons in 1931.

Readers Show Keen Interest In Securities

—By B. C. FORBES—

Public interest in securities is rising.

This column recently listed more than 70 stocks selling under $1 a share. The response indicates that it created extraordinarily widespread interest. The writer has been bombarded with inquiries and other letters from readers, many of whom express their eagerness to make selections.

Mr. Forbes

The market value of stocks dealt in on the New York Stock Exchange rose fully half-a-billion dollars last month.

So far this month the advance has been at a distinctly more rapid rate.

THIS WRITER begs to be excused from picking "bargains" for readers. There is no hesitation, however, in voicing the profound conviction that many issues now selling at less than 10 per cent of their boom-time price will by and by achieve marked recovery.

An analysis made by the writer brings out the extraordinary fact that many stocks which sold above $100 a few years ago, can today be purchased for less than $10 a share.

In view of the reception accorded this column's list of "penny" stocks, the following table will be welcomed; it presents the list of stocks which closed last week under $10 a share as contrasted with peak quotations ranging from $100 to $260 three-four years ago:

STOCKS CLOSED the first week of the year with substantial gains. Bonds, both domestic and foreign, also appreciably improved although there was no noticeable volume of traditional "New Year reinvesting." Practically all classes of securities participated in the recovery.

The stock market has been giving evidence that it has been about sold to a standstill, that enforced liquidation has almost dried up. Even bears, it is officially revealed, have lately elected to buy.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that unfavorable news recently has failed to hurt security values. This is worth noting because, unquestionably, coming months will bring not a few unfavorable developments. For example, before January ends, the influential directors of the United States Steel Corporation are likely to make a drastic cut in the preferred dividend. Nothing better than a quarterly disbursement of $1, I am told, need be expected at the very best. Some directors favor eliminating the payment entirely. But it is hardly conceivable that so drastic and disturbing a step would be taken at a time when appreciable recovery is looked for before another dividend date comes around.

FINANCIAL, industrial, trade, transportation and commodity developments have been fairly satisfactory since the year opened. Leading commodity prices exhibited rallying tendencies before the week ended.

The New York automobile show has opened with less eclat, less demonstrativeness, less hip-hip-hurrahing than usual. The customary bullish demonstration in motor stocks has not been attempted. It is certain, however, that real recovery will benefit this industry more than most, because of the number of users who must of necessity re-enter the market this year.

HIGH FINANCE is not enthusiastic over the political outlook. Dissensions within the Democratic ranks are already obtruding.

Even so, the majority opinion is that we will move, probably irregularly towards moderately better times as spring approaches.

Low Industrial Output Reduces Demand For Coal

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

FOLLOWING A BRIEF spurt in activity due to a short period of cold weather and stimulated residential demand, the coal trade has slumped into a period of inactivity.

Last autumn the coal mines in the Pittsburgh district constituted the most active branch of industry. This reflected the low stocks of coal and the desire to make delayed shipments to the lake ports before the close of navigation. The brief recovery in industrial activity also stimulated demand at that time.

The principal mines in the Pittsburgh district operated close to capacity during October and November. Even during this active period, however, prices remained at low levels.

* * *

Year End Lull Hits Production

AT PRESENT THE industry finds demand for coal sharply curtailed as a result of the low rate of industrial activity. Lack of orders is particularly apparent in the case of consumers in the Ohio industrial districts. The reduced industrial consumption of coal has made it difficult to dispose of slack. As a result, extremely low prices have appeared under competition of producers to dispose of distress tonnages. Demand for lump coal for residential use has been fairly active but even prices for this type of fuel have been weak.

Operators are again reducing wages of coal miners in scattered cases in order to bring the rates into line with declining prices.

* * *

Troubles Passed On to Workers

THE ENTIRE HISTORY of the coal industry during the past seven years has been marked by the passing of the troubles of the operators on to labor. Keen competition has resulted in an almost uninterrupted decline in prices. In order to reduce their losses operators have cut wages. This has given further leeway for price cutting which in every instance has been followed by more wage cutting.

The policy of making labor bear the burden of bad merchandising has done the operators no good. In fact it has cost them much money to meet the expense of labor troubles. It most certainly has done the miners no good since their wages have been reduced to a bare subsistence.

Rail Accounting Rule Reaffirmed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has reaffirmed its original ruling and insisted that the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway must charge to its property account, not to operating expenses, an outlay of $3,026,806 for the repair and rebuilding of freight cars in 1926 to 1928 inclusive. The road has contested the commission's attitude in this regard.

FAMILY SIZE RECORDS DROP

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—What is the present size of the American family as compared with past decades? What place in the social and economic life of the country does the family unit hold?

These questions are discussed from the standpoint of the statistician in the current issue of the bulletin of the National Industrial Conference Board. The conference board's statistical department has summarized the latest information concerning the family unit, issued by the Bureau of the Census, and has reached the conclusion that, while the place that the family unit holds in the life of our people has greatly changed in the past 50 years, it is still an important factor, whose significance is frequently overlooked.

The part that the family interest, frequently described as "keeping up with the Joneses," had in the splurge of spending that marked the period of our greatest prosperity was noted by the casual observer, but failed to figure largely in the analyses of the economist, states the conference board summary. So also the fact is not always adequately recognized that in these days of depression large numbers of the unemployed are supported by their families, and that the burden resting upon employed workers is therefore not fully expressed in shorter work hours and lower wage rates.

SIZE SMALLER

The census figures covering a half century show a steady diminution in the size of the American family. In the census of 1890 the family unit consisted of 4.93 persons. The census of 1930 gives the number as 4.10 persons. The comparison is based upon the official definition of a "family," which is broad enough to cover the entire population and includes "households" ranging from the cabin of the lone trapper or squatter to the vast hotels of our cities and to institutions of all kinds, each of which constitutes a family unit for census purposes.

The Bureau of the Census has computed from the enumeration of 1930 the size of the private family, eliminating residents of hotels and institutions but including lodgers and resident servants, and found it to be 4.01. A similar distinction made in 1900 found the average size of the private family to be 4.60 persons. In the latest census a further step was taken by eliminating all persons except those related in some way—by blood, by marriage, or by adoption. The average number of persons in a family thus defined was found to be 3.81. In making comparison of different races and localities the Census Bureau uses the middle-sized family, which for the country at large is 3.40.

When the families are tabulated according to size it is found that the largest group is that of families consisting of 2 persons, constituting 23.4 per cent of the whole number. The old-fashioned family of six or more members constitute but 18.5 per cent of the whole number. Families of three or fewer persons constitute 52.1 of the whole number.

DWELLINGS CHANGE

In the aggregate there was in 1930 comparatively little difference between the number of families and the number of dwellings. There were in that year 1.19 families per dwelling, while at the end of the last century the proportion was 1.12. It is clear that the increase of multi-family dwellings in cities has as yet had little effect on average conditions throughout the country. In 1930, 76.4 per cent of all the families in the United States lived in one-family dwellings; in the urban population the proportion was 63.3 per cent, and in the rural population, 94.4 per cent.

Throughout the United States 46.8 per cent of the private families own their own homes. Exact comparisons with earlier census enumerations are not practicable, since in 1910 and 1920 the figures included the premises occupied by the small number of institutions and other quasi-family groups, which were counted as families in the respective censuses.

EARNINGS HOLD FOR BUSINESS MACHINES

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—International Business Machines Corporation, on a conservative estimate, came through the past year with better than $9 a share earned on the 703,345 shares of capital stock outstanding, or $3 a share in excess of current dividend rate of $6. For the 10 months to October 31, last, net earnings after all charges and available for dividends approximated $5,500,000 or $7.85 a share.

The $7,697,287 net earnings after charges reported for 1931, equivalent to $11.49 a share on 669,852 shares then outstanding, marked a new high of earnings for the company. Since then there has been a moderate recession in earnings.

LINES AUGMENTED

Substantial additional operating economies effected during the third quarter of 1932 have been an offsetting factor. The net of $5,038,962 reported for the nine months to September 30, last, was 10.5 per cent below that of $5,629,125 reported for the corresponding period of 1931.

The company is planning shortly to bring out a new major project to handle a new field of business activity.

In the past year new models have been introduced in all of the four company divisions, increasing the number of models to close to 700. To augment its line of industrial weighing equipment, the entire line of accounting scales of the National Scale Company, of Chicopee Falls, Mass., was recently purchased.

OMITS STOCK EXTRA

Omission of a 5 per cent stock dividend and the declaration of the regular $1.50 quarterly cash payment as the year-end dividend, reflected the conservatism of the management and not a deviation from any fixed policy. With earnings showing consistent increases each year since 1920, the company utilized a 5 per cent year-end stock dividend in 1928, 1930 and 1931 to capitalize surplus earnings partly.

At the close of last year, aside from the 703,345 shares of capital stock the company had outstanding only about $1,454,000 funded debt consisting of 6 per cent bonds of 1941 out of an original issue of $7,000,000. Approximately $1,000,000 were retired in 1931 and $500,000 retired in 1932.

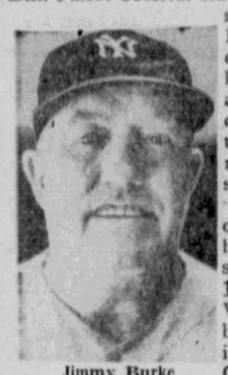
BURKE ONCE PIRATE DURING TRAVELS

IF SOME OTHER big league club does not take on Jimmy Burke, the release of the veteran coach by the Yankees will remove from the major picture next season one of baseball's most colorful old campaignrs. Few men in the diamond sport have traveled around more than Burke in the more than 35 years of his connection with the game. He served in both of the main loops as a player and as a coach, was a manager in the American and in several minor leagues, and there is hardly any part of the baseball map in which he has not operated in some capacity.



Jimmy Burke

Jimmy numbered among his many engagements a connection with Pittsburgh's early pennant winners. He was signed by the Pirates in September, 1901, after he had left the Chicago White Sox. He was carried during 1902, but before the season of 1903 he figured in the first trade ever made by Fred Clarke as manager of the Buccaneers, being swapped to the St. Louis Nationals for Infielder Otto Kruger. As Pittsburgh at that time had an infield made up of Kitty Bransfield, Claude Ritchey, Honus Wagner and Tommy Leach, the best that Burke ever got, needless to say, was a utility role.

PERHAPS BARNEY FRIBERG, moving over to the American League to join the Red Sox, won't be missed by National League fans as much as some of the more prominent players who are taking their departure from the senior loop, but there may be many a spot next season when the Phillies, at least, will miss the services of the hard-working old campaigner.

Friberg never attracted much attention. His play wasn't flashy, and generally he was on a losing team. Yet he had a value all his own, moving from one position to another all around the infield and outfield, wherever he happened to be needed, doing his work effectively and pounding in many a run—a serviceable old workhorse that never got the credit due.

ONCE FRIBERG ALMOST became a pitcher. Burt Shotton started to groom him for the slab in 1929, but Tommy Thevenow was hurt and Barney had to go to shortstop for 73 games that season.

Maybe Friberg would have done better as a pitcher than he did as infielder if the fates had not intervened. Similar conversions have been known to turn out successfully, the most notable examples being Red Lucas and Bob Smith, who, singularly, are now brought together on the same club in Cincinnati.

WHEN THE WASHINGTON club traded Lloyd Brown and Fred Marberry for Walter Stewart and Earl Whitehill the admitted object was to rearrange the pitching staff in a fashion that would make it more effective in blocking the threatened rush of the Yankees to a second pennant. Clark Griffith explained that the Senators' only chance to finish ahead of the Yanks was to get hurlers who could beat Joe McCarthy's club. If the thing is to turn out as he hopes, however, there will have to be a big change in the dope of 1932. For whether or not Griffith realized it at the time, it's an odd fact that Brown and Marberry made much better records against the Yanks last year than did the two southpaws for whom they were traded.

Clark Griffith

WHITEHILL DID NOT win a start against the McCarthys, and Stewart grabbed off only one victory over them in five attempts. In their combined efforts, therefore, the two flingers obtained to stop the world champions were able to beat them only once during all of 1932.

On the other hand, against the lone victory registered by Whitehill and Stewart, Brown and Marberry toppled the Yanks six times. Brown beat them four times in seven starts, while Marberry started twice against them and won both games. The discards have all the better of the comparison.

OF COURSE, STEWART and Whitehill will have a stronger club behind them in opposing the Yanks this year than either had last season in St. Louis or Detroit. Griffith contends, besides, that Stewart in particular will be helped by the big park in Washington, where he can use his fast ball to advantage.

Hitters find it difficult there to get drive enough to send the ball over the walls. It is said Stewart always was handicaped in St. Louis because the field there was not the right setting for his particular style.

THE FOLLOWING WAS received from Raymond A. Coleman: "I contend that an Eastern football team going to the West coast is at a decided disadvantage. To become acclimated to California weather, a group of players must remain in a like climate for a much longer period than two weeks. In that time they may learn to play under the strain of the heat, which is increased greatly by the strenuousness of football playing, but their blood cannot thin out enough to eliminate the sluggishness that comes toward the end of a game. I would like to observe, over a period of years, the results of an alternation of games played one season in the West and the next in the East. In fact, I would like to see Pitt play the 'unbeatable' Trojans in the Stadium."

NOTRE DAME AND Southern California are much alike in the respect that it's a mighty tough job for a sophomore to win a regular job on the football team. A player who has just completed his freshman year has to be a standout to bag a job on the Irish varsity right away, and it's the same in the Trojan camp.

In 1931, Aaron Rosenberg was the only player to go direct from the frosh to the varsity at Southern California, and even he had to divide the time at guard with Johnny Baker. During the season just ended, Warburton and Clemons were the only sophomores who could be classed as regulars, and they had to share first-string honors at their positions with Griffith and Erskine.

THE SECRET OF success in Rose Bowl football games is scoring the first touchdown and making the extra point. In every one of the 18 Pasadena classics, the team that made the first touchdown and converted has escaped defeat.

In 16 of the 18 battles the side that scored first and converted was returned victorious. In the two exceptions, the games resulted in ties. Navy made the first touchdown and the extra point in 1924, and was tied by Washington, 14 to 14. Stanford scored first and converted in 1927, and was tied by Stanford. The teams that scored first, but failed to convert and then lost out, were Washington in 1926, against Alabama and Pittsburgh in 1928, against Stanford.

Packey McFarland

TWO OF THE greatest lightweight boxers of bygone days came together as rival tutors in Chicago the other night, when Packey McFarland's troupe of Windy City amateurs met a team of Los Angeles and San Francisco boys handled by Willie Ritchie. Ritchie won the lightweight championship from Ad Wolgast on a foul in 1912, and went to England to defend it in 1914, losing it to Freddie Welsh. McFarland, a master ring workman, probably could have become champion under present day conditions, 135 pounds at 2 p. m., but refused to jeopardize his health by the strain of making 133 ringside. Pittsburgh saw both stars in their prime. McFarland boxed Bert Keyes for Billy Corcoran at the Labor Temple in 1911, while Ritchie met Harry Trendall here in 1912 and came back to face Johnny Griffiths in 1915.

SUTHERLAND PRAISES PLAY OF TEAM

By JESS CARVER

Before a full house, the final act of Pitt's 1932 football drama (and what a drama it was) was enacted last night as the Golden Cats arrived home from their fourth invasion of California.

The eleven that started out last fall rated just another football team, battled its way through as gruelling a schedule as ever was attempted by any school and then cracked up in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, was welcomed home by an overflow and enthusiastic crowd which jammed the Pennsylvania Station to the guards. Dads and mothers, classmates and sweethearts and mere fans pushed and jostled in their efforts to implant resounding slaps on the backs of the Pitt heroes . . . still heroes to the home folks despite the defeat New Years Day by Southern California's Trojans.

CHEERS GREET PLAYERS

The train was right on time and as the players, many sporting those 10-gallon hats, a la Tom Mix, appeared outside the gates, the crowd shook the building with a salvo of cheers. Then came the deluge as the gridders, struggling with their bags, pushed through the gates.

Coach Jock Sutherland was all but mobbed. Everyone, it appeared, wanted to shake the hand of the Panther mentor, to assure him that everything was still o. k. Warren Heller, the All-America halfback star, was swallowed up in a cheering horde of his own special brand of Heller fans. Ted Dailey and Muggsy Skladany, the fine pair of ends who shown with such brilliance on the Coast; Capt. Paul Reider, the hard-luck lad of the year; Paul Cuba and Doc Hartwig; Izzy Weinstock and Mike Sebastian—not a man was forgotten.

Although barely able to get his hat off, so great was the crowd that pressed about him, Coach Sutherland took time out to praise the play of his boys and to impress upon local newspapermen that no blame was to be attached to the team for the defeat. Said Jock:

"If I had it to do all over again, I would not make a single change in plans. Everything about the trip was fine. I'd use the same defense, plan the same attack and prepare the team in the same way if we were to go out there again tomorrow. All I'd hope for would be a half way share of the breaks.

"That first pass—Sebastian was not at fault. He played the ball and the man correctly and jumped at the right moment, but his man simply was bigger and could outjump him. There were several mistakes made, but they occur in any game and always will. The boys fought hard all the way. They are a great lot."

PRAISED ON COAST

The players and coaches were particularly impressed by the way in which the California critics praised the team after the game. The Panthers made as many friends on the Coast by the valiant battle against both the husky Troy eleven and the cruel succession of breaks as if they'd won the game. They were assured they could come back to California and meet with a welcome any time.

There were no regrets expressed by anyone, except a feeling on the part of the coaches that the score should not have been so large. All concerned credited the Trojans with being a great football team, but they still think the Panthers are a pretty nifty outfit, too.

Preceding the Pitt party by a few minutes over another route, Dex Very and Cal Bolster, the two local officials who worked the game, remained in the station to greet the players. Both praised the play of the Panthers.

Heading the delegation of greeters were Charles D. Wettach, chairman of the Pitt athletic council; Dr. P. V. McParland, Norman McLeod, Pat Corr, Dr. H. C. Carlson, Dr. Skip Gougler, Ray Montgomery and Eddie Baker, of the coaching staff, and Dr. Bill McClelland.

Old Horse Sets Mutuel Record At 'Caliente

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A new record price has been hung up at the Agua Caliente Jockey Club track. King Jack, a 10-year-old brown gelding from the stable of J. Schultz, won the eighth and final race of the day yesterday and paid $821 for each $2 mutuel ticket.

King Jack won by half a length from Maxwell M with Lord Vale getting the show. The race brought out a field of 12 selling platters at a mile and one-sixteenth.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: BABY TALK—To account for the unusual case of little Eleutheros Zoutes being able to distinctly pronounce the word "mother" three times in succession when he was only five minutes old, the mother claims to have had telepathic communication with the baby at the time of birth. The remarkable baby was born at Mercy Hospital in Mason City, Iowa, September, 1922, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zoutes, who now reside in Florida. My records contain well authenticated statements and accounts of this astounding incident, not only from the parents, but from doctors and hospital attaches who were witnesses.

OAKMONT SET FOR SEASON

By TOM BIRKS

With many conferences between greenkeepers and chairmen of greens committees of the many country clubs in the Tri-State district scheduled this month to contemplate changes over the various layouts, it is interesting to note that the Oakmont terrain, at Hulton, will not see any changes this season.

Emil Loeffler

Emil Loeffler, professional and greenskeeper at the nationally-famous club, declared today that, while changes are being contemplated, W. C. Fownes, Jr., chairman of the greens committee, will not start upon the proposed alterations until next year.

When the changes are made, mounds that lie parallel with practically all fairways will pass out of the picture and shallow traps will replace them.

Whether it will be possible to improve upon the grandeur of the famous Hulton links remains to be seen.

This year will not see any major tournaments disposed of at Oakmont. It is quite possible that a few of the local tourneys, under the control of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, will be staged there.

It will be a different story entirely in 1934. It will be six years next June since Tommy Armour was carried by an admiring throng to the front veranda of the Oakmont clubhouse to receive the National Open trophy, after defeating Harry Cooper in the playoff, and it is quite possible that the National Open will be played over the Oakmont course again in 1934.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Well, the Panthers got back home safely, anyhow . . . Despite reports to the contrary, the Indians don't scalp the whites any more on trips through the West . . . Max Hannum wins his first game as basketball coach at Carnegie Tech, and not with his typewriter, either.

Everything is Jacques now with the U. S. G. A. . . . Judge Landis cuts his own salary, thereby verifying an impression that there is a depression in the land . . . The next people who should wake up and cut their prices are the boxing promoters and basketball moguls . . . Imagine paying $1, $2 and $3 for an ordinary boxing show or $1.65 for a basketball game lasting 40 minutes when you can see a doubleheader in baseball with the leading stars of the big leagues performing for a buck or less!

Another reform the boxing fans would appreciate is the elimination of the intermission before the main bout, which often lasts as much as a half-hour and is for the sole purpose of inducing the patrons to patronize the hot dog and pop stand . . . Some of the bouts are so poor that the fans could walk out on them and get their refreshments while the show goes on without missing anything.

Teammates today answered the question that has been bothering many of the local football fans since that Tournament of Roses game, to wit: "Why did Heller throw that long pass beyond the end zone when Pitt was near the goal as a result of Weisenbaugh's long run in the second quarter? . . . The answer is that it wasn't intended to be that sort of a pass, but Heller had to get it away because Ernie Smith, the whale tackle of the Trojans, was on top of him ready to smear him, as he was almost all afternoon, and the fling miscued. So that's that.

Stanley Poreda is the out-of-luck guy of boxing . . . He ran out on George Godfrey to take a match with Ernie Schaaf, whom he had previously defeated. . . . Then Walter Cobb came along and defeated Godfrey and Poreda was knocked out by Schaaf. . . . That Schaaf-Sharkey act is a comic opera affair, if nothing else. . . . A month ago, Schaaf, virtually knocked out by Max Baer, was just another bursted bubble in the heavyweight ranks, managed by Sharkey. . . . Now, as a result of his win over Poreda, he suddenly is put forth as the "leading contender," who will quit Sharkey when their contract expires in March so he can fight his boss. . . . What a ballyhoo!

Only about 40 more days and the Pirates head for Paso Robles. . . . They'll stay clear of Pasadena for fear of being mistaken for the Panthers, who were left for dead. . . . For the present, you'll have to take the squash racquets tournament and like it.—HARRY KECK

Blue Laws Blamed By Mack For Recent Deals

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said Pennsylvania's "blue laws," prohibiting Sunday baseball, were partly responsible for the recent deal which took Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes and Mule Haas to the Chicago White Sox.

Attending a meeting of the Holy Name Society of St. Joan of Arc's Catholic Church, the leader of the A's was given a series of questions to answer, among them the question why he sold the three players. He answered:

"Poor business. Our financial problems are due almost entirely to our not being permitted to play Sunday ball on our home grounds."

RANGERS WIN GRID TITLE

The Rox Rangers again rule the district lightweight independent football roost.

Yesterday, at Greenlee Field, the Rangers, who have been the kingpin of sandlot football in their class for the past three years, defeated the Broadway Mounts, 6 to 0, to annex the Lightweight Conference championship and wind up the long drawn-out sandlot campaign. Gregor, Ranger fullback, plunged through the line from the one-yard mark in the final period for the touchdown.

The Mounts put up a brilliant defensive game throughout and it was not until late in the third period that the Ranger attack was able to function and the ball worked into scoring position. Toby Uansa, former Pitt star, turned in a 13-yard dash to the 10-yard line on the last play of the period.

Dundee Rodgers turned right end to put the ball on the two-yard stripe after two line-plunges had netted short gains and then Gregor crashed over for the lone tally. Uansa's try for the extra point was wide.

A crowd of 2,500 witnessed the clash. The lineup:

G. WASHINGTON OPPONENT OF BLUFFITES

GAMES TONIGHT

George Washington vs. Duquesne at Dukes' gym.
Geneva vs. Bethany at Bethany.
Georgetown vs. New River at Montgomery, W. Va.
Concord State vs. Davis-Elkins at Elkins, W. Va.

The Carneras of Eastern basketball, George Washington's rangy Colonials, and Duquesne University's Dukes inaugurate a week of promising college basketball activity as they tangle tonight in the Dukes' gym.

It is a plenty big quintet that will go to rags with the Dukes. A year ago, this same George Washington team served the locals one of their six defeats of the season at Washington, but succumbed here later in the campaign. The team this year, with added experience, is rated as a truly formidable quintet, one of the strongest along the Seaboard, and figures to give the Dukes a busy evening.

COLONIALS BIG

In the starting lineup will be two six foot five inchers, Ty Hertzler, the center, and Parrack, star forward. Chambers, a guard, stands six foot two inches, and Zahn, the other guard, is six feet. Burgess, the other forward, lacks an inch of being a six-footer.

Coach Chick Davies, pleased with the improved form displayed by his team against Grove City last week, will start the same lineup that was used against the Grovers, with Feldman and Birch at the forwards, Len Brenner at center and Reiter and Moore holding down the guard posts. Jim MacDougal and Capt. Bunk McGeever again will ride the bench, for the start of the game, at least.

In other district games tonight, Geneva meets Bethany in a Tri-State Conference tussle; Davis-Elkins is at home to Concord State, and Georgetown tackles New River at Montgomery, W. Va.

Local varsities won three out of four games played last week. The Dukes, after bowing to Westminster on Tuesday, came back to trim Grove City. On Saturday night, both Pitt and Tech won Eastern Intercollegiate Conference victories, the Panthers smashing Temple here and Carnegie, under its new coach, Maxie Hannum, copping the season inaugural at West Virginia.

PITT RUNS WILD

The Panthers displayed enough of an offensive to run wild at the expense of the Owls, who played below form and failed to put up the game of which they are capable. Coach Jimmy Usilton promised an improved machine for tomorrow's battle with Carnegie Tech and Coach Jimmy usually makes good on his promises.

In other games last week, Westminster secured revenge for a previous defeat by beating Edinboro Teachers; Waynesburg won its third game in as many starts, whipping Fairmont State; Wash-Jeff, after losing to West Virginia Wesleyan and Mariette, came back to beat Muskingum Saturday; Thiel beat its alumni; Penn State won from Susquehanna and then lost to Penn; Glenville took Slippery Rock and Marshall crushed Morris Harvey.

A X-Ray taken today revealed the fact that Claire Cribbs, Pitt's center, did not suffer a fractured ankle, as was feared, when he crashed into a wall during last Saturday night's game with Temple. However, he has a bad sprain and is definitely lost to the Panthers for their game with Duquesne University at the Pavilion, Friday night.

Ochsenhirt likely will be shifted from guard to the pivot post to fill the gap, with Charley Hug replacing him at guard.

Denial was made that the game with Duquesne would be shifted from Friday night to Saturday to avoid conflict with Carnegie Tech's game with W. & J.

M'CAMANT LEADS

Don McCamant, who ran wild against Temple Sat'day night, popped himself into the lead in the individual scoring race among the city teams. The Pitt guard has a total of 44 points, two more than his team captain, Don Smith.

Paul Birch leads the Dukes with 23 markers and Bob Smith, scoring 12 points against West Virginia, heads the Carnegie contingent. The records follow:

PITT	G.	F.G.	F.	T.P.
McCamant	6	19	6	44
Smith	6	14	14	42

OLD SKATER DIES

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Adelard P. Demers, 67, widely known years ago as a fancy skater, died today. He formerly operated a large skating rink in Edinburgh, Scotland, and for 20 years was manager of the St. Didier Rink in Paris. He was a native of Canada.

DEMPSEY-TUNNEY TITLE FIGHT BLOCKED IN NEW YORK

JACK REFUSED LICENSE TO BOX GENE

SYNOPSIS

Following the collapse of a Tunney-Stribling match in Florida early in 1926 and the making of "The Fighting Marine" movie, Gene is anxiously watching the "wire pulling" designed to bring about his title bout with Dempsey in New York. Negotiations had to be practically "under cover," since the then champion was under suspension in the Empire State, Harry Wills had powerful backing as prior challenger, and Gotham's ring politicians were on the alert. . . .

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

During my stay in California, Rickard announced that he had matched Dempsey and me. This precipitated a serious fight between Rickard and the Boxing Commission. The commission had officially and publicly warned Rickard and me of the consequences of negotiating with the "ineligible" Dempsey. Mara, finding out that the commission's sanction for the match was a harder job than he had anticipated, and realizing what this sanction would mean to me in dollars and cents, decided while I was in California that he must have 25 per cent of any and all my earnings in the event of his bringing the fight to New York and I was thereby successful in winning the world heavyweight title. I thought this was an awful holdup and countered with an offer of 10 per cent. He refused this. After much agitated dickering over the long-distance telephone, Gibson convinced me we had no choice but to agree to Mara's unconscionable demands. I refused, however, to sign contracts that were sent me in which was omitted the stipulation that Mara was to receive the 25 per cent only in the event that the fight took place in New York.

Gene Tunney

It is difficult for the average person to understand this custom of giving contracts to managers, agents, et cetera, for certain percentages of one's earnings. It is a curious custom and is practiced only in the boxing profession. Professional boxing has proportionately more split-commission men and parasites than any other professional sport excepting horse-racing; but there they deal in horseflesh while in boxing it is human flesh. These unscrupulous persons are ever ready to muscle in on the earnings of the unsuspecting and guileless pugilist—but not willing to take a percentage of the punches for their cut.

Now, in my opinion, no professional man gives as much of himself to his profession as the pugilist. I base my opinion on a study of the ex-pugilists. What profession has left as many derelicts in its wake? Pugilism is a virile and manly sport, but, for the vast majority, an exacting and uncompensating profession. A great deal of the destitution among ex-pugilists is due to these cold-blooded managers, agents and split-commission men—panderers of male flesh, who are as ignoble and debased as their spiritual brethren, the traders of female beauty.

BEATS MARA'S SUIT

Although he had no contract to strengthen his claim, Mara later sued me for $1,000—25 per cent of my gate earnings while champion. He based his suit on an alleged verbal agreement. The first moment he took the stand it was patent that Mara's memory was bad.

It was amusing to find four days after the trial opened, the husband of his aunt presiding. This was most revealing. I suppose that Tim felt that by having his uncle on the bench he would surely get judgment. Well, he got just that. His uncle was entirely fair and the jury returned a verdict for me on the first ballot.

Subsequently, the Appellate Division set aside this verdict and ordered a new trial (pending at this writing) on the grounds that evidence of mine that was prejudicial was admitted.

The Boxing Commission was boiling hot when I returned to New York. Rickard said:

"Commissioners Farley and Brower are against Commissioner Muldoon in voting to bring the fight to New York. If Brower does not change his vote in a week, I am going to Chicago to arrange for a site there."

He advised me to start training.

MULDOOM FOR MATCH

Commissioner William A. Muldoon, who was the oldest member of the commission and knew the boxing game inside out, was anxious to have the Dempsey-Tunney match take place in New York. Commissioner Brower voted with Farley to bar the match from New York on the ground that Dempsey was ineligible in the State of New York until he accepted the challenge of Harry Wills and fought him first. Neither Rickard nor Muldoon wanted the Wills-Dempsey match. Muldoon was against it because of Wills' failure to meet me for the privilege of meeting Dempsey, by which he felt Wills had disqualified himself. Moreover, he was opposed to a mixed match for the heavyweight championship. He remembered the after-effects of the Johnson-Jeffries fight. Rickard was guided by Muldoon.

Commissioner Muldoon has been a great figure in American sports. He dates back four generations, and has played a leading role in each. I am indebted to Commissioner Muldoon for much advice and unswerving support throughout my career. He always has been a fearless and honest arbiter of boxing, and to him and James J. Walker, who wrote and had passed under his name the present law permitting boxing in the state of New York, is largely due the credit for the success that boxing has had throughout the country. Every boxer of the past decade owes a great deal to these two lovers of boxing.

MOVES TRAINING CAMP

I established my training camp at Tom Luther's Saratoga White Sulphur Springs Hotel, the same training camp that Sammy Kelly had shown me in 1919. Several days later Rickard left for Chicago. The Chicago people were most anxious to have the fight take place there. On the eve of the signing of the contracts Commissioner Brower, listening to the protests of the various Business Men's Associations, wired Rickard in Chicago that if he would retain either New York as the site for the championship fight, he would change his vote. Rickard immediately opened negotiations in Chicago and left for New York.

In the meantime, Dempsey had come East and wanted the training camp in which I was established at Saratoga. Uncle Tom Luther, with an eye on the receipts, advised me that Dempsey had made previous arrangements. He showed me no written evidence, however. I moved to an Adirondack camp of a Marine buddy of mine, William Osborne, at Speculator, N. Y.

FARLEY WITHDRAWS

At the next meeting of the Boxing Commission, Commissioners Brower and Muldoon voted to allow the Dempsey-Tunney fight for the heavyweight championship of the world to take place in New York. At the conclusion of this meeting, Chairman Farley said:

"Well, I have done all I could to enforce the ruling of this Commission with regard to champions accepting challenges within the stipulated period. Being out-voted in this case, I wash my hands of it."

All of us who were interested in the fight rejoiced at the decision of the Commission. Our rejoicing, however, was a bit premature. It was presently discovered that the License Committee, which had been so unimportant for years, was to have the final say. Col. John J. Phelan, it was learned, was chairman of this committee of two. The law called for three, but, upon the "resignation" of one member some years before, the committee had not been considered of sufficient importance for the governor to bother about appointing another member.

PHELAN DELAYS DECISION

It was getting late in the summer, practically August. Hoping to stir the good Colonel into action, Rickard somehow arranged for me to visit Phelan at his camp in Peekskill, N. Y. It was evident to me during the visit that he was determined to delay his decision as long as possible. He undoubtedly knew that he was going to refuse Dempsey a license and thereby prevent the match from being held in New York. It was patent that unless he made his decision without much delay, it would be too late for arrangements to be made for the fight to be held in some other city.

Upon hearing my request the veteran soldier said:

"Gene, I wouldn't do anything to hurt you or injure your chance in any way. We've too many mutual friends."

He named several. Reaching into his pocket he showed me a telegram he had received from Tim Mara asking him to show me every courtesy as he was deeply interested. I asked:

"Then I can be assured that both Dempsey and I will receive licenses so that this fight can be held in New York?"

AL SMITH DISGUSTED

"No, no, no, I'm making no promise of that kind. I'm not going to allow this matter to bother me up here. I have my boys here to train and they come first. When we get back to New York I'll give this matter consideration, not before then."

I left the camp somewhat disheartened, but not altogether hopeless, for there was still Tim Mara and his friendship with Gov. Smith. Tim promised Gibson he would go to Albany if necessary. Mara did go to Gov. Smith, and let it be said to the credit of the Governor that he would have nothing to do with the mess. He told Mara if a repealer of the Walker boxing law came before him he would immediately sign it. He was disgusted with all the cheap political chiseling.

Tunney will tell in the next chapter how Philadelphia grabbed the big match when Dempsey was refused a license in New York and how—in a talk with the champion concerning Harry Wills—Gene "caught Jack off his guard."

Panthers Back Home From Sunny Cal.

TED DAILEY LOU WOJCIHOVSKI KEN ORMISTON MIKE BALASIA JOHN VALENTI

Many of them wearing the latest in Western millinery, the Pitt Panther footballers returned home last night from their trip to Pasadena, Cal., to play Southern California in the Tournament of Roses football game on New Years Day. They were warmly greeted by a large turnout of the faithful. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows a flock of the players gathering their belongings in the trainshed at the Pennsylvania Station. They soon scattered for their homes and were back in their classes today.

CARDS APPEAR DARK HORSES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Their songs silenced last summer by the loss of one of their flock, those Redbirds of St. Louis may chirp merrily in John Heydler's big playground during the coming spring and summer.

Jimmy Collins

The Cardinals, I believe, are the dark horse club of the National League. Perhaps their pennant hopes hinge on the degree of skill and harmony displayed by the man who once led them to world championship honors—Rogers Hornsby.

Pictures and news communiques from the St. Louis front indicate that Hornsby is in better physical condition than he has shown in the past several years; indeed there is cause to think that The Rajah may be the Redbird second baseman in the next campaign.

IMPRESSIVE INFIELD

In the event that Hornsby is able to stay in the lineup, the Cardinals could muster one of the best infields in baseball with Jim Collins, at first; Hornsby, at second; Charley Gelbert, at short, and Frank Frisch, at third. And Sparky Adams would be available for utility roles.

Frisch, as you may know, was one of the best of the hot corner tenders when he vied with Traynor and the other third sackers. Gelbert has few superiors in his position; it is to be hoped that his recent hunting accident will not bother his play. Hornsby never was a great fielder, but he is smart and he has been known to hit .300 without getting a lift from the official scorers. Jim Collins, Johnstown graduate, should develop into a first rank first baseman. And Jim can wallop the old payball!

ROOKIE WELL LIKED

Outfielder Joe Medwick joined the Cardinals in time last season to appear as one of the most polished recruits who has come into the league. Apparently the rookie can field, run, hit and hustle. A bright future is predicted for the lad who is apt to match up with Pepper Martin and Al Watkins. A nifty outfield combination, you can be assured. Medwick may fill the shoes of Chick Hafey, traded to the Reds last year.

Sergt. Street owns a fine pitching staff featuring sharpshooters like Bill Hallahan, Dizzy Dean, Tex Carleton and Bill Walker, not to mention Jim Mooney and a few others.

Jimmy Wilson has skidded a bit, but Jim is so smart behind the bat he should be able to glide along like a kid on roller skates. Moreover, he will have Bob O'Farrell around to help out in the big glove department.

Don't sell the Cardinals short on their quotation of last year. The Redbirds stock may be paying dividends again by midsummer.

RUBLE REGAINS SWAT CROWN

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Art Ruble, of the Champion Minneapolis Millers, has joined the ranks of the two-time winners of the American Association batting championship.

In 141 games Ruble punched out an average of .376, according to the official averages, duplicating his winning mark of 1929, while with Toledo. Previously, Cravath, of Minneapolis; Becker, of Kansas City, and Bevo Le Bourveau, of Toledo, won the title twice.

Ruble's mark was just good enough to beat out Evar Swanson, of Columbus, who left the Reds to play with the Chicago White Sox, while leading the league with a .375 average for 151 contests.

Sasse Relieved As Army Coach

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The official orders relieving Maj. Ralph I. Sasse of his duties as head football coach at the United States Military Academy and designating Lieut. Garrison B. Davidson as his successor have just been issued.

Unofficially, Maj. Sasse has not been football coach since the end of the 1932 season, as it was known some time ago that he would be shifted to a new post at the end of the current academic year. By the new orders he is assigned to the Second Squadron of the Tenth Cavalry, stationed here, until the end of his four-year detail at the Academy, June 30.

Officials were assaulted, players seriously injured and riots precipitated as soccer warfare flamed with great intensity in the district yesterday.

At Morgan, where the McKnight Juniors defeated the Morgan eleven in a National amateur cup game, 2 to 0, the crowd continually rushed onto the field, heckling Referee Brannigan and finally, assaulting him. It was necessary for police to escort the arbiter out of town following the game.

At Atlasburg, three players were taken to the hospital following a fight at the Houston-Atlasburg game. Frank Note, 37, suffered a broken nose and head injuries and his brother John, internal injuries. Both were taken to the Canonsburg Hospital. The Note brothers were members of the Houston team. Henry Lohick, goalie on the Atlasburg eleven, suffered a fractured ear drum when kicked in the head and also was removed to the hospital.

REFEREE ASSAULTED

The trouble started when Manager Tom Mooney, of Houston, attacked Referee Jack Bradley after the latter had awarded Atlasburg a goal. The players were injured in the free-for-all that followed.

In other National Amateur cup battles, Curry took over South Park, 2 to 0, and Valley Camp eked out a 2-to-1 victory over Moon Run.

It is likely that the National Amateur Cup committee will take drastic action against the Morgan team and management as a result of the riot at Morgan.

Curry and Cecil battled before a large crowd and put up a thrilling exhibition of soccer. Magery tallied for Curry in the first half and Innocenti put the game on ice with a score five minutes before the game was over. The lineup:

Curry—2	Pos.	Cecil—0
Blanko	G.	Stukl
Valdeserri	R. B.	Preaux

SPRINGDALE LOSES

In the Allegheny Valley League, the Athletics defeated Springdale, 2-1, and in the Panhandle circuit, Primrose and Sygan went on a scoring bee, Primrose winning, 7 to 5. The De March club stopped Coraopolis, 2 to 1.

In the Washington County League, Donahoe defeated Langeloth, 2 to 1, and Avella downed Cedar Grove by the same score.

TINCUP TO UMPIRE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Ben Tincup, pitcher for the Louisville Colonels from 1919 to 1931, has signed a contract to umpire in the American Association this year. The contract was mailed to T. J. Hickey, president of the Association. Tincup pitched for Sacramento of the Coast League last year.

GUEST LEADS IN L. A. OPEN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Charley Guest, straight-shooting New Jersey golf pro, was three under par at the end of the second round of the Los Angeles Open today and a stroke ahead of the rest of a big field with a 36-hole score of 139.

A crowd officials estimated at more than 5,000, saw him shoot a 69 yesterday to shave a stroke from his 70 of Saturday to come through in front for the first half of the competition for more than $5,000.

With a double round today to attract many additional customers, it seemed certain the total receipts for which the players are shooting will exceed the $5,000 guaranteed for their efforts.

Guest, a former Californian, now residing at Deal, N. J., was hard-pressed by three other experienced professionals. Leo Diegel, representing old Mexico; Craig Wood, fellow townsman of Guest, and Willie Hunter, of Los Angeles, were only a stroke away, compiling 140 for the two days' play.

Hunter turned in the best round of the second day with a sparkling 68.

Diegel, who can have good and bad rounds with golfing abandon, confused the experts by being consistent, adding a 70 to the same oriilliant score of Saturday.

Mark Fry, of Oakland, Cal., had a 69 and so did Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., and Harry Passler, a home pro.

Gene Sarazen, United States and British Open champion, could not get going and was only a stroke better than his first round, his 36-hole total standing at 147, eight strokes behind the leader.

Harry Cooper, who won the first Los Angeles Open, shot himself out of the contest by adding a 78 to 77. Mortie Dutra, with a total of 153, and Johnny DeForrest, British amateur champion, on with the same score, also failed to qualify.

International Net Matches Set for July

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The tennis players of Oxford and Cambridge have decided not to let the troubles that have cut deeply into the international sports program for 1933 interfere with their biennial series with Yale and Harvard.

The ninth of these international matches will be played at the Newport Casino in July, the United States Lawn Tennis Association has announced. The English players also are expected to compete in the National Intercollegiate championships, in several leading tournaments and other team matches.

Expect Decision On Iowa Stars Today

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—With their eligibility still a question, Edward Break and Ivan Blackmer, suspended University of Iowa basketball stars, were en route to Madison today with the Hawkeye floor squad.

Both players were taken along by Coach Rollie Williams to be on hand for the game tonight with Wisconsin if a favorable report is received from the Big Ten Conference eligibility committee. The decision is expected here today.

Greenleaf Defeats Ponzi in Cue Duel

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Although he lost both of the last day's two blocks, Ralph Greenleaf, National pocket billiards champion, defeated Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, 1,750 to 1,725 in their special match.

The champion won eight of the 14 blocks into which the match was divided and Ponzi six.

TENNIS MOGULS HOLD MEETING TONIGHT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

District net moguls will convene in annual mid-winter session of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association at the P. A. A. this evening. Representatives of nearly a score of Western Pennsylvania court organizations are expected to attend the pow-wow, which, incidentally promises to prove one of the most important off-season sessions in the history of the local racquet group. President J. Phillips Davis will call business to order at 8 o'clock.

Main business of the meeting includes discussion of P. T. A. relationship with the Middle States Lawn Tennis Association and consideration of the new consitution, by-laws and inter-club league playing code now virtually ready for ratification.

MAY QUIT BODY

It is no state secret that Pittsburgh officials were exceedingly disappointed in the recently disclosed Middle State men's singles ranking, which listed 20 performers without mention of even one racqueteer from Western Pennsylvania. Sentiment to the effect that this end of the commonwealth is geographically dissociated from the remainder of the M. S. D. T. A. area to an extent that precludes likelihood of proper recognition of Pittsburgh talent in Eastern circles is growing rapidly. It would be by no means astonishing to behold action tonight that would send a P. T. A. delegate to the Middle States gathering at Philadelphia next week with instructions to obtain more or less of a showdown and perhaps even to demand release of this territory from Middle States jurisdiction.

As to the fresh edition of inter-club team play regulations, it is probable that chief changes will be the fixing of penalties for infractions of rules already on the books.

FAVORITES ADVANCE

The first annual Pittsburgh Golf Club invitation squash racquets singles tourney moved into the second round in the Northumberland courts yesterday with seeded favorites continuing unabated march to the quarter-finals. Alex. Robinson, Allegheny Country Club star, rallied brilliantly to down Charley Fagan, cagy Keystone conqueror of Dr. John O'Loughlin, in the Sabbath feature. Robinson, after dropping the initial pair of games, spurted handsomely to carry off 11-15, 11-15, 15-8, 15-13, 15-13 verdict.

Two bracket two tussles, wherein McCook Reed, city champion, encounters George Kepler, P. A. A. star, and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, Winged Head ace, battles Theos Manos, K. A. C. convert from handball, are booked for the upper half of the draw at 4 p. m. An hour later, in the lower sector, Dave Gilmore, A. C. C. southpaw luminary, takes on Bill Bickel, flash of the K. A. C., and Dr. Whitey Stegeman, another P. A. A. entry, meets the redoubtable Frank McClintock for right to crash the semi-finals. The summary:

First round—George W. Kepler, P. A. A. won from Wilfred Muirland, Pittsburgh Golf Club, by default; Theos Manos, Keystone A. C., defeated W. C. Robinson, Jr., Allegheny Country Club, 15-12, 15-12, 15-13.

Second round—A. L. Robinson, Allegheny Country Club, defeated Charles A. Fagan, Jr., Keystone A. C., 11-15, 11-15, 15-8, 15-13, 15-13; Joseph Oliver, Pittsburgh Golf Club, won from William A. Gordon III, Edgeworth Club, by default; David M. Gillespie, Allegheny Country Club, won from J. Scott Burke, P. A. A., by default; William Bickel, Keystone A. C., won from Charles A. Woods, Jr., Edgeworth Club, by default; Dr. G. Stegeman, P. A. A., defeated J. K. Ebbert, Pittsburgh Golf Club, 15-12, 15-10, 15-5; Frank S. McClintock, P. A. A.-Keystone A. C., defeated George H. Flinn, Jr., 15-10, 15-7, 15-8.

P. A. A. TEAM WINS

The P. A. A. defeated Pittsburgh Golf Club in a Class B inter-club loop squash racquets contest, 4-1, at the Winged Head yesterday afternoon. The match had been originally billed for Saturday, but had been postponed because of the Golf Club invitation tilting. Dr. George Booth, Karl Wolfe, and George Henderson registered straight-game victories for the home squad, while Graham McCargo downed "Rod" Flannery in a five-canto marathon for the Lone Golfer triumph. The visitors defaulted the number five tussle.

CRIMSON, TIGER PACT SIGNED

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(Universal.)—Princeton and Harvard will meet on the gridiron in 1934 and 1935, thus ending the breach of athletic relations which followed their football game at Cambridge in 1926.

The brief announcement from Cambridge and Princeton, issued simultaneously, said:

"Arrangements have been made for two football games between Harvard and Princeton, the first to be played in Cambridge November 3, 1934, and the second in Princeton on November 9, 1935."

The truce between Harvard and Princeton, which again brings into being the so-called "Big Three," including Yale, follows closely on the resumption of relations between the Army and Navy football teams. The service institutions, however, resumed relations on a three-year basis.

The trouble between Princeton and Harvard followed charges of unnecessary roughness made against Princeton players after the Orange and Black defeated Harvard 36 to 0.

I. K. S. FIVE BUSY

The Irene Kaufmann Settlement House passers face a busy week of games. Tonight they play in New Kensington, tomorrow they engage the Grove City Merchants and Friday finds the Westinghouse Club at the Settlement House.

LEGION FIVE BEATEN

The American Legion Post No. 200 basketball team bowed to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad quintet yesterday by a 32-26 score.

GRADE SCHOOLS BEGIN PLAY

With 34 schools entered, competing in two sections of five groups each, the city grade school basketball championship campaign will get under way with three contests being staged, all in Section II.

Other teams will swing into action tomorrow.

Babe to Make Pro Debut in Cue Duel

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson has chosen a pool table—of all things—as the battleground for her first competitive engagement since turning professional.

Under arrangements completed last night, the "one-woman track team" of Dallas, Tex., will meet Ruth McGinnis, of Honesdale, Pa., in a 400-point pocket billiard match to be played in four blocks here Wednesday and Thursday. The National Billiard Association of America will promote the match.

Patsy Perroni vs. Paul Pantaleo, 10 rounds, Terre Haute, Ind.
Jack Rosenberg vs. Young Terry and Owen Phelps vs. Roscoe Manning, 10 rounds each, Newark, N. J.

The reorganized Arena Boxing Club, on the North Side, is going ahead with its plans for its weekly show, Friday night, in the main bout of which Jack King, Little Rock welterweight, returns to box Tiger Joe Randall, Elizabeth Negro. Frank Novak, of the North Side, is in with Al Catchell, Cleveland heavyweight, in the eight-round semi-final.

Meanwhile, Motor Square Garden, dark tonight, is working on a card of bouts for next Monday night, and plans are being advanced for the reopening of the Moose Temple, downtown, for bouts.

Between Rounds

Bunny Buntach wants the local promoters to bring in some good opponents for his Joe Marcus, who in the future will box as a junior-welterweight instead of as a lightweight.

Buntach also has Jerry Clements ready again, following a rest after an active campaign. Lloyd Clements, Jerry's big brother, is resting to take on weight. He wants to build himself up to the point where he will be able to dabble regularly with the heavyweights.

Johnny Datto may meet Harry Dublinsky in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Joe Zivic and Steve Semich will meet again in a preliminary.

Answer to query—Pee Wee Jarrell and Willard Brown boxed 10 rounds to a draw at Muncie, Ind., last Thursday night.

Jack to Insist On 15-Round Limit

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey will inform the State Athletic Commission it must extend the limit on non-championship bouts from 10 to 15 rounds before he will consider the Baer-Schmeling fight for Pennsylvania.

Dempsey will appear before the Commission Wednesday.

Dempsey appearing at a local theater, said:

"The contracts call for 15 rounds and must be carried out. "I want it that way, personally, because both boys are slow beginners and each one feels the longer the fight goes the better they will finish. The public wants it that way, too.

DODGERS SELL BOONE

PENN TO PLAY ELIS IN '34

PHILADELPHIA Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The University of Pennsylvania and Yale will resume football relations in 1934 with a game to be played in New Haven the third week of October.

While no official announcement was made, President Thomas S. Gates, of Pennsylvania, asked about the resumption last night, admitted that Penn would play Yale in 1934.

Dr. E. LeRoy Mercer, dean of the department of physical education, said the game has been arranged.

The game will be played almost nine years after the last Pennsylvania eleven invaded the home of the Bulldogs.

Chicagoan Wins Coral Gables Medal

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—John E. Wagner, of Chicago, put together cards of 37-38—75 to win medalist honors in the annual Miami-Biltmore invitation amateur golf tournament.

RAIL EQUITIES AGAIN STEAM FORWARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Rails again steamed forward in today's stock market, but were unable to pull the rest of the list after them.

Scattered selling in the industrials and utilities canceled most of a late morning rise, and by early afternoon the market was irregular, with most price changes narrow.

Bulls were again active in Pennsylvania, pushing that issue up about a point, while gains of ½ or more appeared in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central, Santa Fe and others. The "wet" stocks were also brought forward again. Owens Illinois Glass rising 1½ and National Distillers half as much.

The move in the rails was said in brokerage quarters to have been inspired by professionals who were active in that group last summer, and who looked for constructive developments in the carrier situation during the course of 1933. Freight car loadings reports have lately been distorted by the holidays. Santa Fe, however made the first report for the week ended January 7, which indicated that a seasonal January pickup was developing. In that week, which included the New Years holiday, 18,530 cars were handled, against 15,930 in the previous week, which included Christmas.

Loadings of revenue freight for all Class 1 roads for the week ended December 31 totaled 406,779 cars, a drop of 87,801 from the previous week, largely reflecting the Christmas holiday. The total was 19 per cent under the corresponding week of the previous year, which included New Years holiday.

General Motors December sales report showed some pickup from the extremely low level of November. The total to consumers in the United States was 19,992, against 12,780 in the previous month, and 53,588 in December of 1931. The figures for the full year reflected the efforts to reduce dealers' stocks. Sales to dealers were 472,859 for the period, or well under the 510,060 which dealers sold to consumers.

COTTON PRICES STEADY, UP

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Cotton futures opened steady, 6-8 higher on steadier Liverpool cables and rains in the South. March, 6.24; May, 6.35; July, 6.47; October, 6.68; December, 6.80.

Demand was supplied by realizing and Southern selling and there was some selling of July through brokers who sometimes act for the co-operative interests. Prices eased from 6.24 to 6.18 for March and with the general market showing net gains of about 2 to 3 points at the end of the first half hour.

The volume of business tapered off after the initial demand had been supplied and the market was quiet later in the morning with prices sagging under scattered and local selling. At midday March cotton was holding around $6.18 and July $6.44, with the general list showing net advances of about 2 to 4 points.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 9.—Cotton, 12,000 bales, including 11,500 American. Spot in good demand, but business moderate; prices one point lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.00; good middling, 5.70; strict middling 5:45; middling, 5.30; strict low middling, 5:15; low middling, 5:00; strict good ordinary, 4:80; good ordinary, 4.50. Futures closed quiet and steady; January, 5.04; March, 5.06; May, December, 5.17.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Continental Motors Corporation reports for the year ended October 31, 1932, net loss of $2,754,278 after depreciation, taxes, etc., compared to net loss of $1,899,344 in the preceding fiscal year.

F. W. Woolworth & Co., Ltd. (English company), controlled by F. W. Woolworth Co. reports for the year ended December 31, 1932, profit of £4,477,885 after charges, depreciation, etc., including directors' and managers' remuneration but before providing for taxation. This compares with profit of £4,211,355 before taxes in the preceding year.

United Light and Power Company and subsidiaries for 12 months ended November 30, 1932, report consolidated net profit of $5,112,884 after taxes, interest, depreciation, subsidiary preferred dividends, etc., equivalent after provision for preferred dividends to 44 cents a share on 3,473,923 combined average class A and class B common shares outstanding during the period. This compares with $7,958,274, or $1.25 a share on the same basis in the previous 12 months.

AUTO INDUSTRY FIGHTS BUYING STRIKE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The automobile show in New York symbolizes the effort of organized business skill—in manufacturing and merchandising—to break the continuing buyers' strike.

Business and employment in the coming months will depend to some extent on the success which the motor manufacturers have in inducing those with at least a remnant of buying power to exchange hoarded bank deposits for new motor vehicles. The prosperity prior to 1930 was to a large degree built on the highly geared activity of the automobile and construction trades.

Mr. Rukeyser

Stimulus of both these industries depends on revival in the consumer trades, and thus the question of the vicious circle recurs. Malcolm C. Rorty, formerly vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, would break the deadlock by giving governmental bounties to those who have the temerity to undertake construction work now, when employment in the building trades is at low ebb. Moreover, after March 4, the new President will again be hospitable to suggestions to use public and semi-public activities as a stabilizer of business and employment.

In the automobile industry, the appeal of improved models at prices which entail great bargains is likely to give some impulse to trade. Yet the dominant leaders in the industry have recognized all along that the main deterrent to large sales is the feeling of uncertainty concerning their own economic future on the part of potential customers. Once the financial horizon is partially cleared, deferred replacement by those with cars which are either partially worn out or obsolete will be quickened. In other words, in the business cycle nothing succeeds like success. Prosperity, like depression, will move in a spiral.

BUYER BENEFACTOR

Meantime, under existing conditions, it is socially useful to buy a new car. So doing entails a mandate giving employment for at least 70 days. From the general economic viewpoint, a purchase now is vastly more helpful than one made after the business trend has become more unmistakably upward. Accordingly, the public should hail the new car owner as something of a benefactor, rather than as an anti-social spendthrift. Further excessive private economy, where unnecessary in individual cases, is, on the other hand, a vote for continued unemployment and industrial stagnation.

The automobile industry should not be contented with mere competitive advertising of models. Such copy should be supplemented by a collective campaign, which will tell the affluent why it is economically desirable for them to buy any good car.

The automobile industry is a thoroughly modern trade, more alive than most of the changing whims and attitudes of consumers. Already at the turn of the year steel production has been accelerated a little by the faith of the automobile industry in improving prospects for consumer sales.

HOLIDAY CUTS CARLOADINGS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The American Railway Association announced today that loadings of revenue freight for the week ending December 31 were 406,779 cars, a decrease of 87,801 cars from the preceding week and 95,948 compared with the corresponding week in 1931.

Complete reports for the year 1932 showed that 28,194,828 cars were loaded. A reduction of 8,556,421 or 24 per cent under the number loaded in 1931 and a reduction of 17,522,251 or 38.3 per cent under 1930.

The week ended December 31 contained Christmas Day as well as a holiday on Monday while the corresponding weeks in 1931 and 1930 contained the New Year holiday.

Miscellaneous freight loaded for the week ended December 31 totaled 129,059 cars, a decrease of 9,270 below the preceding week and 53,627 under the corresponding week in 1931; less than carlot merchandise, 127,271 decrease 27,342 and 22,231; grain and grain products, 22,029, decrease 3,341 and 1,931; forest products, 9,449 decrease 3,027 and 4,272; coal, 99,847, decrease 40,989 and 6,582.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Optimism continued in the bond market today, with interest in the highest grade investment obligations apparently unabated. United States government department was fairly steady. The foreign section was slightly irregular.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

BOMBINGS SPUR MINE FEUD

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Spurred to increased activity by two bombings, national guardsmen and Christian County officials bustled about their task today of preserving order in this strife-infected coal mining sector.

Additional escorts of troopers formed about working miners to insure operation of Peabody collieries in the county. Company officials said the augmented military guard would enable them to open six shafts.

Sheriff Charles Wienecke and his deputies combed the region in search of hidden explosives and raided alleged meeting places of "Progressive" unionists. The sheriff expressed fear that the dynamite which yesterday shattered a store in Kincaid and a Taylorville lunchroom was part of 400 dynamite sticks he said had been stolen Saturday. The remainder, he said, was perhaps cached for future use.

The store destroyed was owned by Albert Mattoza, crief of police of Kincaid. John Crapalese operated the lunchroom. He is a Progresive sympathizer, authorities said.

'FUGITIVE' GOES TO ASK PARDON

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Fred Frankel, attorney for Harry Stanley, Cleveland businessman, who escaped from a Colorado prison 14 years ago, today said Stanley was on his way back West to ask the Colorado Governor for a pardon.

This was the latest development in a week-end of conflicting statements during which detectives have been searching for Stanley as an alleged bail-jumper from St. Louis, Mo.

Last night Frankel said Stanley was en route westward, but later stated he was "misinformed" after Mrs. Herman Stutz, Stanley's mother-in-law, said the Stanleys were in seclusion here.

Today, however, Mrs. Stutz agreed the Stanleys had departed.

6 Charter Members At Church Ceremony

A week's celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Montgomery avenue near Sandusky street, opened last night with six charter members attending. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. C. C. Hein, president of the American Lutheran Church. Services were conducted by the Rev. Lammert Redfels, pastor. An entertainment will be given tonight by the Lutheran City Mission Society.

The charter members are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Frederick, Mrs. A. C. Gauger, Miss Hannah Hespenheide, Mrs. Margaret Shankey and Mrs. Kate Croker.

Call of Volga's Vodka Leads to Police Court

He heard the call of the Volga and started to celebrate Russian Christmas by drinking vodka—lots of vodka—Frank Kosky, 38, told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today. Kosky was arrested as a suspicious person Saturday, accused of stealing a pair of trousers from a downtown department store.

In fact, Kosky tried to take two pair, according to the store detective who testified he released him on the first attempt but 15 minutes later saw him making a second try to get the trousers. Rothenberg fined Kosky $25 or 30 days in jail.

BRIDGE VICTORS NOVICE TEAM

Two young men last year played bridge together for the first time in the Western Pennsylvania elimination series for the national winter contract bridge championship.

Today they were heralded as the champions of this district. They are Wilbur Reehl, of New Brighton, and Ray Johnston, of Ellwood City.

It was a combination of system and good judgment that won for the pair. Each was awarded a trophy cup and half interest in an electric dealing table. It will probably call for another championship match between them to decide ownership of the table.

The new champions will represent Pittsburgh at the winter championship matches in Miami week after next. In addition to the prizes they get their expenses for the trip.

Runners up in the elimination series were James Howard and Mr. Jamison, both of Masontwon. More than 1,000 men and women competed in the four-day play here. Final playoff was held in the Schenley Bridge Club, of which H. J. Bailey is chairman.

MARIE'S BOOK HELD FICTION

By ALFRED TYRNAUER

(Copyright, 1933, International News Service, Inc.)

VIENNA, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—The novel written by Queen Marie, of Rumania, and objected to by King Carol as a thinly-veiled expose of his private affairs is "a work of pure fiction," her son-in-law, the Archduke Anton, of Hapsburg, declared today.

While insisting that the book has not caused a rift between Marie and Carol, Anton admitted that the Dowager Queen had left Bucharest to spend a month with him and his wife, the former Princess Ileana, at Moedling villa.

Anton said:

"The novel is entitled 'Crowned Queens,' but the title is a bit misleading. You know that publishers and not authors are mostly responsible for titles.

"The book has nothing to do with Queen Marie's memoirs, which are not completed and probably will not be published during her lifetime."

Leon Trotzky Ill, Specialist Sought

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian Bolshevik, was reported seriously ill today at his residence on Prinkipo Island.

His secretary, Jan Frankel, has gone to Europe to bring back a foreign specialist to treat Tortzky. The nature of the malady was undisclosed. It was known that Trotzky was remaining in bed.

Traffic 'Spies' Opposed by Police

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 9.—Efforts to form a secret committee of 100 to report traffic law violations are meeting with the opposition of Police Chief Leroy Goodwin, who asserts it is a "spy system" that would result only in antagonizing motorists. The Mayor and several members of Council have approved the plan.

'PLAY DOCTOR,' ACTOR, DIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Paul Dickey, 60, an important figure in the theater and the films since the turn of the century, is dead today.

His body was found yesterday at his room in a club by a chambermaid. He had been undergoing treatment for a heart ailment for some time.

Dickey, whose home was at Beverly Hills, Cal., was a playwright, actor, stage director and scenario writer.

He staged the well-known musical comedy "Rose Marie," and collaborated with Charles Goddard and Mann Page on plays in which Frances Larrimore and Elsie Janis appeared.

As an actor he appeared with Robert Edeson in "Strong Heart," and with Henrietta Crossman in "Sham." He was regarded as an expert in "doctoring" plays and many successful productions benefited by the revisions he made.

He and his wife, the former Inez Dickey of the stage, ware separated in 1927.

SHAW DENIES BRAINS NEEDED

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Brain power is not needed by a country desiring self-government, George Bernard Shaw, British author, told Indians desirous of autonomy for their country. He said:

"England has got on very well for years without brains."

The author said he did not intend to travel in India, but if Mahatma Gandhi indicated he wished to see him he would go to Poona. He said:

"Gandhi is the clearest-headed man in India, but is so tired of you all that he goes on a fast unto death."

Shaw said he was not interested in untouchability, adding:

"We have untouchability in England, as the laborer who wants to marry a duchess' daughter."

2 WOMEN, 4 MEN SLAIN IN FEUD

MANCHESTER, Ky., Jan. 9.—Two women were listed today among the six persons known to have been killed in recent weeks in sporadic outbreaks of violence in the secluded Double Creek section of Clay County.

The latest casualties in disorders authorities attribute to factional differences among residents of the hill country were reported yesterday when Bropha Lipps, 25, and Esther Smith, 17, were slain by rifle bullets fired into a dwelling from nearby hills.

Lipps had been accused with several others in the slaying of Willie Wagers and Ford Lipps, but was dismissed when witnesses failed to identify him.

Speed Collins, who was at the Smith home at the time of the shooting, swore to warrants accusing six men in connection with the killings. Those named in the warrants were John Wagers and his two sons, Noah and Jim; Reuben Smith, Wood Lipps and Tom Gray. John Wagers' wife was killed when ambushers fired into her home the day before Willie Wagers and Ford Lipps were shot. Shortly before her death, Tom Wagers was killed.

GANG MURDER MOTIVE DEBT

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A matter of an $18,000 unpaid account was being investigated by detectives today as a possible motive for the slaying of gangster Ted Newberry, whose bullet-pierced body was found across the Indiana line near Chesterton.

Detectives said they were certain Newberry, one-time lieutenant in the Capone syndicate, had met death in a terrific struggle and that it was possible others had been slain and their bodies disposed of Saturday.

Investigators said they had learned the Capone gang had accused Newberry of withholding $18,000 collected when he ran a division of the beer racket. They argued that a meeting, arranged to settle this difference, had probably ended in the fatal fight.

Newberry's widow, flying back to Chicago from Florida, telegraphed a local undertaker from Nashville, Tenn., where her plane was forced down last night, to claim the body and return it here for burial.

Pork Chop Burglar Killed in Harlem

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A Negro burglar, identified as Ira Wallace, 23, broke into the Harlem apartment of Bulah Agrestes yesterday and was leaving by the fire escape when two policemen shot and killed him after he had failed to halt. His loot was in his pocket—a pork chop.

Finance Minister Quits in Greece

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—M. Angelopoulos, Minister of Finance in the Tsaldaris cabinet, resigned today because he opposed insertion in the budget of the equivalent of $2,631,000 for payment to foreign creditors instead of the abolition of certain taxes.

Oakland Board To Install Officers

New officers of the Oakland Board of Trade will be installed at the monthly meeting tomorrow night. The session will be held at Hotel Schenley.

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Birth of Son Leads to New Happiness for Mary Faith and Kim

CHAPTER XXVI.

It snowed all day on Tuesday, the last of December. The ground was covered with a blanket several inches thick, and there were powder-puffs of feathery snow on the electric light globes that hung on either side of the entrance to the apartment house.

All day Mary Faith had felt tired and drowsy. All day, in obedience to some blind law of nature, she had taken little naps, sitting in her chair beside the dining room table, as if she were preparing herself for some great ordeal.

"Well, everything is in order now for the baby," Mrs. Farrell said to her late that afternoon when the street lamps were beginning to flash their light out into the pearly winter dusk. "Even the little bed's all made up, isn't it?"

"A year ago today Kim and I were down in Garrettsville," Mary Faith murmured. "I remember we took a walk in the afternoon and there were a lot of little kids coasting down the hill near Aunt Ella's house. I didn't dream then that I'd be having a little baby of my own so soon . . ."

She stopped, and a look of amazement and pain swept across her face. Hanging on to the edge of the table she pulled herself to her feet. She was halfway to the door of the room when another pain ran over her body like a sheet of flame . . .

She heard Mrs. Farrell's voice behind her. "Where are you going, Mary Faith?"

She tried to answer her, but she couldn't make a sound . . . She knew where she was going. She was going to the telephone to call up Kim and tell him that he must come to her just as soon as he could . . .

CALLS FOR KIM

Then she saw the marks on the wall of the hallway where the telephone box had been. The black twisted wires still stuck out from the plaster, like the roots of burnt trees . . . She had forgotten that the telephone had been taken away.

"You're in pain, Mary Faith, aren't you?" she heard Mrs. Farrell's voice above the sound in her ears that was like a great flood of waters rushing past her. "I'll run in next door and call Dr. Thatcher—Oh, my dear Lord!——"

Darkness closed over Mary Faith. She knew vaguely that someone lifted her to a bed presently. And later on she heard a voice, hoarse with agony, shrieking for Kim—and never knew that it was her own voice. She only knew that the woman who was calling was in terrible agony. Then a sweetish, sickening smell was in her nostrils and she knew nothing more . . .

A light was shining in her eyes when she opened them. At first she thought she was looking straight into the sun, and then she saw that it was her own little yellow-shaded bed lamp. She was in her own room, in her own bed. She could feel the pillow, soft and cool, against her cheek. She ached all over and she was too tired to move or speak. She closed her eyes again.

LITTLE SON

Then all at once, someone was bending over her. A man's deep voice was saying ,"Are you awake, Mrs. Farrell?"

She looked up. Dr. Thatcher was bending over her and beside him stood Kim's mother. She was holding a small white bundle in her arms, and as Mary Faith tried to lift herself from her pillows, Mrs. Farrell laid it down beside her.

Turning her head, Mary Faith looked at the baby. Here was her love for Kim in the flesh—the little soft body, tender as flower petals and warm as life itself. One hand was curled up tight against the little face, like a tiny pink seashell.

"Well, there's your son, Mrs. Farrell—born just as the bells were ringing in the New Year. What do you think of him?" Dr. Thatcher asked in his brisk way. He backed away from the bed, and beyond him in the shadowy doorway Mary Faith saw Kim.

Kim!...He came toward her and there was a white stony look on his face. He stood beside the bed and suddenly she saw tears spring into his eyes.

"Don't, Kim." She held her hand out to him. "Don't, dearest...Everything's all right."

He knelt down beside her, burying his face in the pillows close to hers. So close that she could smell the faint dry scent of his blond hair.

"Your hair—it always smells like birch bark," she murmured weakly and foolishly, and began to cry because she was so happy.

HAPPINESS RETURNS

By the middle of February Mary Faith was on her feet again—and not only on her feet, but on the very tips of her toes, more eager for life and work and happiness than she had ever been before.

The days were all too short now although she got up at 6 o'clock every morning when the baby stirred in his little bed and began to shout for his bottle in a voice that to her was the most beautiful sound that was ever heard.

"Listen to our son and his little hunger-song," she would say to Kim as she slipped out of bed and hurried into the kitchen to warm the first little six-ounce bottle of the day. "He's going to be a grand opera singer some day, and don't I know it!"

"Or a radio announcer, at least," Kim would answer drowsily and good-naturedly. He was as proud of the baby as Mary Faith was. Sometimes when she came back from the kitchen she would find him bending over the little bed touching the baby's cheeks with one of his big fingers and talking to him in a gruff man-to-man way.

"Shut up or I'll bust you one on the beezer—hear me?" he would say. "You make as much noise as a fire whistle. Cut it out."

Every night Kim came home between five and six so that he could see Mary Faith bathe the boy and tuck him into the warm blankets of his bed.

On Easter Saturday he brought home a chocolate rabbit for him, to the enormous amusement of Mary Faith and the horror of Mrs. Farrell. And he bundled him up and took him for an airing on the seat of his car.

DREAM REALIZED

"Our life is just the way I always pictured it," Mary Faith said to him that night as they sat in the living room waiting for the Maldons to come over and play bridge with them. "Long before we were married I used to dream of the time when we'd have a home and a baby and friends to come in to spend the evening with us once in a while—and now it's all come true——"

"You'd better rap on wood," Mrs. Farrell spoke up from her chair beside the window. "I always think it's tempting Providence to tell yourself how lucky you are."

Mary Faith laughed. "You're worse than a rainy day, Mother Farrell," she said cheerfully. "Kim and I have had all our bad luck."

She got up and sat on the arm of his chair, rumpling up his hair and twisting it somehow so that he looked utterly unlike himself for a second.

"Haven't we had all of our bad luck and all our bad times?" she asked him, her arms around him. "Haven't we come out on the sunny side, and aren't we most—terribly—frightfully happy?" She kissed him between each word and he looked as if he liked it.

They were as much in love with each other these days as they had been during the first year of their engagement, when Kim had wanted no one but her.

He wanted no one but her now. Sometimes the Maldons called up and said that they were coming over to play a few hands of bridge and he would frown and look gloomy when Mary Faith announced the news to him.

"Why don't they stay at home once in a while?" he would ask. "Gosh, I never saw such a pair as those two birds!—In all the time I stayed at their house I never knew them to spend a quiet evening. They were always calling somebody up to come over and make 'hoopla' with them or getting dressed to go to somebody's house for the evening or go to some place and dance and have dinner. . . . It was Claire's fault—Jack's pretty quiet and steady. She drags him around after her like a kid with a Teddy bear."

The Maldons never made much 'hoopla' when they came to the flat to spend the evening. For one thing the baby was asleep and they had to keep quiet. And for another Mrs. Farrell always sat in the room and looked over the evening paper while the other four played cards, frowning at them every now and then.

"I don't care very much for that Maldon girl," she told Mary Faith the morning after one of the Maldons' visits. "She gives me the jitters, the way she's always wriggling her shoulders and singing under her breath . . . And I wonder if she thinks her face looks pretty, all painted up like a signboard! —No, I don't like her."

About a week later Claire popped in one afternoon on her way home from downtown. "Popped in" was the only way to describe the way she came rushing into the flat with her bracelets jingling and the white-tipped tails of her silver fox scarf swaying.

"I can't stay two minutes," she said breathlessly. "I just wanted to bring the baby in a little present. It's a cup, and I have his name engraved on it. There's been enough argument about naming him, so his Aunt Claire just settled it by having 'Kim' put on the cup."

Synopsis

Mary Faith, secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy businessman, gives up her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, shiftless young lawyer. She realizes he has an eye for every girl, but hopes that married life will sober him and make him successful in his profession. Instead, Kim is annoyed at Mary Faith's "Puritanism," and his friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, find her a dull companion. Learning that she is to become a mother, Mary Faith, for the first time, visits Kim's office. Kim is furious when Mary Faith finds him flirting with his blonde secretary. That night he informs his mother and Mary Faith that he is leaving. Heartbroken, Mary Faith decides not to tell him of her approaching motherhood. She gets a temporary job as a stenographer. After a few weeks Kim stops in at home, surprised that the two women are getting along all right.

Now Go On

"Everything's all right," she told him.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Members of the Sheridan Square, Rowland, Manor, Cameraphone, Belmar, Schenley, Plaza, Arsenal and Etna-Harris chapters of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Comic Clubs were still talking today about the wonderful vaudeville shows they saw at the meetings Saturday. It was really a red letter day for many of them.

The meeting at the Sheridan Square opened with the usual ceremonies and then four contests—three for boys and one for girls—were announced. The first of these found four boys ready and anxious to compete. It was a "hot-dog" eating contest, and what boy wouldn't enjoy entering a contest of this kind? Four "hot-dogs" were suspended from the ceiling just out of reach of the youngsters. It took much jumping and craning of necks, but little Jack Smith was equal to the task and was the first one to finish; for this he received two passes to the theater.

Then 14 boys were called to the center of the stage and they removed their shoes, which Manager Jack Hooley scrambled well. The boys were sent to the side of the stage and at a given signal they all started pell-mell for the pile of shoes. The youngster who found his shoes and put them on and had them tied first was the winner. Little Jimmy Gleason proved the best hunter and was awarded the prize.

SHOE SCRAMBLE

Next came the shoe scramble for the girls. The same procedure was carried out for them as for the boys and the winner was Betty Moroney. She also was awarded a prize.

Then several of the boys were called to the center of the stage and each given a hammer. Sometimes this is a dangerous instrument to give a red-blooded American boy, but is this case it turned out all right. All the youngsters had to do was drive a nail into a block of wood, and the first boy finished, who was Billy Weitzel, succeeded in doing this without hitting his thumb.

Then came, as we have told you before, the vaudeville show.

Frankie Porter, the master of ceremonies, sang "When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver" and "Little Church in the Valley." He then introduced the Rhythm Sisters, who danced to the tune of "By By Blues," and the United States Naval Academy football song.

ADDED ATTRACTION

As a surprise, Josh Dreano, who is in charge of these acts, sent to the Sheridan Square as an added attraction, "Toto, the Little Fat Boy," who sung "Tom Thumb Drums," "Little German Band" and "Fit as a Fiddle."

The program was brought to a close by Anna Mae Johnson, with her acrobatic specialty.

Don't Annoy the Spiders This Year

We wish to congratulate the humanitarian societies on their good work in 1932.

First, they took a snake away from a spider in the Middle West.

Next, they took a grandfather's clock away from another spider. Same locality.

Seems that the Middle Western spider couldn't lay up a dime last year.

Just when they got going good and spinning on all six they were made the victims of woggle-orbed philanthropy.

The spider was winning the fight with the snake when the humanitarians raided the pari-mutuels. The other spider was busy crocheting a web in an effort to tie together the hands on the clock dial. It was a 24-hour day for the arachnid and he wasn't getting anywhere with his chronological knitting.

So the good folks were afraid he would break his little spidery heart trying to make good for the news reels. They took him off the clock and put him on a sun dial for the rainy season.

Now, we were taught in McGuffey's Third Reader to never interfere with spiders. Remember the story of Robert Bruce? He was saved from the English soldiers because a spider spun a web across the cave in which he was temporarily garaged.

Seeing the web the soldiers figured the place was dead storage. Robert didn't do anything to wise them up or down. Being King of Scotland he was probably hoping the web would turn out to be a sweater or something.

Anyway, the spider saved the king. Since that time we have never interfered with spiders. If one happens to start a web across any work we are doing we get up and leave the work.

That's the real humanitarian spirit for both the spider and the man doing the work.

A COLD Goes Thru 3 Stages!

And Relief Is Far Easier in the First Than in the Second or Third Stages!

A cold ordinarily progresses through three stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is when treatment is most effective.

To stop a cold in the first stage, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It does the four things necessary. Opens the bowels, kills the germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and tones the entire system. Anything less than that is trifling with a cold. All drug stores sell Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE. Be sure you get that and nothing else. Now two sizes—30c and 50c.

'Buy American' Policy Vexes France—What About Repudiated Debt?

THE restraint that has marked American comment upon the French default, is largely due to the stand against national dishonor taken by former Prime Minister Herriot.

Alone he gave battle to the repudiationists, who have covered France with such indelible dishonor.

In the course of a prolonged debate, which was to end with the overthrow of his administration and his retirement from public life, he appealed to the gratitude France owed to a distant nation that had saved it from destruction, and to the regard of the Chamber for the good repute of their country. But it was in vain.

The peasant-minded French, with their steel clutch on the sacred sou, were determined not to pay. They felt that they could get away with it. Payment would not be forced. So why fear default?

☆ ☆ ☆

HERRIOT'S stand secures his fame forever. The voluntary and uncompelled default of France has lowered her position among the nations.

She has inflicted upon herself a more grievous and lasting injury than any defeat at arms suffered by her at any time in her history.

The vaporings of the boulevard Parisian press cannot alter the situation nor blur these facts.

When, therefore, a Paris newspaper such as "La Liberte" speaks of the United States as the "AMERICAN PARVENU" and the "NOUVEAU RICHE OF THE WAR," it only means that the French are sore—sore at themselves, sore at the disgraceful position in which they have put themselves.

REPUDIATION OF A DEBT MAY HAVE ITS MOMENTARY EXCITEMENT, BUT IT HAS NO LASTING JOYS.

OF course we Americans do not like to be insulted, particularly by France. It deepens the chagrin—already deep enough—that we feel as we realize what suckers we have been made to appear in our dealings with France.

Our minds go back to the opening years of the war, when hardly a ship arrived in our ports without its little troupe of French mendicants. Some were generals in uniform and some were prime ministers. All were emotional and eloquent.

"La Belle France" was glowingly portrayed to us as "the sword of God,"—fighting for the sanctity of treaties, the validity of signatures, the obligation that inheres in a formal contract and in a nation's pledge.

She begged — HOW SHE BEGGED! — For bread, arms, ships, raiment and men, to help her fight the good fight of national honor.

All these were given her — a hundred-fold more than she asked.

HOW WE "FELL" FOR FRANCE! How we scraped and saved to buy Liberty Bonds—to "buy until it hurt"—that France might not perish off the earth.

☆ ☆ ☆

WELL—we live and learn. All men do.

But disillusionment is painful, and nothing is more bitter than the realization that one has been fed with—bunk!

The writer in "La Liberte," Camille Aymard, has taken alarm at the spread of the Buy American movement in this country. He mentions the fact that New York City has decided to buy neither iron nor steel of foreign origin. He warns us that if this Buy American campaign succeeds, it will be "murderous" for the United States.

We are told that if we do not sell abroad, we cannot provide employment at home.

A LITTLE LECTURE ON SOUND ECONOMICS FROM THE REPUDIATIONIST SCHOOL!

We are moved to observe that FRANCE WILL BE ABLE TO TRADE NEITHER AT HOME NOR ABROAD as her attitude towards duly contracted debts comes to be fully realized throughout the world.

BUT the humor of the French displeasure at our belated resolve to patronize home industry and provide jobs for our own workmen, rather than for French workmen, is revealed in the fact that France has led the way in endeavoring to protect her home market against dumping by depreciated-currency countries.

As recently as November twenty-third, the dispatches from France carried an announcement that her Minister of Commerce had been authorized to introduce NEW ANTI-DUMPING LEGISLATION, intended to make her present law more flexible, by permitting SWIFTER ACTION against countries which have any advantage as the result of cheaper labor or depreciated money, in competing with French manufactures.

France is the author of the FIXED QUOTA as a means of curbing importations, and has already applied the principle of the compensating exchange tax to overcome the inequalities between foreign currencies and her own.

☆ ☆ ☆

IT will take something far more impressive than a protest from France to persuade Americans to sacrifice their home market, which represents ninety-five percent of their total trade, for the chimerical prospects of selling American goods in competition with French products, made with an average factory wage of twelve cents an hour compared with the American wage of SIXTY CENTS AN HOUR.

Writers like Camille Aymard are doubtless deceived by certain "representatives" of America whom they may have chanced to meet abroad.

It is time they realized, however, that the American people are not all fools. They are not all visionary sentimentalists, like some of their itinerant spokesmen, called "Hoover envoys," willing to sacrifice the interests of America for the monetary approval of European friends.

The situation in the United States is at last in the hands of the American people and their Congress—a pretty straight-thinking outfit—and BUY AMERICAN is only their first move in a program of intelligent approach to America's problems.

The Lake Cargo Dispute

The Study Made by Dr. H. C. Mansfield, of Yale, Raises Hope That Pittsburgh May Get Justice.

The Interstate Commerce Commission permits southern coal operators to enjoy freight rates only 15 to 30 per cent higher than the rates Pittsburghers must pay, for hauls 100 to 200 per cent longer. The southerners, with their cheaper labor and lower taxes, have consequently been able to take millions of tons of lake cargo coal business away from Pittsburgh.

Attention is again focussed on the situation by publication of a study of the lake cargo rate controversy by Dr. Harvey C. Mansfield, instructor in government at Yale University. His report is published by the Columbia University Press.

Dr. Mansfield boldly charges that the integrity of the Interstate Commerce Commission, already marred by "poor and partisan" appointments, is at stake in the final settlement of this dispute. It is noteworthy that Pennsylvania has never been represented on the commission.

Dr. Mansfield's study raises the hope that Pittsburgh may yet get justice in this matter. It stands to reason that there is no fairness in charging $1.46 for hauling a ton of coal 172 miles from Pittsburgh to a Lake Erie port when a ton can be shipped 370 miles from the Kanawha (W. Va.) field to the same port for $1.81.

During the last five years one-fourth of Pennsylvania's soft coal mines have been permanently abandoned. The loss of the lake cargo trade has been one of the factors that have ruined our coal business. We need equitable freight rates to recover that trade.

Ambulance-Chasing

Incessant Watchfulness Is Necessary If Shysters Are to Be Kept in Restraint.

Disbarment proceedings have been instituted by a committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association against several lawyers accused of ambulance-chasing. The evil has been in existence for a long time, and the bar association has been slow in acting.

It is to be hoped the association will not relapse into somnolence after the present proceedings have been terminated, but instead will continue to keep a watchful eye on lawyers' practices with a view to striking quickly at shysters.

The necessity for incessant watchfulness is shown in the experience of New York City, which has suffered sorely from the evils of ambulance-chasing. A crusade was conducted against the shysters in 1928, a number were caught and punished, and the evil was temporarily checked.

Thereafter vigilance was relaxed, with the result that ambulance-chasing was resumed and is now conducted as extensively as when the 1928 investigation was started by the New York Supreme Court.

To meet the situation a bill is to be introduced in the New York Legislature making it a criminal offense for an attorney or anyone employed by him to solicit business or seek retainers from individuals, unless such services are requested by the injured party or someone authorized to act in his behalf.

Assemblyman William F. Smith, the sponsor of the proposed legislation, also would make it illegal for policemen or hospital employes to aid the shysters and their "runners" in ambulance-chasing.

Such legislation is unnecessary, because there are already available adequate means for dealing with such cases. What is needed is eternal vigilance on the part of the respectable lawyers and a willingness to perform the disagreeable duty of prosecuting the shysters. New laws will be of no avail without watchfulness and aggressiveness, and with watchfulness and aggressiveness there is no need for new laws.

Hope

Hope is like the sea,
Hope is like a flower,
Hope has meanings new for me
Every passing hour

Boundless as the blue
Tide of ocean flows,
Fresh as shining drops of dew
Sparkling on a rose;

Hope is great and small
Hope is near and far;
Hope can compensate for all
Griefs that vex and mar.

On its tides I drift
Where no tempests sweep;
Crystal-clear its waters lift,
Lulling me to sleep.

Hope is like the sea,
Hope is like a flower;
Endless as eternity,
Fresh with every hour!

Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him; and He shall bring it to pass.—Psalms, xxxvii:5.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up quite peckish. And further enlivened, bless my withers, by the Frazier Hunts, and Bob, with news of the visit to Siam and Machuria and of Communists in Jerusalem, of all places. So, by messenger, came an autographed volume from John Erskine of his "Tristan and Isolde."

Toiling until the sun sank low, and to Fannie Hurst's place to find many sipping tea, and talked a while with Daniel Frohman, the theater man. Home through the park, and my wife, hearing a whimper in the bushes, found a shivering, hurt puppy and carried it to a dog hospital. And they said it would recover.

Dinner with the John Ringlings, where came the Fullerton Weavers, the Daniel Sickles, the F. V. Storrs, Miss Anne and Carl Shuster. Afterward, while others grouped at bridge, browsed and came upon, in a single room, a Titian, Rembrandt and a Franz Hals. And I wished covetously that I might have the gold they cost.

Noel Coward long has been one of the grand patrollers of aisles at first nights. He is to direct and star in a play with the Alfred Lunts. A reigning cosmopolite, he has little of the expected gloss. Loose-jointed, large-eared and a bit gawky, he would look at home in overalls between handles of a plow. He affects soft-collared shirts with a Tuxedo, totes a biscuit-sized hunting case watch and clip pencil in his vest.

Coward has become a figure in swanky Sutton place, acquiring an apartment in a building opposite another sophisticated dancing boy—Clifton Webb. Alexander Woollcott is within yoo-hooing distance, a few blocks away. The neighborhood bristles with smart sayings, jossy talk and what-have-you.

Personal nomination for the season's high in unusual costuming—that of Tallulah Bankhead.

Two friends — neither Robert Benchley—this winter, indulging bon voyage exuberance in steamer cabins, failed to hear the going-ashore gong and found themselves Europe-bound in evening duds. I talked to one, just back from such an involuntary safari, inquiring what he did on making his frightful discovery. "I stayed plastered," he said.

Near Washington Arch, is an Italian red ink cafe where fashioners of mystery thrillers for pulp magazines gather for discussion of plots, duplicity of editors and affectionate bicker. More than half wear horn-rimmed glasses. And one is a startling ringer for Sinclair Lewis.

After a whirl among downtown office spires today, I think Ed Wynn's fluty upshoot describing a parasite is grand. Remember?—"A fellow who goes through a revolving door on your push."

An institution I miss on the lower reach of Manhattan—Max's Busy Bee—situated, as I remember, a hop off Broadway on Fulton. It was the 1-to-3-cent heaven for newsboys and bootblacks, and often—during inevitable hard luck stretches—newspaper reporters. There was a mail order oil painting of Max over the door, a black-mustached gentleman whose middle-parted hair was in a lion tamer's roach. The legend was, he amassed a million. Anyway, his counters were a dazzle of ice cream cones, hot dogs, ginger pop and a hundred other ptomaine indigestibles.

A midget panhandler sidled up to Ed Sullivan, the columnist, and asked an alm. Sullivan responded with "You look a little short, at that," and a quarter.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

No truth will be of any use to you until you know something of the mystery of your own life.

When I speak of "life" you think of that existence which you express in your senses and which other men observe and contact through their senses. The life of touch, taste, sound, sight, feeling; the life you live in your home, in your office—that is what you think of when I say "your life."

But that is not your real life. That is only a reflection of your real life.

Your real life is lived inside you. It has nothing to do with touch and taste, sound, sight and feeling. It is lived in your thought. There, in the secret places of your spirit, you build the pattern of yourself; you plan your destiny; you decide what you will or will not be. And your outer life only copies that pattern and carries out that plan.

There is nothing occult or mysterious about that statement. You can prove its truth very simply. Look around at the furniture in your room—the chairs, tables, pictures, curtains, books, radio. These are material things now. Before they were materials things, they were immaterial things and existed in the mind. But that existence was a REAL existence. There was their pattern made, bit by bit, as surely as that pattern was, later on, copied on loom and press.

As THINGS live in the mind, so do THOUGHTS live in the mind. As a chair is born in the mind before it is seen by the eye, so an ACT is born in the mind before it is expressed by the hands or the tongue. And these secret, inner acts determine all your outer life.

You think that thoughts don't matter.

THEY ARE THE ONLY THINGS THAT DO MATTER.

YOU ARE WHAT YOU THINK, AND WHAT YOU FEEL. You are what you see inside.

Your secret life may be utterly unlike your outer life, but it is, nevertheless, your REAL life, and sooner or later it will put its mark on your every act. Try as hard as you may to hide it, it will creep into your voice, it will peer furtively through your eyes, it will find a way to manipulate your hands.

You smile as you read that. You don't believe it's true. There are those secret dreams of yours. No one suspects you have those dreams, you're so hum-drum, so respectable. And you certainly wouldn't want anyone to know about them. They're far from respectable!

But that's just why you have them—because you're so sick of dullness, so weary of being respectable. Those dreams are your safety valves. Surely it can't hurt to have an indulgence that will never go any further than your own mind?

BUT IT WILL GO FURTHER THAN YOUR OWN MIND.

Little by little that unseen life will make itself seen.

Some day you'll suddenly find yourself saying something you hadn't meant to say; doing something you didn't mean to do; showing an interest in something, getting excited or angry about something that is utterly at variance with the personality and the program you've shown the world. You'll be shocked, surprised, perhaps humiliated. You'll wonder why on earth you did that. How could you do something so unlike yourself?

But it wasn't unlike yourself. IT WAS YOURSELF, YOUR REAL SELF, MAKING ITSELF KNOWN AT LAST.
